Egress Law To Require Alteration Of Schools

Major Structural Changes Necessary, Building, Grounds Committee Is Told

By Elsie Carper
Post Reporter

Major structural changes to District school buildings will be required to meet the egress law.

Schools Superintendent Hobart M. Corning yesterday told the building and grounds committee of the Board of Education that repairs needed to bring the schools in line with the new law will require a remodeling program "far more far-reaching" than expected.

This is shown, he said, in a report on McKinley High School received from the office of the building inspector.

Must Inclose Stairways

All stairways will have to be inclosed with masonry partitions and self-closing fire doors.

All main stairways must be rearranged to open directly on a street, alley or on a fire-resistive or open passageway leading to a street or alley.

Basement stairs must end in fire-resistive enclosures with masonary walls 8 inches thick and metal-covered, self-closing doors having metal-covered jambs and trim.

All combustible wall and ceiling facings will have to be removed and an emergency electrical source provided.

Metal Covers Required

All storage and utility room doors and cafeteria kitchen doors must be metal-covered and set in metal-covered jambs.

An approved fire-alarm system must be installed and all collapsible gates used to cut off portions of the building removed.

The committee indorsed Corning's recommendation that $5000 be made available immediately from the operating fund to permit the District architect to draw up plans for remodeling all schools that do not meet the code. The new law goes into effect the first of the year.

Corning said that there can be no estimate of the cost of the repairs until plans are drawn.

Expense to Be High

That the expense will be high is indicated by the extensive repairs needed at McKinley, regarded by school officials as one of the better schools, Corning said.

The school head said the McKinley report is the first he has seen although inspections have been completed at 85 of the District's 170 school buildings.

Acting on a request of the Commissioners that the school board give its view on the best type of fire alarm boxes for schools, the committee declared it wanted no part of the dispute between Fire Chief Clement Murphy and Communications Supt. Herbert A. Friede.

The committee said it would leave it up to the "experts" to determine which is better—the remote control box located inside school buildings proposed by Friede, or an outside box advoated by Murphy.

Corning said that he was misquoted in the press as favoring the remote control box. He said

Canada Approves Manufacture, Sale Of Margarine

Ottawa, Dec. 14 (AP).—The sale and manufacture of margarine in Canada were legalized today by a rule of the Dominion's Supreme Court.

The court held that the Dominion's ban on imports of margarine must continue.

The ruling, unless an appeal is taken to the Privy Council in London, means Canadians may make, sell and consume margarine and other butter substitutes immediately.

The court was asked to rule on the validity of the nineteenth century legislation which has kept margarine from Canadian dinner tables for 62 years.

Nicaragua Leader Among 38 Captured, Costa Rica Says

San Jose, Costa Rica, Dec. 14 (AP)—The Costa Rican government announced tonight the capture of 38 rebels near La Cruz and said the border city was being plastered with machine-gun fire from government planes.

The government said troops shuttled by air to the border area had "completely defeated" invaders from Nicaragua.

Jose Figueres, head of the government, said a Nicaraguan leader among the 38 captives will be brought here Wednesday for questioning. The leader was identified as Pedro Jose Ordonez.

Figueres, who is directing the operations against the rebels from his office here, said he had no reports of casualties from La Cruz, but conceded "we have probably wounded some of our own people in firing on the enemy."

The government said the prisoners carried arms given them by Luis Somoza, son of the Nicaraguan war minister.

The government announced Saturday that followers of Rafael Calderon Guardia, former Costa Rican president, had crossed the border from Nicaragua and were being supported by Nicaraguan national guardsmen. The charge has been denied by Nicaraguan officials.

Foreign Ministers' Meeting Is Called Under Rio Pact

By The Associated Press

The American republics last night called a meeting of Foreign Ministers and named a commission of inquiry in an effort to settle a dispute between Costa Rica and Nicaragua.

The action was taken by the Council of the Organization of American States at an extraordinary five-hour session.

The council also turned itself into a provisional organ of consultation under terms of the Rio treaty. This in effect gives the council powers to deal with the situation in such a way that the Foreign Ministers might not actually have to meet.

Rio Pact Fully Invoked

By those actions the Rio mutual defense pact was fully invoked only 11 days after going into force.

The vote was 12 in favor of the settlement move to none against, with the Dominican Republic abstaining. Costa Rica and Nicaragua as disputants were not allowed to vote. Only the 15 nations which ratified the pact participated.

The situation arose over Costa Rican charges that "troops from Nicaragua invaded Costa Rican territory" last Friday night in violation of terms of the Rio treaty guaranteeing the territorial integrity of the American nations.

Nicaragua, through her delegate, Alfredo Sacasa, denied the charges and announced that she is patrolling her border with Costa Rica to see that there are no violations.

Costa Rica Acts

Costa Rica immediately invoked the Rio treaty under article 6 which states that the foreign ministers will meet immediately when any "fact or situation" occurs that "might endanger the peace of America."

In a resolution adopted by the council, no exact date or place for the foreign ministers' meeting was set. The resolution said the time and place would be named at an "opportune moment."

[The United Press quoted Costa Rican Ambassador Mario Esquivel as saying that Costa Rican President Jose Figueres is preparing documents to show that no planes bearing arms have landed in San Jose, the Costa Rican capital. Esquivel was quoted as saying Nicaragua charged in the Council meeting that three planes bearing arms landed in San Jose Tuesday from Guatemala and were received at the airport there by the Guatemalan military attache.—Editor's Note.]

Chairman Enrique Corominas of Argentina announced that he will designate membership of the investigating committee today after consulting council members.

The committee will include only representatives of the 15 nations that have ratified the pact.

These are Venezuela, Uruguay, Dominican Republic, Paraguay, Panama, Mexico, Honduras, Haiti, El Salvador, Colombia, Brazil, United States, Nicaragua, Cuba and Costa Rica.

El Salvador Rule Seized By Military

Guatemala City, Dec. 14 (AP).—Direct reports from El Salvador said tonight President Salvador Castaneda Castro had resigned his office and the military was in control of the country.

These reports from San Salvador, capital of the neighboring Central American republic, said the city was calm after fighting which had raged during the day.

A San Salvador broadcast heard here ended with the words "victory to the youthful miltarists who will faithfully uphold the constitution!"

The radio broadcast—the first in several hours from the capital heard here—said the country's constitution had been violated by a decree passed by the National Assembly yesterday. The broadcast gave no other details.

Elections were scheduled in El Salvador Thursday and Friday for a constitutional assembly which was to determine the length of office for President Castaneda Castro, who had assumed office in March, 1945, to serve a four-year term.

There have been reports here of increasing tension in El Salvador, the smallest of the Central American republics, in the past few weeks. Labor unrest has occurred among workers of the International Railways of Central America. A general strike called for yesterday was canceled.

It was the first revolution in the country since October, 1944, when Col. Osmin Aguirre Salinas was ousted from office. He had seized power from President Andreas Menendez in May, 1944.

Wrong Guess Headache

Air Force Has Swank Plane Reportedly Made For Dewey

By C. B. Allen

An embarrassed Air Force has a "mystery airplane" on its hands and, up to now, has managed to keep the situation quiet. Apparently the craft is a sort of morning-after headache for Air Force and industry bad-guessers on the election.

Unconfirmable but persistent reports in aviation circles are that the plane, a "gold plate" Lockheed Constellation, was specially built to become a flying flagship for "President" Thomas E. Dewey.

The Air Force's Military Air Transport Service, to which the super de luxe "Connie" has been assigned since November 24, denied any knowledge of this background, but admitted the new airplane far outshines President Truman's Douglas DC-6 Independence in the splendor and appointments of what ordinarily would be a 60-passenger cabin.

Air Force spokesmen also confirmed that the airplane has been kept at the Washington National Airport for more than two weeks without any publicity.

Seemingly, Mr. Truman has no interest in the new Lockheed—or in rescuing the Air Force from its dilemma—being quite content with his practically new, if less sumptuous, DC-6.

Some of his friends say the matter of a switch in aerial conveyances has been broached tactfully to him, but that he "just grins and starts humming, 'I don't want it, you can have it, it's too swank for me.'"

Reportedly, both the Air Force and the manufacturer outdid themselves in rushing the "Presidential" plane to completion so it could be turned over for shakedown tests to ready it for the "new President" as soon as he was inaugurated on January 20.

But the "same old President" seems determined to keep on using the "same old airplane" despite the prophet-planners.

Reds Drive Near Peiping, Now Isolated

Peril to Ancient Capital Sets Off New Peace Rumors; Hwai Line Shaken

Nanking, Dec. 14 (AP).—Peiping was isolated and shorn of air support today as the Communists neared its gates. The rising peril to the ancient Chinese capital touched off new peace rumors in Nanking.

A feeling that all is lost in North China had some of the nation's highest officials talking privately of a coalition government with the Communists (presumably without President Chiang Kai-shek) or a negotiated peace.

There even was a rumor out of Hongkong that Chiang had resigned. A responsible official in Chiang's office denied this, along with another rumor afloat in Nanking that Chiang was about to leave to join Mme. Chiang Kai-shek in Washington.

With the government failing to form an adequate defense line north of Nanking on the Hwai River, and with the Communists in North China threatening to seize both Peiping and Tientsin, the discussions of a possible coalition with the Reds have gone ahead under cover.

Peiping's plight appeared desperate. Peiping authorities closed the south airfield, the final air link with the outside world. The Chinese air force had abruptly withdrawn its planes.

A late dispatch from Associated Press correspondent Spencer Moosa in Peiping said the Reds made the isolation complete by cutting the railway to the sea 30 miles southeast of Peiping.

The situation was no better on the front north of Nanking, where the fate of the capital is being decided.

The government armies of east China, in retreat from the lost battle around Suchow, still are trying to escape from two big Communist traps—apparently with little luck.

Communists have shaken the new Hwai River line, thrown up 100 miles northwest of Nanking, by sending forces far to the south and cutting the railway about 50 miles from the capital.

China's government functioned normally on the surface. Chiang, showing little strain, attended a state dinner for Paul Hoffman, Economic Cooperation Administrator, here to survey the prospects of aid to China.

Most members of the diplomatic corps have all but abandoned hope of moving with the government should it quit Nanking. They feel it will be too late, because the government will not give them adequate advance notice. It takes time to move an embassy.

Most members of the diplomatic mission say privately they expect the Communists to reach the Yangtze in force by the end of December, barring a miraculous government comeback.

NAACP Hits Regional School Plan

South's Program Declared Effort To Avoid Rulings Of Supreme Court

New York, Dec. 14 (AP).—The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People today condemned a new program of regional education worked out in 14 Southern States.

In a statement, the association termed the program "a device to circumvent the clear intent of the Supreme Court decisions" in cases involving the rights of Negroes to attend Southern schools.

The program, adopted yesterday at Savannah, Ga., places emphasis on professional and graduate training for Negroes but under the traditional racial segregation pattern. States will contribute funds on the basis of ability to pay.

The NAACP statement said the plan "does not meet the requirements of Supreme Court decisions that each State afford equal educational opportunities for its own qualified residents regardless of race or color."

The program involves "false economy contrived to make the public believe that equality is attainable within the framework of segregation," the statement declared, adding:

"Inequalities of educational opportunity are inevitable in a segregated system."

In the South, some Negro leaders agreed with the NAACP's stand on the regional plan but others disagreed in part.

Dr. Mozell Hill, head of the sociology department of Atlanta University, admitted his emotions on the subject were "mixed."

Practically, he said, he agreed with the plan and that he believed the idea of regionalism is sound, if it could be divested of the racial angle.

"Spiritually, I do not believe the plan is above board but I think the fact that the Southern Governors have considered the idea of better education to this extent is encouraging," he added.

A. T. Walden, Atlanta Negro attorney, said the principle of regional schools is sound "but we fear it is an effort to get around what should be done for Negroes."

In Memphis, Dr. H. F. Price, president of Lemoyne College, said that regional education could be a good thing but not if it "is a vehicle by means of which the pattern of segregation will be prolonged."

Dr. Benjamin Mays, president of Morehouse College in Atlanta, said "we must be honest and say the schools are being planned to perpetuate segregation, not because of economics."

In Wake of Blast From Above

Sunday Court Is Suggested To Avoid Illegal Detentions

The possibility of Sunday sessions of Municipal Court to avoid illegal detention of prisoners was suggested yesterday in the wake of two Supreme Court decisions affecting District cases.

Chief Judge George P. Barse of Municipal Court was not available for comment, but Judge George D. Neilson of Municipal Court said:

"It may be necessary to hold Sunday sessions to conform with the Supreme Court ruling."

His comment referred to a Supreme Court reversal Monday of a grand larceny conviction because it was based on a confession obtained after the prisoner had been in custody of local police for 31 hours.

In a second case, the court reversed gambling convictions of two Washington men because police had obtained evidence by peeking through a transom although they had no search warrant.

Asked to comment on the cases, both of which date back to 1946, Maj. Robert J. Barrett, superintendent of police, said:

"This happened in June, 1946, and I wasn't superintendent then. We don't do it that way now. We make out an arrest sheet on every person who is locked up now."

Under new procedure, each arresting officer must promptly report the arrest to his commanding officer who then determines if the man is to be held.

Barrett then recalled, to prove his point, the survey made by The Washington Post last year into the number of arrests made by local police for "investigation." The arrest sheet procedure was instituted after The Post survey was made.

[The survey showed more than 13,000 arrests for "investigation" over a 12-month period, with persons held for varying lengths of time, a disclosure which, subsequently brought sharp criticism of the practice from the civil rights committee of the District Bar Association.

[Last July, the committee released a report recommending the District Code be revised to provide that all persons arrested for suspected felonies be taken "forthwith" before a Municipal Court judge or a United States Commissioner.

[For such persons, the committee declared, court processes should be "available night and day, seven days a week. "The Bar Association has not acted on the committee report — Editor's note.]

United States Commissioner Cyril S. Lawrence said of the Supreme Court ruling:

"I am here for the convenience of the District Court judges and primarily my cases involve prosecutions brought by Federal law enforcement officials. It is my policy to be available for those officials at all times. If necessary, I will hold myself available for the police department at night or any other time, but there should be necessity."

Chief Judge Bolitha J. Laws of District Court said he will observe

Accused of Reselling Scrap Metal

Britain, Holland and Belgium Misused Funds, ECA Charges

By Ferdinand Kuhn, Jr.
Post Reporter

For the first time since it was set up last April, the Economic Cooperation Administration yesterday publicly accused three European nations of misusing Marshall Plan supplies.

Deputy Administrator Howard Bruce, acting in Administrator Paul Hoffman's absence from Washington, named the three as Great Britain, the Netherlands and Belgium.

Their alleged offense was that they were reselling to American businessmen, at high prices, aluminum and lead scrap made from metal bought with ECA dollars.

A formal statement from Bruce contained a public warning to Marshall Plan countries generally.

"For some months," the statement said, "ECA has been checking the import into this country of scarce materials being supplied to Marshall Plan countries. Recently it appeared that the amount of this re-export has assumed larger proportions than was found several months ago.

"We feel that unless this situation is explained or brought into complete control, we propose to reduce drastically our allocations to those countries."

Bruce added that he had cabled to Special ECA Ambassador W. Averell Harriman in Paris and to the ECA mission chiefs in the three countries to look into the alleged practice and put a stop to it.

Ralph L. Wilcox, acting head of ECA's non-ferrous metals division, made the accusation specific by saying that the three countries had obtained about 100,000 tons of aluminum and lead with ECA dollars, and had re-exported about one fifth of this quantity as scrap to American buyers.

The Economic Cooperation Act permits the financing of commodity shipments to participating countries "for their own use," but not the re-export of such supplies. It does not, of course, prevent the export of goods processed from American-financed raw materials.

[The Associated Press quoted spokesmen for the aluminum industry as saying that the practice involves a costly cross-haul of the metal to and fro across the Atlantic. They estimate it is costing the taxpayers more than 26 million dollars this year, and the consumers more than two million dollars in premium price payments.

[Although enormous tonnages of aluminum were produced here during the war, the industry now is having difficulty meeting the domestic demand. The spokesmen said drought has cut down the water supply for hydroelectric plants for some privately owned aluminum plants, that some Government built plants have been closed because they could not be operated profitably in peacetime, and that demand for aluminum is soaring as new uses are developed for the metal, such as in the building industry. Over all lies the probability that aluminum must be

Charles Leads Royal Baby's Four Names

London Speculates About Selection; Christening Today

London, Dec. 14 (AP).—Buckingham Palace announced tonight that Princess Elizabeth's baby is to be called Prince Charles Philip Arthur George of Edinburgh, and threw London into a flurry of speculation over the choice of his first name.

The names for the baby, born one month ago tonight, were announced on the eve of his christening Wednesday.

As he is second heir to the throne of his ailing grandfather King George VI, he may rule one day as King Charles III. Therein lay the reason for the speculation, and the surprise.

The two preceding Charleses were Charles I, beheaded under Cromwell as a tyrant, and merry Charles II, the king who "never says a foolish thing, nor ever does a wise one" and who, on his death in 1685, left behind him a trail of dukes by his series of mistresses, including Nell Gwynne.

The last member of the royal family who had Charles for one of his names was Prince John Charles Francis of Windsor, brother of King George, who died in 1919.

The baby was named Philip for his father, Prince Philip of Edinburgh, and George, presumably after King George. Arthur is also King George's third name.

The Archbishop of Canterbury, spiritual head of the Church of England, will officiate at the christening in Buckingham Palace at 3:30 p. m. Wednesday.

Sponsors for the baby will be King George, Dowager Queen Mary, his great-grandmother; Princess Margaret, his aunt; King Haakon of Norway, widower of Princess Maud of Great Britain; Prince George of Greece, who like Haakon is the baby's great-great-uncle; the dowager Marchioness of Milford Haven, his great-grandmother on his father's side; Lady Brabourne, who is the daughter of the Earl of Mountbatten, his father's uncle, and the Hon. David Bowes-Lyon, Queen Elizabeth's brother.

King Haakon and Prince George of Greece will be represented by special envoys.

Celler to Ask End of House Probe Group

Reveals Plan to Seek Rights Body, Instead, After Call on Truman

Representative Celler (D., N. Y.) said after a White House call yesterday that he will ask the House to abolish its Committee on Un-American Activities and replace it with a special committee on civil rights.

He told reporters he will introduce legislation to that end as soon as the new Congress convenes next month.

Celler said the purpose of the proposed civil rights committee "would be to investigate and determine violations of civil rights, either by the Ku Klux Klan, Fascists, Communists or other groups."

Celler said that such a committee "would afford an affirmative approach toward the question, as contrasted with the negative approach of the Un-American Activities Committee."

In response to questions, Celler said he had discussed his proposed move with the President.

Asked about Mr. Truman's reaction, Cellar replied:

"The President expressed no opinion for publication."

But he added, in reply to a question, that he was encouraged to go ahead with his plan as a result of his talk with the President.

Mr. Truman has been critical of the Un-American Activities Committee's handling of the Communist spy investigation. Several times the President has termed the inquiry a "red herring" designed to divert attention from what he called congressional failure to deal with the high cost of living and other domestic problems.

Celler said that if his move to abolish the Un-American Activities Committee should fail, he nevertheless will organize a Judiciary Subcommittee to deal with civil rights. He is to be chairman of the Judiciary Committee in the new Congress.

He said it would be a place "where a man can come and express himself when his civil rights have been filched from him."

Cause of Manhunt

2 Girls, Both 12, Admit Faking Hysterical Sex Attack Story

Two hooky-playing 12-year-old girls stirred up a formidable manhunt in Prince Georges County yesterday before they admitted their hysterical account of a sex attack was a hoax.

The girls, one of them a charge of the District Board of Public Welfare, went AWOL from a Washington institution and wandered into Maryland.

Shortly before noon, they were found lying beside Colesville rd., about half a mile north of Queens Chapel rd. Their clothes were torn and muddied. They appeared to be dazed.

At Leland Memorial Hospital in Riverdale they sobbed out a story of being assaulted at the point of a knife. They described the man.

Prince Georges County police flashed a general lookout to all police jurisdictions in this area. The FBI was notified.

Every available town policeman in the county was pressed into service and at one time 65 policemen were working in the general vicinity of the reported attack. Throughout the county, trucks, buses and streetcars were stopped as part of the search.

Police took 17 suspects to the station at Hyattsville. Police were particularly interested in one man brought in. He answered in almost every detail the description given by the girls.

The girls were picked up on Colesville rd., alongside the Christian Heurich estate, at about 11:40 a. m. by Richard A. Clift, of 3906 Longfellow ave., Hyattsville. He took them to the hospital.

At the hospital, the girls were questioned by County Policemen J. P. Kerns and Joseph R. Hill. They told this story:

They were sitting by the side of the road when a red and green dump truck passed. In it were two men. A few munites later, a man approached them with a 4-inch curved knife and attacked them.

They gave a vivid description of their "attacker," even to a torn

Secret Data On Weapons Given Spies, Mundt Says

Russians Believed To Have Received Aberdeen Proving Grounds Information

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

House spy investigators last night said information "of great military significance" was obtained from the Aberdeen Proving Grounds at Aberdeen, Md., and is believed to have reached Soviet Russia.

Acting Chairman Karl E. Mundt (R., S. Dak.) of the House Un-American Activities Committee, said his group has "oral evidence," involving an unidentified witness believed to be still in the Government, in the alleged proving ground leak.

Mundt said the proving ground leaks occurred about 10 years ago but represented the committee as unanimous in feeling "there is still an espionage ring operating in Washington."

The new development was disclosed in a committee "progress report" voicing hope that the Federal grand jury investigation into who stole top secret Sate Department documents relayed to former Red Courier Whittaker Chambers will indict "all guilty parties" in that case.

"If they have not solved the case," the statement added, "then we call upon the Attorney General to put to work on this case without restraint, the full facilities of the splendid investigative powers and personnel of FBI."

Regardless of any action taken by the grand jury, the committee said it expects to "pursue this investigation relentlessly."

It said Soviet agents "have been aided and abetted by officials and employes of our own Government" whose "crime, in effect, is treason."

The statement said the importance of solving the case of the stolen documents "is highly magnified" by its information on theft of secret data from the Aberdeen Proving Grounds.

The Aberdeen station is a major Army testing ground for all types of guns, shells and ammunition.

Secret Weapons Involved

Mundt said the Aberdeen case involved "our secret weapons" and according to his information occurred around the 1937-38 period Chambers charged secret documents were stolen from the State Department.

Mundt said information on the leak, involving "formulas, descriptions and leading information concerning our hitting and defensive power," has been passed on to the FBI, together with the name and address of the suspect. He said the man formerly was a member of a prewar Communist spy "apparatus" here.

He said none of the purloined documents in the committee's possession relates to the Aberdeen disclosures, however. He added that the witness suspected has been "contacted" but has not yet been fully questioned.

In these other developments the committee yesterday:

1. Questioned an admitted Communist, Mrs. Marion Bachrach of New York, in a continued search for the typewriter they think was used to copy secret papers stolen from the Government. Mrs. Bachrach, sister of John Abt, a leader in Henry Wallace's Progressive Party, denied any knowledge of the typewriter or the "pumpkin papers," but refused to say whether she knew most of the people prominently identified with the case.

2. Announced that beginning tomorrow it will release for publication all but about four of the "pumpkin papers" and other top secret documents Chambers said were relayed to him for transmission to Russia. Mundt said the committee has "cleared" all the documents to be released with the State Department. He said the committee unanimously agreed not to make public the few papers the department still regards as "restricted."

3. Spy investigators said Chambers had disclosed that three or four expensive rugs were given by him to American officials who helped supply him with top secret data. They said his story about the rugs came out in pretrial hearings of the Baltimore libel action against him and in closed questioning by the committee. Chambers was represented as saying he did not approve of the rug gift idea.

New Orleans Mayor Would Like Song To Read, 'South America, Bring It Here'

Down in New Orleans they don't sing "South America, Take It Away"—at least not in the presence of Mayor "Chep" Morrison. It's the words, not the music, that jar the 36-year-old go-getting city administrator. Morrison is doing his utmost to bring Latin America's trade into his home city's growing port.

MAYOR MORRISON
Pride of New Orleans

Morrison, who yesterday was elected president of the American Municipal Association, in session here, came home from the war a colonel at 33—and popped into the national limelight by defeating the supposedly unbeatable Mayor Maestri on a reform ticket.

Next, the athletically built political surprise demanded that the State Legislature legalize gambling in his gaudy, bawdy fun-loving city. When the Legislature turned down the request, Morrison turned around and enforced the local anti-gambling laws for real. Though he didn't quite eliminate all vice from the Mississippi Delta show city, he did succeed in cutting down the rackets, clip-joints, and houses of ill fame.

Such zeal made enemies. Among those who turned on the young reformer was his father-in-law, John S. Waterman, jr. The latter led a futile fight to depose Morrison. Of late, ther's been an uneasy armistice between the two.

Peace in the family is but the short of it—so far as "Chep's" troubles are concerned. The long of it is Earl Long, Governor of Louisiana. Long whipped ex-Gov. Sam Jones, who had been Morrison's political patron, and, on taking office, turned on the protege.

New Orleans—like the District—has virtually no home rule. The State Legislature dominates the city government, and Long controls the Legislature. In the ensuing scrap between the unyielding Morrison and the vengeful Long, New Orleans took a legislative shellacking.

But of late, the city's voters backed up their mayor by giving a 25,000 majority to the opponent of Russell Long, nephew of the Governor and son of the late Huey Long, who was elected to the Senate. In two other recent ballots, three Long candidates for judgeships were defeated, as were the Long-endorsed amendments to the State Constitution.

DeLesseps Story Morrison was named for a great uncle, "Chep." Another great uncle caused the section northwest of the French Quarter to be called "Storyville" because he once sponsored a law legalizing prostitution there.

"Chep," the younger, was reared in New Roads, about 120 miles northwest of New Orleans. Always full of bounce, "Chep" was a high school football star, valedictorian, class leader, and so forth. Although born into the silk stocking set, "Chep" had to sell silk hosiery and take on odd jobs to get through college. He won all kinds of honors and a law degree from Louisiana State University.

After two years of practicing law in New Orleans, "Chep" plunged into politics and in '40 was elected to the State Legislature while plumping for Reform Candidate Sam Jones for Governor. He was reelected in '44 while in Europe with the Army. A Reservist, Morrison had been called up in '41.

Most of Morrison's service in the war was as a port officer. On being elected mayor of New Orleans, "Chep" turned a generous part of his abundant energy to his home port, set out to make New Orleans the gateway for trade with the 20 American republics to the south.

To this end, Morrison has made six trips into Latin America, visited 19 of the countries, talked trade at every opportunity. Our south-of-the-border neighbors found the tall, charming, dark-haired Louisianian "sympatico," "Chep" also appointed ambassadors of good will in 30 Latin American cities, built up International House to cultivate commerce, and set up a department of international relations at city hall. As a result, business has picked up at the New Orleans docks.

Besides the port and politics, Morrison has been pushing a 50 million dollar public improvements program and simultaneously sowing playgrounds and swimming pools around the city.

Next to playing with his own two children, Mayor "Chep" Morrison likes to join the neighborhood kids playing ball on that new playground only two blocks from his home.

Death Sentence Given For Economic Sabotage

Warsaw, Dec. 14 (U.P.)—The director of a state trading office in Wroclaw was sentenced to death yesterday for "economic sabotage."

The director and one of his employes, who was sentenced to 12 years, were said to have stolen 30 tons of sugar and sold it on the black market.

Mayors Delay Stand on Civil Defense Plan

By Sam Zagoria
Post Reporter

The American Municipal Association, in an unexpected decision, yesterday voted to delay taking any stand on the proposed civil defense plan until Federal authorities agree on what type of organization is needed.

The decision was made after a heated discussion of the report prepared by Office of Civil Defense Planning of the National Military Establishment.

The action taken by the association, which represents 9500 municipalities, parallels that of Commissioner John Russell Young, who suspended action on a previously authorized police reserve corps pending further moves by the Federal Government.

The association technical committee on civil defense, headed by Richard Graves, executive director of the League of California Cities, at first proposed that the civil defense organization be the responsibility of State and local governments acting under a plan created by a military agency.

During the discussion, however, Graves roundly scored the civil defense report written by Russell J. Hopley and then spoke in behalf of a motion tabling any expression on the report. Hopley recently resigned after submitting his completed report.

The vice chairman of the Resources Board, Reginald E. Gillmer, was an unscheduled speaker at yesterday's session at the Statler Hotel, and laid considerable emphasis on how to avert civilian panic resulting from dropping of bombs so that important defense plants would not be paralyzed.

Graves was critical of the Hopley report for recommending establishment of uniform reserve corps in all towns of the country without regard to whether they were likely military targets or were merely quiet prairie villages.

The president of Detroit's Common Council, George Edwards, who directed Detroit's civilian defense at the beginning of World War II, suggested that the organization of Federal disaster units for movement into decimated towns might be more practical.

Aubrey H. Mellinger, new director of the Office of Civil Defense Planning, disclosed last night that first reactions from various Federal agencies on the Hopley report disclosed "an honest difference of opinion over whether the civil defense agency should report to the President or the National Military Establishment."

He declared, however, that nine-tenths of first comments favored the over-all lines of the program, including the setting up of the various reserve forces in all communities. Mellinger said he personally was in agreement with the Hopley report and favored placing the agency under the Secretary of Defense.

The municipal officials, during the civil defense discussion, directed the resolutions committee to discuss a statement urging deferments from various services for key city personnel such as engineers, policemen and firemen.

The conference adopted a resolution urging Federal legislation to permit municipalities to collect local property taxes, or in lieu of this to permit the Federal Government to make payments to cities to replace property tax revenues lost through Federal ownership of city lands.

Earlier in the day, Mayor DeLesepps S. Morrison of New Orleans was unanimously elected association president. A veteran fighter for wresting control of his city's management from the State Legislature and returning it to the electorate, he promptly called for home rule for the District of Columbia.

"I favor the right of residents of every muncipality to vote and to administer their own affairs," he told reporters. "Suffrage is an inherent American right. It would be sound policy for the people of our National Capital."

The District problem was also alluded to by Melvin D. Hildreth, general chairman of the 1949 Inaugural Committee. Hildreth invited the town officials to join in the inaugural here January 20 and in so doing declared that "to participate in this conference as a representative of a voteless District is quite a treat."

An association official said the District is not a member of the group, although the three Commissioners had been invited to sit in on the discussions of municipal problems. They have not done so, thus far.

In the evening, the city officials participated in a radio forum on question of housing. Herbert U. Nelson, executive vice president of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, agreed with Senator-elect Hubert Humphrey, jr. (D., Minn.) that Congress should strengthen provisions for aid in financing of new housing and for lending funds for erection of housing by cooperatives and limited dividend corporations.

Secret Data on Weapons Given Spies, Says Mundt

but that he procured them from a local dealer at the insistence of Col. Boris Bykov, who the committee has identified as a Russian secret police official working with the alleged spy ring.

Releasing the committee's four-page statement, announcing its intention to go ahead with the investigation regardless of what action is taken by the grand jury, Mundt said he is convinced the FBI can "crack the case" if given a free hand by the Justice Department.

"They cracked the Dillinger case and the Lindbergh child kidnaping, and this is far more important," he said.

"In our opinion," the committee's formal statement said, "this conspiracy comprises one of the most serious, if not the most serious, of treasonable activities which has been launched against the Government in the history of America."

The statement went on to say the committee realizes it is not an indicting or a prosecuting body—that this "responsibility and duty" rests with the Justice Department, and its police arm, the FBI.

But it claimed its discovery of microfilms of the stolen documents "furnished the link of evidence which was needed to establish that the organization of Soviet espionage conducted in cooperation with members of the Communist Party . . . has been amazingly successful for over 10 years."

It said it was through "relentless and unceasing" investigation on the part of its staff that "documentary evidence was finally produced, establishing beyond any doubt that espionage existed in the State Department in Washington."

It asserted "certain individuals have confessed their part in this espionage ring" and "other individuals involved have talked or will talk confessing their part in this conspiracy."

But the most important thing, it said, is "the discovery, apprehension, indictment and conviction of the individual or individuals who stole the secret documents . . . and passed them on for delivery into the hands of unfriendly foreign powers for the purpose of undermining the structure of the American Government."

Cooperation Offered

The statement then called on the Justice Department "to expedite this matter and to present it to the grand jury for indictment, prosecution and conviction," and offered its "continued cooperation."

It said the American people aren't concerned "over which Government agency gets the credit" but wants the guilty persons "exposed and vigorously prosecuted."

The committee called the present loyalty check being conducted under the President's executive order "simply a name check" against existing files on persons openly engaged in Communist activities and termed it "inadequate to provide the type of security needed.

Summing up, it announced these four goals:

1. Disclosure of all the guilty parties involved.
2. Determination of the extent to which espionage in Government continues at the present time.
3. Disclosure of the full part the Communist Party in America plays as an adjunct of foreign espionage agents.
4. Framing of new legislation to "establish sufficient security" in vital Government departments "and to make continuing espionage and further employment of disloyal people, impossible."

"It is apparent to all," the statement concluded, "that the Communists have much more reason today to intensify their espionage activities in Government than they had in 1938."

The committee had difficulty in extracting any information from Mrs. Bachrach, trim but 50, who identified herself as a writer in the national office of the Communist Party in New York.

She said she was a sister of John Abt, the Progressive Party leader, and former Government attorney Chambers has charged belonged to a Washington Communist "apparatus" before the war.

She was accompanied by Attorney Emanuel H. Bloch of New York. Committee investigators said Bloch previously represented Steve Nelson, Pennsylvania Communist Party leader, before the committee.

Before the committee, Mrs. Bachrach declined to answer when asked if she was a Communist. Later she told reporters she was a member of the Communist Party and "I am proud of it."

Under committee questioning, she declined to say whether she ever knew Mr. and Mrs. Alger Hiss, or any other persons involved in Chambers' charges, on the ground that an answer might tend to incriminate her.

But she told the committee she never loaned a typewriter to Mrs. Hiss or received one from her, that she never copied documents that had been removed from the State Department, and that she never discussed the "disposition of a typewriter" with Mr. or Mrs. Hiss.

She declined to answer when asked if she had ever been in Mr. Hiss' home or had ever seen a typewriter there.

Later she handed reporters a statement she said she had intended to read to the committee.

"I know nothing about the matters under investigation here," it said in part. "All I know about the contents of Mr. Chambers' pumpkin is what I read in the papers."

Her prepared statement went on to say that if what she read was true "certain United States Government officials were attempting to sell out to Hitler" in 1938 and should be exposed, adding:

"This is quite as important as that Mr. Chambers and anyone else truly guilty of conspiracy in his Graustarkian adventures be brought to justice."

Mrs. Bachrach and her attorney tangled frequently with the committee in the hearing. Asked if she knew familiar public figures like Governor Dewey and Mayor O'Dwyer of New York, she readily answered, "No."

But when asked about others, like William Z. Foster, had of the Communist Party in the United States, Miss Elizabeth T. Bentley, who last summer told the committee she participated in a spy ring in Washington, the witness refused to answer.

She said to do so would violate her "right of privacy" under the First Amendment and protection under the Fifth Amendment from self-incrimination.

She refused also to say whether she knew Nathan Witt, Victor Perlo, Charles Kramer, Henry Collins, Nathan Gregory Silvermaster or Harold Ware, all accused by Chambers or Miss Bentley of having belonged to a pre-war underground "apparatus" here.

Nor would she say whether she ever knew Louis Budenz, former managing editor of the Daily Worker, who broke with the Communist Party. She said she knew former Representative John M. Coffee (D., Wash.), but declined to say whether she knew Former Representative Hugh DeLacy (D., Wash.).

Both Mrs. Bachrach and Bloch tried to make fmroal statements at the noisy start of the hearing. Mundt told the witness she could not make a statement at that time. He told Bloch he would not be allowed to talk unless he agreed to be sworn. Bloch said he wished only to "represent my client."

After the hearing both the witness and her attorney lambasted the committee, for what he called "disgraceful" treatment.

"This committee is going to lay another pumpkin just like a bad egg," he said. "In my opinion, for it's worth, that pumpkin business was a fake."

Mrs. Bachrach said she was "a minnow in this fishing expedition."

Acting Chairman Mundt also had something to say after the hearing.

"We thought we could get some information from her concerning the typewriter on which some of the stolen documents were copied," said Mundt.

Implied Threat On Life Told By Chambers

New York, Dec. 14 (AP).—Whittaker Chambers said today a woman Communist party member made an "implied threat" on his life after he left the party in 1938.

Chambers spoke to newsmen in one of the few interchanges he has permitted at the Federal building where a spy-hunting grand jury is in session.

Chambers, an admitted one-time Communist courier, is a top witness before the jury. His charges that Government officials gave him documents for delivery to Russian agents are the basis for much of the inquiry.

Witnesses before the jury today included Adolf A. Berle jr., former Assistant Secretary of State, and Mrs. Whittaker Chambers. Both appeared for the first time as far as could be learned.

In the interview, Chambers said he greatly feared for his family's safety in the months after he renounced his Communist affiliations.

Chambers gave this account of what he called the implied threat on his life:

In 1938 after he left the party, a "white-haired, very venerable, handsome woman" who was a witness at the Chambers' wedding in 1931 visited Mrs Chambers' brother, Rubin Shemitz, a New York lawyer.

The woman told Shemitz that if he would reveal Chambers' whereabouts, "the party" would guarantee the safety of Mrs. Chambers and the Chambers' son and daughter.

Shemitz, however, did not know the Chambers' hiding place outside Baltimore, Md.

This version was confirmed by Shemitz later.

Chambers said he did not come out in the open for a year after he went into hiding, keeping a shotgun handy.

"During that year," he said, "I was doing translating work. I watched all night and my wife took over in the day."

"The children," he added, "worried me particularly—the thought that they might be kidnaped and held until I surrendered. It would have done very little good for me to have surrendered. They would have kept the children."

As for the present situation, the former courier said "I am not particularly apprehensive. The Communist Party is realistic in a coldly realistic way. I don't see anything that they would have to gain."

Chambers said he has no guard and added that his home never had been ransacked nor was any attempt ever made on his life.

Chambers said the Communist party did not know he had the Government documents which he says were obtained from Alger Hiss and other former Government officials. But he added the party might have "suspected" he had them.

Chambers said he engaged the reporters in conversation so that his wife could slip away unnoticed.

Berle, after leaving the jury room, discussed with newsmen a conversation he had with Chambers in 1939 about alleged Communist infiltration in the State Department.

Chambers has said he tried to take his story to the White House, but was referred to Berle in the State Department.

Berle said Chambers definitely did not mention espionage or reveal that he had documents in his possession. He added that he believed Chambers described Donald Hiss as a Communist but not Alger. The Hiss brothers both were in the State Department. Both have denied all of Chambers' accusations.

Chambers said today he told Berle the brothers both were Communists.

Berle also told newsmen Chambers had stated the Hiss brothers were members of a pro-Soviet bloc in the State Department. There was no clear evidence of this, Berle said, adding "the situation then was not the same as it is now."

The grand jury will close out its business tomorrow, a Government official said tonight.

The group earlier was scheduled to wind up Thursday its officially scheduled term of 18 months.

Another jury will be sworn in Thursday if there is a necessity for a continued probe of related subjects, the official said.

2 Congressmen's Mail Favors House Red Probe by 45 to 1

By Bert Andrews

The mail of two members of the House Committee on Un-American Activities was studied yesterday and it showed that 544 citizens of 38 states voted 45 to 1 in favor of the committee's investigation of the Hiss-Chambers case.

All of the letters were postmarked within the last 10 days and their wording made it clear they were written as the result of news stories and radio broadcasts dealing with the clash between the committee and the Department of Justice over the handling of the inquiry.

Facts which stood out included:

1. Acting Chairman Karl E. Mundt, (R., S. D.) received 400 letters approving the work of the committee and eight opposing it.
2. Representative Richard M. Nixon (R., Calif.) leader of the committe 's specific investigation of the controversy between Alger Hiss and Whittaker Chambers, received 132 letters approving the work of the committee and four opposing it.
3. The totals were: 544 letters received; 532 in favor; 12 opposed.

Dutch Delay Decree On Interim Regime

The Hague, The Netherlands, Dec. 14 (AP).—A new note from Indonesian Premier Mohammed Hatta apparently influenced the Dutch government today to hold up a decree forming a federal interim government of Indonesia without participation of the Indonesian Republic.

Contents of Hatta's note were not disclosed but a reliable source said it expressed Indonesian willingness to recognize Dutch sovereignty in Indonesia without reservation during the interim period.

Flareup of Fighting In Indonesia Feared

Paris, Dec. 14 (AP).—The United Nations Good Offices Committee in Indonesia expressed fears today that large-scale fighting may flare again as a result of the breakdown of Dutch-Indonesian negotiations.

In a 1600-word report to the Security Council, the committee left no doubt that a grave situation was developing in the wake of last week's Dutch announcement that further negotiations were useless.

The report reached the Security Council as it prepared to meet Wednesday to consider bids from Israel and Ceylon for membership in the U. N.

Hyderabad Renews Protest

The Council also will be faced with a renewed protest from Hyderabad against India's armed seizure of the princely state in September.

There was no indication when the Council would take up the Indonesian report or when it would consider the membership application received yesterday from the Republic of (southern) Korea.

The Good Offices Committee said it had no confidence that the present level of truce enforcement could be maintained if the Netherlands went ahead with plans to set up an interim government without participation of the Republic of Indonesia.

Could Cause Unrest

"The formation of an interim federal government now without the republic will greatly complicate a negotiated settlement of the Indonesian dispute and could create serious unrest in Indonesia," the report said.

(In Washington, Dr. Soemitro, the Indonesian Republic's chief representative to the United Nations, told a news conference that the Indonesian Republic is ready to resume negotiations with the Netherlands at any time in the hope of settling the dispute.

(He said the Good Offices Commission had been so informed. He also said that "if the Dutch government makes up its mind to have war, we will defend what we have with fierce violence.")

The committee said it saw no possibility of bringing the two parties together again in genuine negotiations. This committee, created by the Security Council, is made up of representatives of the United States, Australia and Belgium.

In East Germany

Reds Arming Police Units, Paper Says

Berlin, Dec. 14 (AP).—The Socialist newspaper Telegraf said today the "people's police" in eastern Germany are being rearmed secretly by Russia on the style of the "Black Reichswehr" after World War I.

The British-licensed paper claimed the real strength of the force was hidden by distributing its men in factories in groups of 5 to 50.

The newspaper said even women are undergoing military training. The "people's police," it said, really is an army designed to fight for communism.

Russian officials and German Communists have denied any disguised army is being organized in the Soviet occupation zone. They countered by accusing the Western Allies of remilitarizing western Germany.

The Telegraf dispatch, datelined from Russian-occupied Saxony, alleged the Russian army had supplied tanks and armored cars for training purposes at the Torgau police school. It added this now is standard equipment for police schools throughout the Russian zone.

'Spy' Figure Linked With UPWA Union

Baltimore, Dec. 14.—Mrs. Eleanor Nelson Soyring, who appeared yesterday in New York before the Federal grand jury investigating spies, did not answer her doorbell or telephone tonight.

A reporter tried unsuccessfully to gain an audience with the woman who was once an official of the United Public Workers of America (CIO) and a member of the executive board of the CIO.

A radio was turned on. A dog barked. And a small child's voice was heard. But there was no response.

A girl neighbor who lives in an apartment above Mrs. Soyring, at 2115 St. Paul st. in Baltimore, was shown a photograph of the "Eleanor Nelson" who testified before the grand jury.

"Yes," said the girl, "that's Mrs. Soyring."

Neighbors said Mrs. Soyring and her son, Charles, 6, live in the apartment. They said her husband's name is Al, that he is tall and blonde, about 38 or 39, quite shy and used to work for a union, a seaman's union, they thought.

They said the husband was a merchant seaman and had been at sea about three months. They believed he was in Arabia aboard an oil tanker.

None of the neighbors—a housewife on the first floor and three working girls on the third floor—knew that Mrs. Soyring had testified in New York, although they remarked that she had gone away last Saturday.

In Washington, it was learned that Mrs. Soyring, a graduate of Wellsley in 1927, is the daughter of the late Rep. John E. Nelson (R., Me.) and a sister of Rep.-elect Charles P. Nelson (R., Me.).

According to the Labor Department, she was appointed a junior industrial economist on August 1, 1929. She resigned her Labor Department job in 1937 to devote her full time to union work.

The year before, she and others were expelled from the American Federation of Government Employes (AFL), so they organized the United Federal Workers of America (CIO). She became president of the UFWA.

When the UFWA merged with State, county and municipal workers in 1946 into the United Public Workers of America (CIO), Mrs. Soyring became secretary-treasurer of the new organization.

Union insiders said a combination of internal politics and ill health led to her resignation from the UPWA last year.

According to the Associated Press, she is Progressive Party national committeewoman for Maryland.

A report of the House Committee on Un-American Activities (the old Dies Committee) in 1944 contained an account of her and what the committee said was her Communist record.

Jap Premier's Resignation Demanded After Diet Scandal

Tokyo, Dec. 14 (U.P.)—Parliament members today demanded the resignation of Premier Shigeru Yoshida after his Finance Minister Sanroku Izumiyama drunkenly embraced two women members of the House of Representatives outside the House restaurant.

Mrs. Haruye Yamashita, 47, took to the speaker's platform in the House last night publicly to accuse Izumiyama. As a result of the charges he resigned from the cabinet and from the Diet (Parliament).

Opposition parties were quick to make political capital of the incident, since Yoshida announced when he took office two months ago that he would rid the government of "scandals."

Has Broad View of Man

Izumiyama's other victim, Mrs. Toshi Matuso, did not accuse him openly.

"I agree there should be a definite etiquette between men and women Diet members, but I do not want to do anything like what Mrs. Yamashita did," said Mrs. Matsuo. "I think most men, after all, are like Izumiyama."

Mrs. Yamashita told a Diet committee today that the Finance Minister came into the House restaurant and began teasing the waitresses.

"I thought he was quite bold," she added. "I exchanged two cups of sake with him. A cabinet Vice Minister came into the room and Izumiyama drank with him.

"Then Izumiyama sat next to me and said, 'It's dull here, let's go out.' He pulled me into the corridor by force."

After a tussle, she said, Izumiyama embraced her.

"Then he did something which I can not describe," she continued. "Then he bit my left cheek. I slapped his face and ran away.

"Just before that, I told him he should not be drunk at a time when government workers were anxious about the new basic wage schedule and the supplementary budget bill.

"But he said, 'When you're drunk you don't give a damn about such things.'"

Arab League Hits Abdullah

Beirut, Lebanon, Dec. 14 (U.P.)—Arab League leaders have declared that Trans-Jordan may be ejected from the league if Abdullah insists on being proclaimed King of Palestine, Cairo dispatches said today.

These leaders said the Arab League will meet next week in Cairo to decide their joint official attitude.

Annexation of Arab Palestine to Trans-Jordan was approved unanimously by the Trans-Jordan Parliament at Amman yesterday but reports from here said King Abdullah will not sign the proclamation until he has tried to reconcile Egypt and the other Arab League states.

In Cairo, one high Arab said the league's charter provides for the ousting of any state which acts counter to the will of the majority.

Meanwhile, usually reliable sources here said at least one British cruiser and two destroyers are steaming about in the Red Sea near Akaba, and that other British ships unloaded tanks, armored cars and other war supplies for Abdullah's Arab Legion.

(In London an Admiralty spokesman said the only British warships in the Red Sea were two escort vessels, one near Akaba. He said he knew nothing of any unloading of supplies.)

Russian Reparations Evoke Bitter Criticism by Italians

Rome, Dec. 14 (AP).—Bitter criticism was cast tonight at the terms of the new Italian-Russian reparations and trade accord.

Giornale d'Italia, independent newspaper, said Russia "has not given up even one small boat of reparations . . . Does not renounce a single centesimo (one hundredth of a lire) of reparations."

A fuller explanation of the accord, announced earlier in the day, was given by David Prato, secretary of the Italian delegation which negotiated for four months in Moscow.

Under the agreement Italy will consign 33 warships to Russia and pay 100 million dollars in reparations.

In addition the accord provides for the exchange by each country of 90 billion lire (about 150 million dollars) worth of goods in three years, beginning immediately. Further, Italy will supply Russia with 60 billion lire worth of specialized products for whose manufacture Russia will provide the raw materials. Russia will also supply raw materials for goods to be supplied toward satisfaction of the 100 million dollars in reparations. Russia will supply 300,000 tons of wheat and 100,000 tons of oats.

There still remains to be negotiated an accord on the value of Italian holdings in the Balkans—Romania, Bulgaria and Hungary—which will be surrendered for part satisfaction of the reparations account.

Russians will contract directly with the Italian firms for reparations goods including small motor boats, fishing boats, electric locomotives, compressors, a small percentage of minerals, sulphur and some mercury.

Prato said the accord would not interfere with workings of the European Recovery Program in Italy.

Russian Trade Pact Signed by Norway

Oslo, Norway, Dec. 14 (AP).—A draft trade agreement between Norway and the Soviet Union was signed in Moscow Monday, the Norwegian Foreign Ministry announced tonight.

The agreement is to run for three years. Norway will export herring, fats and aluminum and receive grain in return. The agreement is subject to ratification by the two governments.

Petrillo Ban Lifted; Recording Is Renewed

New York, Dec. 14 (AP).—Scores of the Nation's top musicians flocked to studios tonight to resume the making of records with the end of the 11½-month Petrillo recording ban.

They had been alerted to start immediately after the signing of a new five-year contract between the phonograph record companies and the AFL-American Federation of Musicians, headed by Petrillo.

After the signing at Petrillo's office here, recording was resumed on both coasts.

Award Will Honor Supersonic Flight

Three men who played key parts in the first faster-than-sound flight airplane will share the 1947 Collier Trophy, commonly rated aviation's highest honor.

The award will be presented at 12:30 p. m. (EST) Friday by President Truman to:

John Stack of Hampton, Va., reseach scientists of the staff of the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics, who did much of the early work on problems of supersonic flight;

Lawrence D. Bell, president of Bell Aircraft Corp., Buffalo, N. Y., whose company designed and built the Air Force X-1 rocket plane used in the experimental flights;

Capt. Charles E. Yeager, test pilot for the Air Force Air Materiel Command, who first thrust beyond the so-called sonic barrier in the X-1 on October 14, 1947.

The Collier Trophy is awarded for "the greatest achievement in aviation in America, the value of which has been demonstrated by actual use during the preceding year."

The winners will be honored along with those selected for other aviation awards at the annual Wright Brothers dinner of the Aero Club of Washington Friday night.

Award of the Collier Trophy, established 37 years ago by a magazine editor, is made under the direction of the National Aeronautic Association acting through a committee representing all major elements of aviation.

Price Supports Stir Farm Parley Fight

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

Atlantic City, N. J., Dec. 14.—The usually staid, quiet annual convention of the American Farm Bureau Federation this year is roaring with strife and politics.

Chiefly the fight is over the federation's sponsorship of a lower level of price supports for farm products—a position taken at last year's convention which elected Republican Allan B. Kline of Iowa as president to succeed Democrat Edward O'Neal of Alabama.

A group of Southern bureaus, headed by Georgia, is fighting to retain price support at 90 per cent of parity, instead of the sliding scale of supports as included in the Aiken portion of the new farm bill.

A still more potent group—the Southern plus the Western members—is urging that the federation not only insist upon the full 90 per cent price supports, but also that it ask that all farm products, nuts, fruits, vegetables and so forth be covered by the price support law. Only so-called basic farm products are now so covered.

Is Headed for Floor

The fight has stirred the annual meeting as it hasn't been stirred in years. Southern members promise to take it to the floor of the convention Thursday—they claim the resolutions committee is stacked against them now. If they do so, it will be the first time in 10 years that any controversial measure has reached the convention floor.

Kline is fighting hard for the Aiken plan of varying supports ranging from 60 to 90 per cent of parity based on supply. Saturday he told the resolutions committee that:

"I play my cards face up. If you want a change, I am not worth a nickel to you and I will not be your president." He is also reported to have threatened to call a closed meeting of the convention to thrash out the matter.

He added that "it would be a poor president" who would go to the new Congress urging a different program than what he had asked this year, and which the Eightieth Congress in its dying moments voted.

See Threat to Resign

Several newsmen took his remarks as a threat to resign. That interpretation of his remarks badly upset him. Twice today—at both the morning and afternoon sessions—he referred to them.

He declared this morning that "the papers the last day or so" have said many things "that just ain't so." He called the Southern delegates "recalcitrants" and added that "Dame Rumor is downright querulous."

Kline opponents are carrying a lot more weight than they did in years past. The rapid growth of the Farm Bureau in the South during the war years, has given them a strength they never formerly enjoyed. The Southern membership now is 433,000 as compared with 653,000 for the Midwestern membership—out of a total of 1,325,000—and the delegates vote the strength of their State units. Not all the Midwest delegates are united on the lower price support program.

Stassen and Aiken to Speak

They point out that outside of Secretary of Agriculture Brannan and Gov. Alfred E. Driscoll of their host State, New Jersey, the program is made up of leading Republicans. Tomorrow the chief speakers will be Harold E. Stassen, the perennial Republican candidate for President, and Senator George D. Aiken (R., Vt.), who would have been chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee had the Republicans won. No Democratic congressional leaders are scheduled. While the business of the convention moves on in apparent harmony on the floor, leaders in various factions are busy seeking votes for their proposals. More of the business is being conducted in the corridors and in hotel rooms than on the floor.

Snyder Urges Perpetuation of Stable Business Trend

Chicago, Dec. 14 (A).—Secretary of the Treasury John W. Snyder today said the Nation's business "is basically sound and shows encouraging signs of stability in the vicinity of the present high levels."

"We must do all in our power to perpetuate a stable business trend," he said in an address prepared for delivery to the National Credit Conference of the American Bankers Association.

"There is today no strong evidence of overbuying by consumers nor of overexpansion by industry. And consumer demand on the whole is still for these times, healthily unsatisfied, and capacity in many lines is still inadequate.

Snyder made these points:

"The fact that our present economic levels are much higher than before the war is no reason for doubting that they can be maintained. We are definitely in a growing economy and previous standards cannot be used to measure or present prospects.

"The prospect of a continuation of the policies of recent years should give the Nation increased confidence in the stability of present high business levels.

"The Nation has a huge task before it. We must meet the normal demands of a growing population with high living standards. We must provide productive machinery to replace that worn out during the war. We must build homes, new hospitals, new churches and schools, and new municipal facilities.

"We must rebuild thousands of miles of highways. In addition to all this we must do our part in the great task of world reconstruction and we must build a powerful defense establishment . . ."

An earlier banker-speaker urged his fellow bankers to proceed with caution in lending.

Horses Sold in Britain Are Mostly for Meat

London, Dec. 14 (U.P.).—The London News Chronicle said today that 8 of 10 horses sold in Britain are for meat and end up as "steaks" in black market cafes.

The newspaper said investigators reported 750,000 horses were sold for food this year and some of the heavy breeds are facing extinction.

It was said the high prices paid by black marketers made it almost impossible for a farmer to afford to buy a working animal.

Foundation Is Created to Tell About the South

Governors Plan To Correctly Inform Rest of the Nation

Savannah, Ga., Dec. 14 (AP).—Southern Governors tonight created a Southern Foundation to tell the rest of the Nation the South's story.

The Southern Governors Conference declared millions of Americans hold "an unfavorable attitude" toward the South "created and perpetuated by untruths and half-truths."

The foundation will "correctly" inform the Nation, a resolution declared, so that "no fair-minded person can be further misled concerning the South." The program would be financed joinly by 15 Southern States.

Oppose U. S. Power Extension

Topping a two-day meeting, the Dixie State executives loudly trumpeted their favorite theme of States' rights. After hearing some fiery barrages against Washington, the conference voted against extension of Federal power in three fields.

The Governors pledged to fight proposed control of the National Guard and United States supervision of tideland oil reserves. They again assailed proposed Federal civil rights legislation.

And they approved new action in their long war over alleged freight rate discrimination against the South and West in favor of the North and East.

Gov. William Tuck of Virginia was elected chairman of the conference to succeed Gov. Preston Lane of Maryland.

The Southern Foundation will be directed by the Governors and two citizens to be appointed by executives in each States within 90 days. The board of control will prepare a budget. No specific sum was mentioned today. The foundation was directed to publish an industrial encyclopedia to speed the flow of new industries to the South.

Earlier, Gov. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina had proposed a Southern Governors Bureau in Washington to fight civil rights legislation in Congress. It was not clear immediately whether the foundation would undertake this task. The Governors took no specific action on Thurmond's proposal, which he said he relayed from an unnamed party.

The Governors were in harmony with Uncle Sam on their familiar States Right theme in only one field. Col. Barnet W. Beers, executive assistant in the United States Civil Defense Planning Office, gave assurance that the national civilian defense program in any new war would give States a top role.

Federal control of the National Guard has been proposed to Secretary of Defense Forrestal by a committee headed by Gordon Gray, Assistant Secretary of the Army.

A resolution branded the Gray report "Un-American, unconstitutional and contrary to the basic principles of our American form of government."

Earlier, Adj. Gen. Milton A. Reckord of Maryland struck at "power-mad big boys in the Pentagon" (Department of the Army) who, he said, would destroy the Guard and American democracy.

Gov. Beauford Jester of Texas cacused some Federal agencies of spreading "false and misleading propaganda" on tideland oil reserve. The conference backed Jester's plea to Congress to hand specific control of submerged coastal lands to the States.

Gov. Herman Talmadge of Georgia presented the resolution again urging Congress to defeat proposals for a Federal fair employment practices commission and Federal laws against lynching, poll taxes and racial segregation.

The Governors decided to employ rate experts and attorneys to help get action on their long war against freight rates which they say favor the North and East. The Interstate Commerce Commission has approved an adjustment in favor of the South, but the Governors said there has been too much delay in putting the changes into effect.

Asked to Reconsider Order

The ICC has been asked to reconsider its order. Governor Thurmond said, "we are on the brink of victory. But we must defeat this proposal to reconsider. That would accomplish nothing and delay our goal for many years."

Governor Jester said a recent court decision in a California case has been interpreted as giving the Federal government power over tideland oil. Unless Congress gives the states control, Jester charged, "this is the kick-off to nationalization of many vital natural resources."

He warned that Federal control would be extended to minerals, fishing and other fields along inland waterways as well as the coast.

General Reckord declared complete Federal supervision of the National Guard would destroy the spirit of state militia. He said federalization would be "building a military monster at the expense of the civil population.

Inaugural Flights Set

Typical couples from many foreign lands will be flown to Washington to observe the 1949 inaugural ceremonies, Stephen H. Harrington, chairman of the Inaugural Transportation Committee announced yesterday.

Couples will be chosen by officials of CARE, nonprofit relief agency, and expenses will be borne by airlines of the Nation, Harrington said.

He also announced airlines have booked 1200 hotel rooms in Philadelphia and plan to shuttle guests here by air for ceremonies.

Plans also call for reservation of hotel rooms in Richmond, New York and Pittsburgh. Airlines expect to offer a "package plan"—the cost to include plane tickets, shuttle service and grandstand seats, Harrington said.

Scott Plans Rebuilt GOP

Hugh D. Scott, chairman of the National Committee of the Republican Party, intends to rejuvenate the GOP.

It is understood that Scott has discussed his project with a few members of Congress and some other party leaders. The rejuvenation and new party program sought by Scott would be obtained by calling a Republican policy conference which would be as representative as a Republican national convention.

The United Press learned Scott will ask the Republican National Committee to issue the conference call when it meets here, probably on January 29.

There already are demands for Republicans disappointed by presidential election returns that Scott resign the National Committee chairmanship. But he has no intention of resigning.

Scott's position is that he was elected chairman last June for a four-year term and he is there for the duration.

It is understood he has promises of support from sufficient committeemen and women to survive any resignation demands which may be made when the committee meets.

His friends are confident Scott's opponents will sense the situation and avoid a showdown.

Charter Vote Ruling Expected by Friday

By Roger B. Farquhar
Post Reporter

The Maryland Court of Appeals yesterday indicated it would decide by Friday the questioned legality of Montgomery County's scheduled January 6 county council election.

Appeal of the charter election case from the Montgomery County Circuit Court which upheld the election Monday was formally noted.

Oral arguments were scheduled for Thursday, and a court attache said a decision would probably be forthcoming before the court adjourns for the Christmas holidays the following day.

Briefs setting forth positions of both the four Montgomery County commissioners, who are attacking validity of the election, and charter supporters were already being studied by the appellate court.

Quick Appeal Made

The briefs were filed only a few hours after the Montgomery Circuit Court issued its decree overriding a contention by the commissioners that the election conflicts with the Maryland State Constitution.

Preliminaries to the election—the first under the county's new charter adopted November 2—meanwhile, were continuing.

Election officials announced 10 candidates had filed for the seven council seats. Monday midnight was the filing deadline.

Three of the candidates, P. G. Ligon, Brinklow, Council District No. 1; Thomas C. Kelley, Darnestown, District No. 3, and Mrs. Ralph Himstead, District No.4, were without opposition.

3 Independents Filed

The three candidates and four others comprise a slate being supported by the County Charter Committee, which sponsored the charter government. The other charter candidates: Augustus R. Selby, Germantown, District No. 2; J. Douglas Bradshaw, Takoma Park, District No. 5; and Frederic P. Lee, Bethesda, and Lewis Meriam, "at large."

Three independents also filed for the council. They are: Mrs. Alma T. Opal, Takoma Park, "at large"; Charles K. Davies, jr., Gaithersburg, District No. 2, and Romeo W. Horad, Silver Spring, District No. 5.

Indians Get 30-99 Years For Raping D. C. Wife

Santa Fe, N. Mex., Dec. 14 (U.P.).—Two Navajo Indians began long prison terms today for raping the wife of a Washington, D. C., man while she lay semiconscious near the wreckage of her automobile after an accident on a lonely highway in the Navajo reservation.

The Indians, Sterling Clark, 27, and Juan Vandeveer, 38, admitted the attack and were sentenced by District Judge David W. Carmody yesterday to 30 to 99-year terms in the New Mexico Penitentiary. The attack occurred Friday night five miles north of Gallup, N. Mex.

$6000 Given In Zionist 'Food' Drive

A total of $6000 in precampaign contributions and pledges for the $40,000 "Food for Israel" drive, was announced last night at the Jewish Community Center, by Rabbi Harry Silverstone of the Congregation Tifereth Israel Synagogue.

Rabbi Silverstone said a check for $4200 was presented to A. S. Kay, chairman of the drive sponsored by the Louis D. Brandeis District of the Zionist Organization of America. The money contributed by the Tifereth Israel congregation was presented to Kay at an executive meeting of the Board of Trustees of the District Zionist group.

The other $1800, Rabbi Silverstone said, has been pledged as part of the local effort to raise $40,000 for purchase of 80,000 pounds of food to be shipped to the Israeli Supply Mission.

Grau Seeks Duel

Havana, Cuba, Dec. 14 (U.P.).—Former President Ramon Grau San Martin today challenged Representative Felix Martin to a duel to defend his honor against charges voiced by Martin yesterday in Parliament.

Alexandria Real Estate to Be Reassessed

The Alexandria City Council last night voted to ask the Virginia State Department of Taxation to make a complete reassessment of real estate in the city.

State officials already have agreed to do the job which they say will take nearly a year. Council Finance Committee Chairman Samuel Luckett said last night it will cost the city $18,700.

The council acted in response to a survey of the State Bureau of Public Administration which showed that real estate in Alexandria is actually assessed at 27 per cent instead of the 50 per cent of its actual value. The 50-per-cent figure is required by law.

A report recently submitted to the council by the Alexandria Retail Merchants Association and the Chamber of Commerce pointed out that if real estate were assessed at 50 per cent of true value, the city would have received $1,400,000 more in revenue in 1948.

In other actions last night the council:

1. Voted to recommend that the State Compensation Board authorize a $350 increase in the salary of Commissioner of Revenue Charles A. Callahan. The council by a 5 to 2 vote censured Mayor William T. Wilkins and Councilman Luckett for having previously urged the State Board not to grant such an increase.

2. Referred to the finance committee a proposal that the city buy the wharf of the Norfolk and Washington Steamship Co., which is going out of business.

3. Instructed City Treasurer Roger C. Sullivan to buy $1,700,000 worth of one-year United States Government bonds and $1,050,00 worth of six-month Government bonds with funds from a $5,250,000 bond issue sold last summer.

Bill May Bar Video In Locomotive Cabs

Norwalk, Conn., Dec. 14 (NYHT).—State Representative Louis A. Lemaire, jr., told reporters today he was making sure locomotive engineers wouldn't be able to while away their runs watching television.

Lemaire said he has written a bill, to go before the Connecticut Legislature in January, providing a $1000 fine for putting a television set in a train or an automobile

Council Uncertain Of Status; Won't Act

Faced with conflicting advice on what legislative powers, if any, they posses, Montgomery County's interim council members yesterday held up a proposal to relax zoning regulations on cooperative nursing schools.

More than 30 mothers attended the council meeting at Rockville to urge the relaxation. The councilmen—former commissioners—listened while four lawyers argued over their authority to act.

Two attorneys, James C. Christopher and David E. Betts, and their own counsel F. Barnard Welsh, told the commissioners they were without their customary authority to adopt any zoning amendment.

They based their opinions on provisions of the county's new charter adopted November 2.

Clark Says Powers Intact

Earlier, however, R. Duncan Clark, a delegate to the Maryland General Assembly, representing Chevy Chase Junior College, contended the charter gives the interim council all powers exercised by them previously including authority to enact the proposed amendment to the county's zoning ordinance.

Clark argued that only legislation previously enacted by the General Assembly is restricted to the a one-month legislative period ordered by the State Constitution for charter governments.

He also claimed that additional authority for immediate enactment is contained in the State law setting up zoning practices in the county.

Welsh Cites Court Decree

Attorney Betts, representing nursing coops affected by the proposed zoning amendment, and Christopher, speaking for nursing homes similarly affected, based their arguments on a contention that under charter legislation can only be enacted during May of each year.

Welsh cited a Montgomery County Circuit Court decree handed down Monday which ruled that only the first elected county council under the charter can "pass, amend and repeal" local laws.

Spokesmen for the 30-odd mothers representing more than 12 cooperative nurseries, urged relaxation of a requirement which would force all such schools of more than 20 pupils to have an area of 30,000 square feet.

College Building Delayed

Clark said Chevy Chase Junior College had been delayed six months in a building program by the present ordinance but could proceed if the amendment were adopted.

Acting on a request of County Treasurer John B. Diamond, the Commissioners approved a plan whereby interest rates on delinquent taxes will not be imposed until 30 days after tax bills are mailed.

The delay was necessitated, officials said, by failure of the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission to submit front foot benefit assessments which must accompany the tax bills.

Tax bills for all county property have been mailed out except for land in the outlying districts of Wheaton and Bethesda, Diamond said.

Resignation of Whiteford Accepted by Welfare Board

Resignation of H. Clay Whiteford as chairman and member of the Prince Georges County Board of Public Welfare was accepted yesterday by Prince Georges County Commissioners, meeting in Upper Marlboro.

Whiteford asked that his resignation be made effective not later than January 10.

He said that pressure of private business activities made it imperative he resign from the board. The resignation was accepted with regret.

A League of Women Voters request that the commissioners authorize an economic study of the county by the Bureau of Business and Economic Research of the University of Maryland was rejected. The commissioners said they felt such a survey is not needed at this time.

Exemption from taxes of a lot at 3809 35th st., Mount Rainier, owned by the Mount Rainier Methodist Church, was approved.

At public hearings, held yesterday by the commissioners, no opposition was voiced at to enlargement of Special Improvement District 12 in West Lanham Hills, and no protests were presented to street improvements proposed for Special Improvement District 30, Deanwood Park. Both changes were granted by the commissioners.

Man Slays Wife, 2 Other Women, Turns Gun on Self

Portsmouth, Va., Dec. 14 (U.P.).—A husband, separated from his wife four days ago, followed her here by taxicab from Kentucky today, killed her, her mother and sister, and critically wounded himself.

In front of his terrified 2-year-old daughter, Leon Caldwell, 35, of Burdine, Ky., shot his wife to death, then whipped his gun around and fatally wounded the other two women, officers said.

Police battered down the locked door of the sister's apartment to find the daughter, Carolyn, sobbing over the body of Mrs. Delores Caldwell, 25-year-old mother of three children.

Mrs. Pearl Stout, 50, of Burdine, lay dying and Caldwell was sprawled unconscious nearby.

Neighbors said Mrs. Ruby Culbertson, Mrs. Caldwell's sister, fled screaming down the outside back stairs. Halfway to the ground she crumpled, and her body tumbled to the bottom of the stairs, where she was found dead.

Police said the Caldwells separated four days ago and Mrs. Caldwell came here. Yesterday, Caldwell telephoned his wife and asked her to return. She refused to do so immediately, but said she would think it over, police said.

Ewing Says AMA Faces Losing Fight

New York, Dec. 14 (U.P.).—Federal Security Administrator Oscar R. Ewing said tonight that the $3,500,000 being raised by the American Medical Association to fight compulsory national health insurance is money "down the drain."

He told the fifth anniversary dinner of Sydenham Hospital in a prepared address that the election gave President Truman the "green light" to go ahead with the program, and the medical group may as well realize it.

The association voted at its recent St. Louis meeting to raise the war chest through a $25-a-head assessment on member doctors.

Ewing said that actually there is no reason why the Nation's doctors should oppose compulsory health insurance. Patients still will be free to choose their own doctors, he said, and the only difference is that a public fund will pay their medical bills.

Doctors really would benefit, he claimed, because they would be relieved of the "somewhat painful process" of collecting their fees.

The Federal security chief also put in a strong plug for hospitals to open their doors to Negro doctors and for the construction of more hospitals.

Although 10 per cent of the population is Negro, he said, less than 2½ per cent of the doctors graduated are Negroes. He said this situation would solve itself if hospitals followed Sydenham Hospital's lead and admitted Negro internes.

"Under present conditions it is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle than it is for a Negro to be admitted to the majority of our medical colleges."

Childless Told 1 in 5 Couples Needn't Be

New York, Dec. 14 (AP).—One out of every five involuntarily childless American couples can have children. One in seven cannot.

The others are in a no-man's land where present scientific knowledge might be of some help.

This summarize a report today by Dr. William T. Kennedy of the Planned Parenthood Association of America. The figures are based on 8483 couples who went to one or another of the medical advisers recommended by the association.

Of those applying, 1614 have had children and another 1478 are still under treatment. The one-in-seven figure covers those the doctors found it useless to treat.

Dr. Kennedy said it is probable that there are in the United States three million involuntarily childless couples, and that 600,000 of them could have children if they knew of present treatments.

Nine U. N. Fellows Wind Up Their Six-Month Study of Child Welfare and Health at FSA Bureau

Nine United Nations fellows, including the female physician to Mahatma Ghandi, wound up a six months study of child welfare and health in this country yesterday at the Children's Bureau of the Federal Security Agency.

The fellows, four from China, three from India, and two from the Philippines, are the first to have visited this country under the Advisory Welfare Services Program which was authorized by resolution of the General Assembly in December 1946.

The group studied juvenile delinquency, prenatal clinics, probation, construction of orthopedic appliances, divorce laws, child guidance, welfare administration and a wide variety of other subjects.

From Mountains to Coast

Traveling separately, the fellows visited widely separated areas of this country in pursuit of their studies, from the mountain wilds of Kentucky to metropolitan Los Angeles.

They return to their native lands this week, prepared to make recommendations to the governments which selected them for the fellowships and the U. N. which financed their studies.

From India, Dr. Sushila Nayar, a woman, who was imprisoned from 1942 to 1944 and then retained as Ghandi's physician, studied the organization of rural medical relief in this country. Thozhuth Lonappai Kochavara, Bombay probation officer, studied juvenile delinquency and its remedies. Vallath Krishan Menon, ras province, devoted his time to probation superintendent for Mad- United States probation systems.

DDT Produces Tougher Breed Of House Fly

New York, Dec. 14 (AP).—A new breed of house flies is beginning to pester Americans—and the flies were produced by DDT, the great fly-killer.

This new finding in the use of DDT was reported to the American Association of Economic Entomologists today by W. V. King and J. B. Gahan, of the United States Bureau of Entomology and Plant Quarantine.

These new flies have developed resistance to the killing powers of DDT, despite the fact that it is the most potent single insect killer ever known.

The bureau gathered house flies from numerous parts of the United States and tried killing them with various concentrations of DDT.

The flies from those places where DDT had been used in previous years were often harder to kill than the flies whose ancestors had never walked in the stuff.

The flies that figuratively laughed most at DDT came from the bureau's laboratory at Orlando, Fla., where they had been specially raised to see whether they would get used to the stuff. It's easy to do. Just give enough to kill most of the flies. Save those that are left. They survived because they were harder to kill in the first place. They pass this toughness on to their offspring, and presently you have a new breed, and need a new poison.

King and Gahan said the Government scientists are working with three new fly poisons now.

Homolka Drops Suit Against Divorced Wife

Los Angeles, Dec. 14 (AP).—Actor Oscar Homolka today dropped a $22,442 suit against his divorced wife, the former Florence Meyer, when attorneys disclosed certain personal property had been returned to the actor.

Attorneys Jerry Giesler and Robert A. Neeb, jr., told the court Mrs. Homolka, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Meyer of Washington, D. C., had returned personal effects, papers and manuscripts Homolka wanted. The Homolkas were divorced in 1946.

Protests on 4 Apartment Zoning Requests Expected at Prince Georges Hearing Today

Hearings on requests for apartment house zoning of four large tracts in Prince Georges County will be held at 10 a. m. today in the County Service Building, Hyattsville, Md.

A delegation of citizens is expected to urge that new apartment house zoning be halted until adequate schools are provided for children already living in the areas.

Scheduled for airing at the hearing before the county commissioners are requests for: Rezoning of more than 19 acres on Chillum rd., near Sargeant rd., Michigan Park Hills, together with commercial zoning to serve the proposed 394-unit apartment expected to cost approximately $5,000,000; apartment house zoning at New Hampshire ave. and University lane, Takoma Park, where a 1400-unit apartment is planned; 12 lots at the southwest corner of 42nd ave. and Oglethorpe st., and a half-acre tract on Silver Hill rd., west of Porter st., Crosier Gardens, Suitland, all for apartments.

The county board of education at its meeting yesterday voted not to take a stand in any particular zoning request, but to urge consideration of school needs when such requests are acted on.

The board had been requested to study a proposed housing development in which provision for a school site has been made.

'Woodlawn' Fund Aided By DAR Unit

The drive to "save Woodlawn for the Nation" was helped along yesterday with the contribution of a $1000 check by the Mount Vernon chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

The DAR presented the check to a representative of Woodlawn Public Foundation, Inc., at a ceremony on the front porch of Mount Vernon. The ceremony marked the 149th anniversary of George Washington's death.

The Woodlawn foundation has been given until January 3 by Fairfax County Circuit Court to raise the $170,000 necessary to buy the estate near Fort Belvoir.

The Woodlawn estate is the one Washington gave to his adopted daughter, Nellie Custis.

Unless the foundation raises the necessary funds, Woodlawn will be sold by the estate of the late Mrs. Oscar Underwood to private buyers.

A spokesman for the foundation which hopes to make Woodlawn a public shrine, said contributions ranging from $1 to $1000 have been flowing into the fund from patriotic and historical societies, school children and professional groups all over the country.

George M. Morris, Washington attorney and former president of the American Bar Association, is chairman of the foundation's board of trustees. Included on the board are Senator Harry F. Byrd of Virginia, Attorney General Tom C. Clark and Maj. Gen. U. S. Grant, 3d.

Law to Require School Change

he preferred that boxes be located within school buildings but had not expressed a view on what type box should be used.

He reported that 17 schools now virtually are lacking in fire protection since boxes are located a block or more away from the buildings.

The nearest box to the Key Elementary School, Hurst ter. and Dana pl. nw., is three blocks away, he said.

The committee reaffirmed a stand that a 24-classroom building is needed to replace the old Stanton Elementary School, rather than a 16-room building recommended by Dr. George D. Strayer.

Mrs. Philip Sidney Smith, committee chairman, said that Dr. Strayer now favors the larger building.

Count Indicates Need

A count of preschool children in the area indicates a need for the 24-classroom structure as well as continued use of a 10-room temporary, it was said.

The committee agreed that school officials should act with the Recreation Board in urging the Commissioners to order land cleared adjacent to the Stanton School for additional play space. The land now is occupied by temporary housing under the Defense Housing Authority.

The committee also approved plans for an all-season swimming pool to be built by the Recreation Department adjacent to Randall Junior High School.

U. S.-Born Teacher Slain in Malaya

Kuala Lampur, Federation of Malaya, Dec. 14 (AP)—American-born A. M. Blake, headmaster of the Serendah Boys School near here, was slain Monday night by insurgents who burned his body in his residence.

The charred skeleton of Blake, who gave up United States citizenship to become a Briton, was found by police today in the ruins of his house. They said he had been shot dead.

Blake, 31, was born in Boston. He was a medical instructor in the Canadian army in the war. After the war he gave up United States citizenship to work with the "Save the Children Fund," a British benevolence.

Regulations Eased On Cost Contracts For U. S. Projects

The armed forces and the National Munitions board last night announced new and more liberal regulations for cost-type contracts let without competitive bids.

The regulations apply to research and development contracts, supply and material and construction cost-type contract. They will permit contractors to include "reasonable and necessary costs" in the bill they present to the Government.

Tired Kidneys Often Bring Sleepless Nights

Doctors say your kidneys contain 15 miles of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. When they get tired and don't work right in the daytime, many people have to get up nights. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder. Don't neglect this condition and lose valuable, restful sleep.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may also cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, used successfully by millions for over 50 years. Doan's give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Shortage Is Acute

Social Work Training Need Cited

Only 35,000 of the 150,000 persons holding position in social work are adequately trained.

The shortage of social workers is greater than that of teachers, nurses, doctors, dentists or physicists.

Dr. Ernest V. Hollis, chief of college administration for the United States Office of Education, yesterday cited these among reasons for a study of social work education to be conducted by the National Council on Social Work Education.

At Opening Meeting

He spoke before the National Advisory Committee on the Study of Social Work Education which held its opening meeting at the Federal Security Building.

The committee of laymen and educators will set the pattern for the survey which will be financed by the Carnegie Corporation.

At yesterday's meeting the committee agreed that a major section of the report should be devoted to recruitment of social workers both at the graduate and undergraduate level.

Costs of setting up schools of social work also will be surveyed with the idea of encouraging colleges and universities to establish schools.

Dr. Hollis said that at present there are 65 organized schools of social work annually graduating two thousand trained personnel. He pointed out that extension of social legislation indicates that the need for workers will become more acute.

Among Washington residents serving on the committee are Social Security Commissioner Arthur J. Almeyer; Mrs. Eugene Meyer, wife of the chairman of The Washington Post; the Rev. Raymond A. McGowan, director of the National Catholic Welfare Conference's Social Action Department, and Dr. A. J. Brumbaugh, vice president of the American Council on Education.

Convict Beheads Another He Says Threatened Life

Angleton, Tex., Dec. 14 (AP).—A kitchen worker at Retrieve Prison Farm today confessed he used a cane knife to behead another prisoner in the mess hall.

Ernest Cleve Jones, 33, told Warden I. K. Kelley he killed Charles William Redwine, 38, last night after Redwine twice had threatened to kill him.

Redwine was killed as 200 inmates filed from the mess hall following the evening meal.

County Board Gives School Fund Approval

A requested $60,000 emergency appropriation for Montgomery County school maintenance was tentatively approved last night by Montgomery County Commissioners.

In promising the funds, if they are available, the board rejected the legal advice of its counsel, F. Barnard Welsh, and castigated County Supervisor I. G. McNayr, who told school officials the funds would be withheld.

The move followed a request by County Schools Supt. Edwin W. Broome, who told the commissioners recently that school maintenance funds would be depleted by January 15.

Appointed to investigate availability of the funds, McNayr told Superintendent Broome he had been advised by Welsh that the commissioners could not consider appropriating such a large sum while sitting as an interim council under the county's new charter.

Advised of the ruling, the school board, at its regular meeting requested reconsideration and warned the county's school property would suffer if the money were not appropriated to finance upkeep in the school buildings for the remainder of the fiscal year.

The five commissioners said that McNayr "overstepped his bounds and had no right to tell the school board what he did. We will make every effort to give them the money."

The school board instructed officials to estimate the cost of putting into effect changes called for in a proposed county-wide fire code.

The Gallup Poll

China Crisis Seen Threatening Peace

By George Gallup
Director American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., Dec. 14.—A survey conducted among typical voters concerning the critical situation in China reveals the following attitudes:

1. Prior to Madame Chiang Kai-shek's arrival in the United States, approximately 80 out 10 of the voters questioned had heard or read about the civil war in China.

2. The fighting in China is considered a real threat to world peace by the majority of voters expressing an opinion on the subject.

3. A substantial number thinks that the Chinese Communist forces take their orders from Moscow.

4. Sentiment is about evenly divided on a five-billion-dollar program of aid to the Chiang Kai-shek Nationalist government—one of the amounts which was being talked about in Washington just before the survey was conducted. Since then the extent of proposed aid has been revised downward, some officials saying that the Chinese seek a three-billion-dollar aid program over a three-year period.

With opinion on a five-billion-dollar program about evenly divided, presumably sentiment throughout the country would be more favorable to the lesser sum.

Interviewing in the survey took place during the period November 25, December 2 on the following questions:

"Have you heard or read about the civil war in China?"

Yes	79%
No	21

Knowledge of the situation varies sharply according to degree of education, as the following shows:

Germans Protest Bill for Lingerie

Duesseldorf, Germany, Dec. 14 (U.P.).—German authorities of North Rhine-Westphialia State complained that 20,000 items of ladies' lingerie should not be billed to them under "occupation costs."

The underthings were on a long list of things which, the Germans said in a memorandum to occupation authorities, could hardly be classed as proper costs of occupation troops.

Maj. Gen. W. H. A. Bishop, local British military governor, said he sent a detailed summary of the German complaint to Gen. Sir Brian Robertson, his commander in chief. Other British officials said the lingerie items were legitimate ones, which went to army post exchanges.

GU Studying Its Economic Value to D. C.

The economic value of Georgetown University to the city is under study by the school as the first step in a fund raising drive.

Dr. James Ruby, alumni executive secretary, said yesterday he is conducting a poll of selected students to find out how much money the school brings into the community.

The survey will show how and where students spend their money as well as the sums paid out for university purchases, Dr. Ruby said.

Cashed checks and accounts handled through the student bank alone show a business of $1,800,000, he said.

Incomplete returns indicate the average students has a monthly income of $95 and spends $20 of that for food and drink off campus. He spends $11.80 a month for clothing and about $4.80 for newspapers and cigarettes.

Results of the survey will be shown to businessmen benefiting from the school's trade to interest them in expanding the school, it was said.

Fear of End in Poorhouse Fading, Psychiatrist Finds

Hartford, Conn., Dec. 14 (U.P.).—The fear of winding up in the poorhouse is fading as a cause of mental breakdowns, Dr. C. Charles Burlingame, nationally known psychiatrist, said today.

The feeling is growing among many persons, he said, that the Government owes them a living.

Dr. Burlingame, president of the Institute of Living, stated that "Every man has a breaking point, but that it is being raised higher in those persons who formerly feared the poorhouse."

Many crackups, he said, are caused by the placing of men or women emotionally immature into jobs involving high responsibility and continual mental stress.

He said also that too many executives are "self-whippers"—men who set a goal for themselves that they are emotionally undeveloped to attain. These men, he said, have a low-breaking point.

Most persons on the verge of cracking up, he said, "need some good, old-fashioned belly-laughs at their own mistakes and the realization that a setback is not a world-shaking event in their lives."

Cattle Sprayed With DDT, BHC Yield More Beef

New York, Dec. 14 (AP). — DDT and BHC, another bug-killer, grew 60 million extra pounds of steaks, ribs, roasts and other eating beef in Kansas this year.

This was done by two 5-cent sprayings per head of Kansas beef cattle this summer. The result was an average of 50 pounds more meat and bone on the animals, for which the Kansas farmers got an average of 30 cents a pound.

This big step toward obtaining more meat, and also having more grain for European relief, was described to the American Association of Economic Entomologists by Ray L. Cuff of Kansas City, Mo. He represents the National Livestock Loss Prevention Board.

Cuff explained that the cattle produced the extra 50 pounds simply because they got rid of flies and lice. This, he said, made them not merely contented cows, but doubled the time during which they could eat while out at pasture.

Perrell Case Expected to Reach Jury Today; It's Rape or Nothing, Judge Declares

The Perrell rape case is expected to reach a District Court jury today.

Accused of raping the 31-year-old wife of a park policeman, Elvid H. Perrell, 26, a farmer from Bear Creek, N. C., did not take the witness stand in his defense as his attorneys closed their case.

Judge Henry A. Schweinhaut ruled out the possibility that the jury might find Perrell guilty of assault with intent to commit rape.

"As I see this case, it is either rape or nothing," said Judge Schweinhaut.

He said he will tell the jury they can find the defendant guilty of rape, with the death penalty, guilty, or innocent.

"I will not give the jury an easy way out," said the judge.

According to the alleged victim's testimony, Perrell forced her into his car, struck her, threatened her and then drove 2 miles before raping her. The threats were not repeated during the drive, it was said.

The judge ruled the "fear of death or grave bodily harm" had to persist in the woman's mind at the time of the attack.

"But," he said, "it is perfectly silly to hold that she must beat her brains out" in resisting.

In defense, Perrell offered the character testimony of two ministers, a North Carolina sheriff, and two neighbor-businessmen who testified that the defendant had a reputation for morality, peace and good order.

The prosecutor is John C. Conliff, jr. Defending are lawyers Charles E. Ford and Wesley E. McDonald.

Driver Faces Rape Charge

An Alexandria bus driver was charged yesterday with raping a 23-year-old married woman Monday in her room at an Alexandria boarding house.

Identified by police as Thomas Campbell, 29, of 1309 King st., a driver for the Alexandria, Barcroft & Washington Transit Co., he was held in $5000 bond for arraignment i. Alexandria Police Court this morning.

Police said Campbell Monday afternoon visited a fellow bus driver who has a room in the same house where the woman lived. The fellow bus driver left the house to do an errand and about 5 p. m., police said, and it was during his absence that the attack allegedly occurred.

The woman told police she was lying down on her bed when Campbell entered the room and attacked her. He left her room, she told police, when the friend return to the house.

Police arrested Campbell yesterday morning. They said he denied attacking the woman.

Palestine Progress

In the early days of the dispute over Palestine, we hazarded that "Emir Abdullah of Transjordan holds the key to Jew-Arab understanding, and that the British hold the key to Emir Abdullah." At long last the keys have been used. On Monday Abdullah was proclaimed King of the Hashimite Kingdom of Transjordan and Palestine; in other words, he has annexed Arab Palestine. This had always been in the cards, but had been frustrated by the energy of the great powers in pushing the Emir into the arms of the Arab League, which, in view of Abdullah's action, faces dissolution.

The Arab League a year ago was widely touted by some of our diplomats and our military as a formidable combination capable of proclaiming and leading a jehad, or holy war. The French feel that some of these "experts" sought to create the thing they contemplated. At any rate, there was some activity in their North African possessions that seemed to smack of encouraged Arab League politics. But the Arab League never did have any cement. In great part of British creation, it was composed of hardly reconcilable elements. Abdullah could not forget that King Ibn Saud of Saudi Arabia robbed his family of their rightful kingdom, their native Hejaz. He likewise was at dagger's point with the man who runs the so-called Arab Higher Committee for Palestine which pled Arab Palestine's case at Lake Success, viz, the Mufti. Both Ibn Saud and the Mufti have done everything in their power, by intrigue and otherwise, to bring about Abdullah's downfall. Abdullah knew where his true interests lay, and, now that he has been given his head by the British, has picked up the Palestine rump, preliminary, no doubt, to coming to terms with Tel Aviv.

The step at Amman will facilitate the work of the U. N.'s three-power Conciliation Commission. Significantly Turkey, the most stable of the Middle Eastern countries, is a member of it. Turkey, which has stood up magnificently to the Moscow threat, has a great interest in promoting pacification in her former territories, for weakness in those lands adds to the dangers to her own independence. Moreover, Turkey is the country through which the United States could work in developing a regional setup in the Middle East capable of cooperating with the United States in river conservancy. Now that the powers seem to have stopped playing strategical politics, they might begin playing development politics.

Lessons From Paris

Any assessment of the results achieved at the Paris session of the United Nations Assembly must count certain items in the plus column. The declaration on human rights, the convention on genocide, the continuation of the "Little Assembly," the resolution condemning Balkan intervention in Greece and continuing the Balkan Commission, recognition of the government in southern Korea, and continuation of the disarmament and atomic energy commissions just about complete the list of positive actions.

Against these must be put the overriding failure—in which the Assembly has been neither more nor less impotent than other agencies—to bridge the gap between East and West. The gap has been dug deeper, not bridged. The Assembly brought out a solidarity not previously visible among the non-Communist countries. Delegates not only showed themselves unperturbed by the customary outpourings of insult and distortion from the Vishinsky team but regularly stood up to be counted against the Russian positions. This may be taken as pretty clear vindication of the United States insistence on forcing every issue to a clear showdown.

It should be taken in Moscow as an equally clear demonstration that Russian diplomacy sustained a rebuff at Paris. Both the Kremlin's actions in the field, especially in Berlin, and its tactics in debate served to alienate the would-be neutrals. If the Politburo is capable of applying rational thought in assaying the results at Paris, it will promptly order a switch of diplomacy and a different course of action. Whether it will or not remains to be seen.

Muscular Research

The United States Army and Harvard University have been on a two-year anthropometrical spree, and with shocking result. Harvard scientists have measured and photographed 105,000 soldiers in an effort to find out, among other things, how to tailor uniforms that will fit the American male. In the course of the investigation some other findings have turned up.

These have to do with the question of where the biggest muscles grow—geographically, that is. Up till now we have gone along with the idea that Texans or Californians or Westerners in general were the big and strong as well as the loquacious men of this Nation. Not so, the Harvard yardstick reveals. The abode of heavy muscles is in the neighborhood (extended) of Cambridge, Mass. New England, the erstwhile center of culture, is now the home of the manly physique. The Mountain States, the Pacific Coast, and the Southwest have been muscled out.

And where does Washington come in? At the bottom of the list. The South Atlantic area, including the District of Columbia, has the highest concentration of physical weaklings. This is what we mean by calling the result "shocking." Are the male inhabitants of this neck of the woods lacking in virility? We reject the very idea categorically, however much the batting average of the Washington Senators makes it look that way.

Decline Of The Franc

Inflation in France is driving down the franc at such a clip that the fortunes of the Queuille government are once again in jeopardy and a serious issue is posed for ECA. Inflation is usually regarded as a money problem; that is, too much money competing for too few goods. Some part of the French inflation problem is, to be sure, due to this phenomenon. In order to cover expenses for which taxes are insufficient, the government has to depend upon the printing press, so that money is put in the hands of the public instead of being taken out of them. But this does not explain the fall in the franc—from the official rate of 314 to 512 in the black market. Depreciation of confidence in the government is what accounts for the currency slump. The drop is the more significant because the Queuille government is showing some sense of responsibility by seeking higher taxes as an alternative to reliance on printing-press money.

The fact is that the Queuille government is regarded almost as a caretaker government pending the outcome of the struggle between Communists and Gaullists which is the stuff of French politics. In these circumstances hoarding is at a premium. It is estimated that 80 per cent of the dollars that Americans as tourists and visitors bring into France goes into individual hiding places. The money is thus made unemployable for the purchase of American materials needed for more and better industrial and agricultural production. France also obtains dollars for such purchases by exporting French goods. But here again the French are inactive, keeping too much production at home for domestic consumption, and relying upon Marshall dollars to pay for imports. In this respect the contrast between austerity Britain and extravagant France is startling.

If the main object of the Marshall Plan is to make the beneficiaries independent, the Marshall Plan appears to be failing in France. The test will come in the present debate on the tax proposals. If the Queuille government is not able to put through its tax program, the Marshall Plan, one fourth of which is for French benefit, will be reduced to a crutch and a convenience for France. In other words, the purpose of the Marshall Plan will be defeated, and future appropriations may be imperiled. If only the French would realize this! The Marshall Plan is based on help for self-help, but, if performance is lacking, help becomes merely an excuse for nonaction, leading to a condition of chronic mendicancy. In the interests of France no less than of America, it would be well, in such circumstances, to wind it up. It is authority that France needs, the kind of authority that she got from Poincare in 1926. Authority would breed confidence now as then, and the franc, the currency of a nation potentially richer than any in western Europe, would recover its intrinsic health.

Asian Commission

In breaking off all negotiations with the Republic of Indonesia, the Dutch government is risking bloodshed in Java and censure from other nations. Its patience at an end and its confidence in Republican good faith never very strong, The Hague has decided to go ahead with the scheduled creation by January 1 of the United States of Indonesia—without the republic unless the latter comes in on Holland's terms. The Dutch are said to be ready for the worst that can come, apparently believing the worst will not be very bad.

A report from The Hague quotes a Dutch government source as expressing conviction that its ultimate aims are identical with the policy of the United States in the Far East. Insofar as these look to the restoration of the East Indies as a functioning and highly productive element in world economy and to the discouragement of communism in the area there can be no question of identity. On the aim of assisting colonial peoples to achieve independence, there may not be too great a discrepancy, since our policies and practices have been at least as ambivalent as those of the Dutch.

On the matter of tactics, however, there is probably not so much reason for confidence that the Dutch and American governments see eye to eye. Washington has been pressing the Dutch to negotiate and compromise to the limit, on the ground, among others, that self-government in the Indonesian Republic is one of the best guarantees against Communist exploitation of anti-imperialist sentiment. The Dutch have been reluctant to do this, and now the "police action" of 1947 appears to be a renewed possibility—even a probability, judging from the report of the U. N.'s Good Offices Committee.

It seems fairly clear that the immediate parties will not reach a settlement unless some third party—perhaps a United Nations instrumentality having more powers than the Good Offices Committee—is present to keep them from each other's throats. At the same time the United States and the Netherlands are about to ally themselves with other western European nations and Canada in the Atlantic pact. It is most important that we and the Dutch not get involved in a squabble over the East Indies situation. For an effective machine to operate in this area the Caribbean Commission offers an excellent model. It has been doing good work in another once-colonial region, and the unity of purpose it embodies, if applied in southeast Asia, might be just as effective there.

Mayor's Mischief

The President has every right to rap the knuckles of Mayor Morrison of New Orleans for the sentiment he put in Mr. Truman's mouth about President Peron. In spite of the admonition of the city's public relations director, evidently startled by his chief's temerity, the Mayor implied that the President was interested in inviting Peron to Washington, adding that he had expressed "a very friendly attitude toward Mr. Peron." These words will be flashed all over this continent. And though the Mayor does not know it, they will work considerable damage to our prestige, coming as they do on top of the call that Foreign Minister Bramuglia was invited to pay at the White House. Already the Latin Americans are asking how this country stands toward the pretensions of the strutting Argentine dictator as the first among equals below the Rio Grande. They see him infiltrating into one country after another, buying a newspaper here, a radio station there, encouraging every kind of adventurer that will stir up trouble. They are already concluding, from the way we are losing our continental standing to Peron, that we are taking the chieftain of the pampas to our bosom. Mayor Morrison's comment will add to the misgivings of our Latin friends, and play Peron's game at America's expense.

The New Orleans hierarchy seem to think that by being boosters for Peron they will boost New Orleans business as the inter-American port. The last time we had occasion to note New Orleans' activity in this connection was when Mr. Higgins made himself a plenipotentiary. Even more egregious is the Mayor's self-assumed activity. It is bad enough to act like an intermediary, it is worse to make noises like a principal, in order to get him involved. The Mayor's impropriety, coming at this time of inter-American delicacy, merits a rebuke. If the Mayor wants to serve his country, and is sufficiently palsy-walsy with Peron, let him persuade the Argentine dictator to ratify the Rio pact, stop his veiled aggressions at the expense of the Latin neighbors, relax his unfair treatment of American business, and abandon his hijacking of a hungry world. That would be the best way to help New Orleans, too. Mayor Morrison is an estimable man and a fine Mayor, but neither attribute qualifies him to assume the responsibility of interpreting the President's mind.

Pernicious Appendix

The country may well be grateful to the solitary elector from Tennessee who at the meeting of the Electoral College deserted the Democratic ticket to vote for Governor Thurmond. That elector demonstrated the dangers as well as the archaic nature of the present way in which the Electoral College operates. To be sure, the Tennessean had not hidden his Dixiecrat sympathies, but the fact remains that his name appeared in the Democratic column, and many voters must have cast their ballots for him accordingly. And there was nothing to prevent other electors from switching their allegiance except tradition and usage—restraints that may be thrown off in times of tension or when an election is close. The hole in the electoral system stands urgently in need of repair, and we hope the President will include the reform in his State of the Union message.

Not only must this uncertainty be removed lest the popular choice be voided; occasion should also be taken to revamp the Electoral College system. This could be done without interfering with our Federal structure and its provision for voting by States. The change needed is to see to it that the minority vote in the States gets its due share in their electoral vote. That is to say, the electoral vote, instead of being cast in a block even for the candidate who gets only 50.1 per cent of the ballot, should be divided according to the relative strength that the candidates demonstrate. The Lodge amendment provides for such a change. If the amendment were made a part of the Constitution, more people would be encouraged to vote, results would bear a truer relation to the figures, and presidential candidates would be relieved of the need to court special interest groups in the big-population States.

This latter consideration has loomed bigger since the United States became a great power. With 47 votes in New York at stake, it is inevitable that presidential politics should be concerned with appeals to big blocks of voters in the Empire State with an overriding interest in some particular cause. The President would earn the gratitude of his successors if he threw his weight behind the Lodge amendment. This would help the President to be truly a national President thinking only of the national interest.

BEAUTY GOES WITH SOFTENED TREAD

Beauty goes with softened tread;
They hear her not, the noisy dead.
She passes like a wind, a flame,
And none has called her by her name.
They shout, they cry, they run, they leap,
Unresting in a restless sleep,
And many a phantom shape pursue
For beauty. A few, only a few
Will listen, waking with a start
To feel her footsteps through the heart.

Proximity Fuse

On December 11, The Washington Post published an article on the resignation of Dr. Cledo Brunetti from the staff of the National Bureau of Standards. There were several errors which I hope can be corrected.

The article credits Dr. Brunetti with development of the proximity fuse. No one scientist can be given credit for this. Many individuals made important contributions. Several types were developed and the basic ideas originated both in England and the United States.

The American work originated at the Department of Terrestrial Magnetism of the Carnegie Institution of Washington. Later the developments for non-rotating projectiles were carried on at the National Bureau of Standards, while those for rotating projectiles were made by the Applied Physics Laboratory of the Johns Hopkins University at Silver Spring, Md.

The fascinating story of this important development can be found in the book, New Weapons for Air Warfare, edited by Dr. J. C. Boyce, of New York University, for the National Defense Research Committee.

The article also credits him with the invention of printed electric circuits. Work on this orginated in discussions between engineers of the Globe Union Co., of Milwaukee, Wis., and Dr. Alexander Ellett, then of the National Defense Research Committee. Dr. Brunetti has, however, played an important part in extending postwar applications of printed circuits.

It was stated that Dr. Brunetti's Government salary is $9500, whereas it is $8509.50 a year. As to the statement that he "never received a cent for developing the proximity fuse" it should be remarked that, whatever views one may hold as to the adequacy of Federal salaries, it was for precisely his part in this work that the Government was paying him his salary.

Georgetown Prep

Recently, one of the most unfair, least sportsmanlike actions I have ever observed took place here. I have reference to the selection of the local prep school football team for the city championship game against Central High.

On the basis of the season's records of Gonzaga and Georgetown Prep it is more than a little mysterious why the former was chosen. It appears that because Georgetown was unable to complete its schedule it forfeited its right to be selected. This, although if the canceled game had been played against Gonzaga, resulting in a loss for Georgetown, the latter would have had a far more impressive record than Gonzaga on which to base its claim of championship.

In fact, before the unfortunately canceled game, the slighted Prep had most clearly deserved the award, and to deny it the championship because of the unfinished schedule makes no more sense than to deny a big-league pennant to the winners simply because the schedule, due to rain, could not be completed after the pennant had been clinched.

Food For Propaganda

In the world-wide struggle against communism, we have just presented the Soviet propaganda machine with three significant victories: (1) the role of our military and oil interests in the recent Venezuelan coup; (2) the official invitation to Argentina's Bramuglia to visit Washington, and (3) our U. N. vote against the Indonesian republicans.

Soviet radio broadcasts will doubtless use to the fullest advantage President Gallegos' statement that the United States military attache and United States oil interests aided the Venezuelan military clique in its overthrow of the representative government. Before we continue to deny such statements and thereby to give the Soviet machine another resounding victory, we would do well to examine the possible truth of President Gallegos' charges.

At the very moment when Chile is presenting proof of Argentine complicity in an attempt to overthrow the stanchly anti-Communist and pro-U. S. Chilean government, we invite Argentina's Bramuglia to Washington with considerable fanfare.

Finally, we chose this moment also to vote against the admission of the Republican government of Indonesia to the U. N. although the entire Far East, including the Philippines, Australia, New Zealand, and, of course, the U.S.S.R. favored the admission. This will be one more choice tidbit for the Soviet propaganda machine in its campaign to prove that we are now supporting oppressive monarchies—against which we fought in 1776.

Chinese Communists

Without reference, at the moment, to the subject of Chiang Kai-shek or the National government of China, would not The Washington Post render a service by bringing to the attention of its readers statements which appear in the Report on Strategy and Tactics of World Communism by Subcommittee No. 5 (Hon. Francis P. Bolton, chairman) of the Committee on Foreign Affairs of the House of Representatives (released a few weeks ago and available at the United States Government Printing Office), as follows:

On Page 1: "Chinese communism is regular communism. Its doctrines follow those of Lenin and Stalin. Its leaders are Moscow-trained. Its policies and actions, its strategy and tactics, are Communist. The Chinese Communists have followed faithfully every zigzag of the Kremlin's line for a generation."

On Page 2: "The Chinese Communist Party is as much a branch of world communism as any other Communist Party in the world. This is written across the record of both the Chinese party and the Comintern, in doctrine and policy, in organization, in personnel, in activity. Later parts of this study will show that the record is unbroken by any evidence of change. The mystery is not: Are they really Communist? It is only how the question can be raised by any informed and sincere person. It has never been raised by Communists."

Segregation In Washington

It is heartening to read the report of the National Committee on Segregation in the Nation's Capital. I had the pleasure of hearing Dr. Lohman speak about the report last summer. At that time he pointed out the inconsistencies of this segregation pattern.

At one place Negroes could sit in the audience but not act on the stage, while at another place they could act on the stage but not sit in the audience. On streetcars and buses where all people must necessarily mingle and touch, segregation is not practiced, whereas the sole, isolated person, the motorman, must be white.

As one who has been asked to move to another side of the church and who daily sees the crippling effects of segregation on the thinking, health, and actions of young children, I am grateful to the committee for its report.

GRACE H. SMITH.

In the story which appeared in The Washington Post, November 11, regarding the forgotten civil rights law of 1872, your reporter mentions that no similar statute covering admission to theaters could be located.

In June, 1869, the Corporation of Washington enacted the following statute:

"It shall not be lawful for any person or persons who shall have obtained from this corporation a license for the purpose of giving a lecture, concert, exhibition or circus performance, theatrical entertainment or for conducting a place of amusement of any kind to make any distinction on account of race or color as regards the admission of persons to any part of the hall or audience room where such a lecture, concert, exhibit or entertainment may be given.

"Provided that any person applying shall pay the regular price charged for admission to such part of the house as he or she may wish to occupy and shall conduct himself or herself in an orderly and peaceable manner while on the premises; and any person or persons offending hereto in shall forfeit and pay to the corporation for each offense a sum of not less than $10 and not more than $20, to be collected and applied as are other fines."

This statute, which was incorporated into the laws of the Territory of the District of Columbia in 1871, may be seen in the Code of 1873 under the heading, "Chapter XI, Title XII."

In view of the attention now being focused upon civil rights in the District and the probability of legislation being introduced to regulate them in the January Congress, it would seem important that the corporation counsel should consider the validity of the statutes of 1869 and 1872 and determine how their status has been affected by the Organic Acts of 1901 and 1911.

In the Presbytery of Washington City the equality of Negro ministers and Negro members with the rest of us is quite a matter of course. A few years ago an honored Negro pastor served his term as moderator of presbytery, presiding at meetings of presbytery, at ordinations, at the installation of pastors and of officers of presbyterial societies. We counsel together, pray together, eat together. What is true of Presbytery is true, I doubt not, of most if not all of the Chrisitian bodies in the District.

Obviously in the community there are white churches and colored churches, as there are white neighborhoods and colored neighborhoods; a situation for which the church is not responsible. And there are social classes and personal preferences and sundry barriers other than race, which are very difficult to overpass.

The writer intends no excuse for prejudice nor justification of "superior" people. But he knows of no considerable body of men who are more eager to overcome divisive barriers and to promote one wide fraternal fellowship than the Christian church.

Biological Birthdays

By Malvina Lindsay

Workers' Age Shackles

SOCIAL PROPHETS are increasingly crying in the wilderness that something must be done about the rapidly growing number of older workers. That has raised the questions: Just who is an older worker? When should a working man or woman be retired?

Unless industry shakes off its hidebound thinking concerning calendar age, the younger population of the country will eventually be carrying on its back, either by taxes or direct support, most of the people past 50 or even 45. For the tendency of employers, especially when work slackens, is to retire workers earlier and to lower the age for hiring.

This puts a great number of older workers on the loose—and should therefore concern those pompous citizens who for a half century at least have been greeting every reduction in working hours with the warning that Satan lies in wait with those with "too much leisure." This warning has been aimed chiefly at the younger working class. Nevertheless middle-aged or elderly people leading dependent, idle, frustrated lives could as well find mischief to do, especially in the field of meddling or bossing in family affairs, or fostering blocs and pressures in politics.

AS YET neither Government, industry nor medicine has done much planning for the day—probably around 1980—when, if present working standards prevail the country will have a potential labor surplus of 30 million workers. It might even have more as a result of future labor-saving devices and medical discoveries, warns Dr. Theodore G. Klumpp, president of Winthrop Stearns, Inc. Dr. Klumpp, like other students of the problem, believes a new outlook on age is needed in industry. He would have retirement boards pass on individual fitness to continue to work rather than have automatic retirement by chronological age. He would also have job adjustment and retraining for workers as they get older, and a general 30-hour week.

New Zealand is already experiencing the problem of a large number of unproductive elderly—one in eight inhabitants being past 60. Harold Palmer of the New Zealand State Department of Psychiatry, recently proposed that employers get together and work out a means of using the talents of these older people, also that the medical profession and welfare agencies develop a coordinated social program to meet the problems of the older population.

There is general agreement among authorities on older workers that the most satisfactory way of taking care of them is to keep them productive as long as possible. In doing that the first step to be taken by industry, the public and the elderly themselves is to escape the psychological slavery of calendar-age thinking. For this causes the economic waste of many older people who are retired, prevents the hiring of many middle-aged and elderly who have valuable contributions to make, gives the older worker a sense of fear and inferiority, and even discourages him from keeping up his up his physical and mental development.

DR. EDWARD Stieglitz, authority on geriatrics (the science of aging), calls hiring and retiring by chronological age standards "grossly illogical" and "stupid." He points out that generalizations can be applied to the old with much less accuracy than to the young, since with increasing years variability increases. Thus some employes who age prematurely should be retired early, while those in whom senescence is retarded should continue to use their skills, which frequently are enriched by their experience and judgment.

Dr. Stieglitz admits that the problem of measuring physiological age has not yet been solved. He believes, however, an experienced physician can give a general clinical judgment on an employe that is more valuable than one based merely on chronological age.

Since many physicians and students of the older-worker problem are urging more emphasis on physiological age, this is likely to come eventually. One of its results will be more health-maintenance activities in industry—a movement now rapidly developing in big concerns. It should also bring about recognition of the fact that people change with age, and must be adapted and retrained for different types of jobs at varying periods of their lives. One of its best results may be that workers will have a greater incentive to build physical and mental health in themselves as a means of retarding their biological birthdays.

"The Gracious Note"

Your December 10 editorial, "The Gracious Note," is in excellent taste and most timely. One could wish that the gracious note might oftener be heard when the representatives of labor and capital come together to discuss their problems. Then there would be fewer cases of destructive strikes, which are really a species of civil war.

Men entrusted with leadership should be sufficiently large-minded to see both sides of a difficult question, and they should be lovers of peace. The soft answer is still effective in turning away wrath while grievous words, unfortunately often heard in these days, still stir up anger.

Washington Calling

Hindsight On China

WHILE we may be treated later on to furious political denunciation, there is little disposition at this stage of the China crisis to try to make political capital out of that vast tragedy. Conscientious Republicans on the congressional watchdog committee are well aware of the grim realities behind the collapse of the Nationalist armies.

Childs

Their calculations show that this country, during the past two years, has sent upward of two billion dollars to China in aid of one kind or another. A large proportion of this aid has eventually fallen to the Communists.

Whole armies have surrendered and have bought immunity from the conquering Communist forces by turning over American military supplies. No one can say with any accuracy the exact percentage of the two billion dollars that ultimately ended in Communist hands, but it is certainly high.

Republicans who have studied the situation are, for the most part, agreed that nothing can be done to save Chiang Kai-shek at this late date. An exception is Representative Walter Judd of Minnesota, who spent many years in China as a medical missionary. Judd believes that if Chiang would consolidate his forces in South China, that area could be preserved with massive aid from the United States, sent immediately by every possible means.

KNOWLEDGEABLE Republicans such as Senator Alexander Smith of New Jersey, who have given careful study to the China debacle, realize that there is blame enough to go around. Part of the responsibility for the failure of American policy must fall on those who continuously belabored official policy-makers with charges of communism and accusations that they were undermining Chiang.

This increased the timidity of those in the State Department who have tried since the end of the war to work out a sensible course. They felt powerless to move in any direction. At the same time, all their reports from China indicated that the Generalissimo was doing everything he could to undermine himself.

American policy-makers used every power of persuasion to dissaude Chiang from carrying out the kind of currency reform he put into effect some months ago. United States experts were convinced that the reformed currency could not be sustained and that a second collapse would have even more disastrous consequences than the inflation that was then raging.

This is exactly what has happened. What was left of middle-class savings has been largely wiped out. Recent news reports from China have told of the wave of defection among middle-class, and even wealthy, Chinese who now feel they have nothing to lose from the sweep of communism.

All this was perfectly foreseeable six months or even a year ago. Then the Republicans were denouncing the Administration for not sending more aid to Chiang.

THOSE who deal in the perfect wisdom of hindsight undoubtedly will still try to use the China stick to beat the Administration dog. One such is William C. Bullitt, whose current mission to China was authorized solely by Senator Styles Bridges, chairman of the watchdog committee.

Other committee members say they were not consulted even by telephone. Bullitt's expenses are being paid out of committee funds. Although he was a part of the Roosevelt Administration, first as Ambassador to the Soviet Union and then to France, he has written bitterly partisan attacks on the Roosevelt-Truman conduct of foreign policy for Life magazine. It is expected here he will use the same forum when he returns from China.

Bullitt flew to China with Nevada's incredible Senator George Malone. Malone gave an interview in China the other day in which he said that American ERP materials were being fabricated in ERP countries in Europe and then sent to the Soviet Union, which promptly sent them to China. There are few, of course, except bitter-end isolationists, who would take that seriously.

Certainly, grievous errors have been made. Decisions taken at Yalta, resulting partly from overestimation of Japanese strength, did incalculable harm. But these errors of judgment were based on the best information available to responsible military planners and not, as those who seem to delight in distortion and vilification would have us believe, as part of some sinister plot.

The bipartisan foreign policy is just as important for Asia as it is for Europe. It is not yet clear what can be salvaged in China. But a constructive American approach to southeast Asia becomes more and more urgent with the virtual certainty of a Communist-dominated China. Such a policy will not be possible under the suspicion, the attack and the counterattack of the past three years.

Separate Political Drives Scheduled by AFL and CIO

By The Associated Press

The AFL and CIO laid out separate programs yesterday for asserting their renewed strength in politics and on Capitol Hill.

Both think they are in the strongest position in years as a result of the November 2 victory of President Truman and the election of a Democratic-controlled Congress at least pledged by a party platform to repeal the Taft-Hartley Act.

The labor groups take credit, with farmers, for a share in that result.

Removal of the Taft-Hartley law from the books and restoration of the Wagner Act is the avowed aim of both labor federations.

Private All-Day Parley

Here are yesterday's developments, behind closed doors and for the most part closely guarded in detail:

1. The CIO's nine vice presidents met all day with President Philip Murray and Secretary-Treasurer James B. Carey. A committee of three, including Carey, met with Secretary of Labor Tobin yesterday presumably discussing how far the CIO was willing to go in amending the old Wagner Act if it is put back in business.

2. The AFL Political League administrative committee of 30 union chiefs approved some changes in the league's by-laws so it could launch a sweeping political "education" drive for votes in 1950, financed by a 10 per cent assessment on the more than seven million members. Already $125,000 has been collected and $20,000-a-year Director Joseph D. Keenan said at least $675,000 would be contributed to finance the 14-month campaign. The money will be spent on a daily radio program and publication of a weekly newspaper, among other things. The campaign will extend to February 1950.

Refuse to Discuss Talks

3. A five-man committee of the AFL paid a second visit to Secretary of Labor Tobin to discuss a substitute for the Taft-Hartley Act. The group, headed by President William Green, refused to discuss their talks.

Tobin's conference with the AFL representatives was another in the series of daily meetings with union leaders on the Taft-Hartley situation. The secretary told newsmen yesterday that he was lining up suggestions for President Truman for the President's state of the Union message to Congress.

Tobin also said his "door is open" to leaders of independent unions, including John L. Lewis, and spokesmen for industry.

The secretary had a one-hour conference yesterday morning with President Joseph A. Beirne of the Communications Workers of America, the biggest independent union in the telephone industry.

Other Conferences Lined Up

Other conferences have been lined up with A. F. Whitney, head of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, which has 12,000 bus drivers subject to the Taft-Hartley Act; Arthur Lyons, secretary of the Railway Labor Executives Association; and Al J. Hayes, vice president of the International Association of Machinists.

Assistant Secretary of Labor John W. Gibson threw out some broad hints of Administration thinking at a speech to the Bronx Rotary Club in New York City this afternoon.

Gibson said that repeal of the Taft-Hartley law "will go a long way toward improving labor-management relations."

He said that free collective bargaining could be obtained without Government interference and the parties "will be able to bargain once again on such issues as the union shop, closed shop and welfare and pension plan."

Matter Of Fact

By Joseph And Stewart Alsop

"Strong Controls—Much Higher Taxes"

BEHIND the White House scenes, the President's right and left wing advisers have been locked in another of their languid but embittered struggles. The issue has been the President's policy on economic controls and taxation. And the outcome can apparently be summed up in the six bleak words—strong controls and much higher taxes.

In these palace battles, even the composition of forces is sometimes difficult to discern exactly. But there are signs, nonetheless, that the present struggle has shown an interesting variation from the previous pattern.

The leading advocates of boldness have been the White House counsel, Clark Clifford, and Dr. Leon Keyserling of the Economic Advisory Council. These two devised the 10-point inflation-control program which the President offered to the special session of Congress in November, 1947, against the virtually unanimous advice of his Cabinet. Their position thus remains unchanged, as does Truman's reliance upon them.

It is a change, however, that the Cabinet has remained largely aloof, except that Secretary of the Treasury John Snyder has given his customary advice to go slow. And it is also an important change that the chief champions of caution have this time been Dr. Keyserling's chief, the chairman of the Economic Advisory Council, Dr. Edwin Nourse, and the Director of the Budget, James Webb. The line-up discloses the existence of two schools of thought about national policy, both beginning with almost the same assumptions, but divided on the crucial points of timing and range of governmental effort.

THE GREAT advantage of the "go fast" faction has been their previous successes, prior to the fall session last year and the summer special session this year. Perhaps a greater effort might have been made by the "go slow" group on those earlier occasions, if they had regarded the President's messages to the two special sessions as anything more than statements to clear the political record. They were well aware the messages would not be acted upon by Congress then. They are more than a little rueful to discover that these mere scraps of paper of the past have now become a program for positive action by a President just triumphantly elected with a strong sense of mandate.

The economic controls for which the President will ask the Eighty-first Congress are in fact the same controls that he fruitlessly proposed to the now fallen but once so complacent Eightieth Congress. In November, 1947, and again last summer, he pressed a wide-ranging and ambitious plan. It included controls of consumer credit and bank credit; regulation of commodity speculation; materials allocation and inventory controls; strengthened rent controls, selective price controls and standby powers to ration scarce goods.

At the summer special session, the last Congress acted only in a limited way on the recommendations for controls of consumer credit and bank credit. The other recommendations were ostentatiously not considered. But they will be considered this time. The President now speaks with the confidence and authority of his great personal victory on election day. He means to fight for the program which was once laughed off as mere election-year politicking.

HE WILL fight also for much higher taxes. The Democratic congressional leaders blanch at the mere thought, but within the Administration the need for higher taxes is unanimously admitted. The question is not whether taxes must be raised, but how. The Treasury has little liking for excess profits taxes, which inevitably penalize new enterprises with no earlier record of good revenue. But on the issue of the higher corporation taxes favored by the Treasury versus the excess profits taxes favored by the "go fast" faction in the White House, the advocates of the stronger course again have the same advantage. The President recommended an excess profits tax to the special session last summer.

The mere preservation of consistency is not the only argument being used for excess profits taxes, however. Industrial profits have risen from 12.5 billion dollars after taxes in 1946, which was then an all-time high, to another all-time high of 18.1 billion in 1947, to a third estimated all-time high of 21 billion this year. These huge profits for industry are considered strongly inflationary. They are also an open invitation to labor to make further inflationary fourth-round wage demands. Tax the profits and halt the inflationary cycle, has become the watchword.

The aim is to raise as much as five billions of added Government revenue by new taxation. The projected excess profits tax is not expected to produce more than about half this sum. Thus it is probable that upward revision of individual income taxes will also be proposed. Straight repeal of the Knutson tax reduction bill is thought to be impracticable, but middle and higher bracket taxpayers will probably lose a good deal of what they have gained.

Clearly, these will be unpalatable pills for the Congress to swallow. Yet it is pretty hard to answer the reasoning of the President's "go fast" advisers when they point out that in the midst of world crisis, prudence demands strong measures to prevent any disastrous upset of the vital American economy.

Truman Attilude On Peron Termed 'Very Friendly'

De Lesseps Morrison, Mayor of New Orleans, said at the White House yesterday that President Truman had expressed a "very friendly attitude" toward President Peron of Argentina.

David McGuire, public relations director for the City of New Orleans, interposed to say:

"You had better watch that statement, Mr. Mayor."

Mayor Morrison gave no indication that he had heard McGuire. Continuing his talk with reporters, he praised Peron's fight against the Communists and expressed the hope that Mr. Truman would invite the Argentine leader to visit the United States. He said it would improve trade between Argentina and the Port of New Orleans.

Steel Official, 93, Starts 74th Year With Same Firm

Coatesville, Pa., Dec. 14 (AP).—Spry 93-year-old Charles Lukens Huston today began his seventy-fourth year of continuous service with the Lukens Steel Co.

Huston went to work in 1874 as a clerk at the plant his grandfather founded. He became a bookkeeper and gradually rose through the ranks to first vice president, the position he holds today.

As he does on every other day of the year, Huston walked to his office from his home near the plant.

Huston remembers going to the plant in 1872, when he was 17 years old, to wheel coal and help with other mill chores without pay while on summer vacation from school.

4 Hollywood Pickets Jailed, 27 Are Fined

Los Angeles, Dec. 14 (AP).—Five Hollywood film strike pickets were sentenced to jail and 27 others—one a woman—were fined as a climax to two years' litigation to reverse the sentences.

The strikers fought the convictions through to the U. S. Supreme Court, where they were denied a rehearing recently. They had been convicted of violating a court order prohibiting mass picketing at Columbia Studio in October, 1946.

Municipal Judge Byron J. Walters, who issued the original sentences, yesterday ordered Emil Freed to serve one year in jail. Henry Klette, Sheldon Kelsey, Jack Brooks and James Kane were given six months each. In addition to violating the court order, they were convicted of failing to disperse and disturbing the peace.

The AFL Painters and Carpenters Union paid the fines, totaling $8600. Bench warrants were issued for three other defendants who failed to appear.

Labor Dept. to Report Peaceful Settlements

New York, Dec. 14 (AP).—Assistant Secretary of Labor John W. Gibson said today the Labor Department is starting a new project to keep tab on labor peace.

Gibson said the department's bureau of labor statistics will make regular reports on peaceful settlements of labor disputes to "show the other side of the picture" in contrast with the bureau's strike statistics reports.

The Assistant Secretary, in remarks prepared for the Bronx Rotary Club, said the public often thinks labor-management relations "are continuously in a state of belligerency" whereas thousands of disputes are regularly settled peacefully in collective bargaining without coming to public notice.

Gibson said the Taft-Hartley law is an example of "illogical thinking," and said its repeal will go "a long way toward improving labor-management relations."

Officers Approve Phone Strike in Southwest

St. Louis, Dec. 14 (U.P.).—International officers of the Communication Workers of America have approved a strike of 50,000 Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. workers if it becomes necessary to reach a contract settlement, union negotiators announced here today.

Joseph A. Beirne, international president, wired approval of the organization's executive board from Washington yesterday. Union members in five Southwestern States already have voted 4 to 1 in favor of a walkout.

Plant Raid Probe Planned By Democrat

Kalamazoo, Mich., Dec. 14 (AP).—A new, Democrat-backed probe of the December 1 CIO raid on the struck Shakespeare companies plants here was promised today.

Representative John Lesinski (D., Mich.), who takes over leadership of the House Labor Committee January 3, said he would conduct a hearing.

He called a recent two-day investigation by Representative Clare E. Hoffman (R., Mich.) a "bluff" and said Hoffman "had no more authority than a rabbit to make his investigation."

But Hoffman, in Washington, went right ahead with his hearing. His one-man subcommittee announced that Philip Murray, CIO president, would be subpenaed as a witness.

The Republican Congressman wants to ask Murray what, if anything, he knows about the raid, during which 300 unionists invaded the two plants, injured seven persons, overturned cars and burned and damaged property.

The companies, which make fishing tackle and auto parts, plan to sue the CIO United Steel Workers for $45,000 as a result of the raid, their attorney has announced.

The USW-CIO accepted responsibility for the raid, but spokesmen blamed the violence on what it called strikebreakers, imported by the companies.

About 700 CIO members walked out of the plants last September in a dispute over contract terms. Wages were not an issue. The company since put the plants back in operation with about 500 employes.

Circuit Judge John Simpson of Jackson currently is conducting a one-man State grand jury quiz into the raid.

Hoffman was a member of the House Labor Committee in the Eightieth Congress. However, when the Democratic majority moves in January 3, he becomes a minority member of the committee, if he remains on it at all. Lesinski becomes chairman.

Lesinski told newsmen that "I understand the strikers haven't been given a fair deal."

He told a steelworkers rally that he came here to "see what the hell happened during that raid."

A "full scale' congressional investigation was promised by the Detroit Democrat, who added that he would subpena "labor, management and, if necessary, the grand jury and judge and even the police."

He set no date for it to begin.

Bigamy Case Appeal Attacks Md. Law Basis

A 29-year-old Greenbelt, Md., man who was sentenced to 18 months for bigamy after he got a Reno divorce and remarried charged yesterday that the basis of his conviction was unconstitutional.

Lawyers for Jack Slansky, sentenced last June by a Prince Georges County Circuit Court jury, blamed a provision of the Maryland constitution that permits juries to act as judges of both fact and law.

After six weeks' residence in Reno, Slansky was granted an uncontested, absolute divorce on April 20, 1946, from his first wife, Mrs. Sima Lerma Slansky of Alexandria, Va.

Married 6 Days Later

Six days later he married Juliet Warmack, 27, at Hyattsville, Md. He was arrested and indicted in April 1948 on bigamy charges brought by his first wife.

Counsel for Slansky yesterday told the Court of Appeals at Annapolis that the law under which he was convicted makes a judge "a mere figurehead."

He charged "a town moderator" or a jury foreman "could perform all the functions of the judge under such a system."

Attorney General Hall Hammond replied that all criminal convictions in Maryland for the past 80 years would be void, and "this State must be plunged into chaos," if the claim is upheld.

Maryland is one of two or three States where juries rule on the law involved as well as the facts. As a result, judges have long refrained from instructing juries as to the law in criminal cases.

Woman Victim

1946 Slayer Is Held Sane, To Leave Jail

A 27-year-old laborer who killed the woman he loved and then twice failed at suicide attempts will soon be released from District Jail.

He is William H. Barber, 27, who in 1946 was indicted for the first-degree murder of Mrs. Katie Powell English, 24, 1521 1st st. sw.

Judge Richmond B. Keech of District Court ruled that when Barber shot Mrs. English, Barber was of unsound mind and therefore could not be tried for it. Last month, District psychiatrists announced that Barber was now sane and yesterday the indictment was dismissed.

According to Assistant United States Attorney Oliver O. Dibble, Barber was mustered out of the Army a few days before the shooting. After killing Mrs. English, Barber turned the gun on himself, but it jammed, it was said. He then slashed himself with a penknife on the wrists and over his heart, but recovered.

In a suicide note incorporated with the indictment, Barber said that Mrs. English had been unfaithful and had stolen $50 from him.

"When I told her I knew, she begged me to kill her because she can't make up for the loss she caused me," the note continued. "The public doesn't give two cents now that the war is over—especially for a colored veteran like me."

strictly the lines set down by the higher court ruling, declaring:

"I have no jurisdiction over the police department and the prosecutor and I have not read the decision other than newspaper accounts of it. It is my position at the present time that my court is apparently not affected.

"I cannot tell Major Barrett how long to hold prisoners or anything like that. However, if the police department or anyone else brings illegal confessions or other illegal evidence into court, I will throw it out under the Supreme Court decision."

United States Attorney George Morris Fay declined to comment until he has read the Supreme Court opinion, but added:

"I will read the opinion and then determine whether any action should be taken. If the Justice Department wishes my aid in drafting legislation defining the extent of time in a legal arrest, I will, of course, cooperate and attempt to give them the benefit of the court experience of my staff."

pocket on the right side of his overalls, a mustache and a scar on the left side of his face. They said he was a 45-year-old Negro, about 5 feet, 8 inches in height.

During the afternoon, officials of the institution which shelters the two girls told police both girls were inclined to be highly emotional. It deevloped, too, there were no marks on the girls.

Admit It's All a Hoax

Kerns and Detective Richard A. Pearson of the county police talked to the girls again. This time they admitted their story was false.

They said they had left the home and school at about 6:30 a. m. yesterday, playing "hooky" so they could go downtown and see the Christmas displays in the department stores.

But they went the wrong way and got lost. They were tired and wanted to get back to the home. So they tore their clothes and made up a story.

Mrs. Brannan Named Aide for Victory Dinners

Mrs. Charles F. Brannan, wife of the Secretary of Agriculture, yesterday was named vice chairman of the Jackson-Jefferson dinners February 24, in which Democrats will celebrate the victory of their Truman-Barkley ticket in the November 2 election.

Wilson W. Wyatt, former mayor of Louisville and former Federal Housing Administrator, is chairman of the Victory Dinner Committee. He had the same job last year.

Other officers of this year's dinner committee include: Max O'Rell Truitt, son-in-law of Vice President-Elect Alben W. Barkley, executive secretary; Carter T. Barron, eastern manager of Loew's Theaters, treasurer; William Neale Roach of the Democratic National Committee, executive director; Mrs. Manning Jones Black, director of arrangements, and C. Edgar Brown, director of publicity.

Sex Law Loophole Criticized

More legal protection is needed for feeble-minded persons here who become prey of sex offenders, according to Judge George D. Neilson of Municipal Court.

He suggested that the District's new sex law be amended so as to include these cases.

The new law gives added protection to children who are molested by imposing heavy penalties on the offender. But unless rapes are attempted, or similar offenses, the molester at present can be prosecuted only for the misdemeanor of assault, it was said.

The situation was accented last week by the conviction for simple assault of James S. Perrow, 34, a Wake Forest College graduate accused of making indecent approaches to a 30-year-old woman with the mentality of a 4-year-old.

Police Seek Bomb Hurlers

Police cars kept a special lookout in Foxhall Village last night, apparently to discourage a repetition of window-breaking explosions that startled residents of the 4400 block of Greenwich Parkway at 7:55 p. m. on Saturday, and again at the same time on Monday.

Neighbors complained to police after Monday night's explosion.

Mrs. Nicholas H. Shea, wife of an Air Force major, of 4428 Greenwich Parkway, said last night it seemed to be agreed the uproar was caused by three boys in an automobile, "either trying to make an impression on some young ladies around here, or just playing a rowdy sort of prank."

They apparently had a sort of home-made bomb or firecracker, she said, wrapped in newspaper, with a fuse they lighted just before they tossed it out of their speeding car into a circle in the middle of the parkway, on which several houses face.

"It gave off a bright flash of a whitish-blue color, which some of the men said must have been caused by a very small amount of dynamite," Mrs. Shea related, "only tattered newspaper was found where the thing went off.

Vernon-Wynn Trade to Indians Ends Nats' Deals

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

CHICAGO, Dec. 14.—Casey Stengel, new manager of the Yankees, retired at a decent hour last night, well pleased with the day's deal that brought him another starting pitcher in Fred Sanford of the Browns.

POVICH

He was in the lobby this morning, still at peace with the world, when he heard talk of the Cleveland-Washington trade completed at 4:35 a. m. Then he learned that the Indians had acquired First Baseman Mickey Vernon and Pitcher Early Wynn.

"Humph," moaned Stengel. "The Yankees go to bed pennant winners and wake up in second place."

The deal put Bill Veeck, president of the Indians, far out in front in the rat-race of Cleveland, New York and Boston to bolster their clubs for the 1949 pennant showdown. The Red Sox, standing idly by, have yet made no move in the trading sessions, except to release veteran Outfielder Wally Moses.

GENERAL MANAGER BILLY EVANS of the Tigers, unable to make a trade or a buy that would bolster his own sad infield situation, voiced his unrestrained admiration for Veeck and his trading abilities.

After the announcement that Veeck had obtained Vernon and Wynn in the swap for Ed Robinson, who underwent two leg operations; Joe Haynes, recently discharged from Johns Hopkins after surgery on his pitching shoulder, and Ed Klieman, bespectacled relief hurler, Evans congratulated the Indians' president.

"You're the champion," Evans told Veeck. "You get a healthy Wynn and Vernon for a one-legged first baseman, a one-armed pitcher and a relief pitcher with bad eyesight. Don't ever offer me any propositions."

THE WILY VEECK actually started baiting his hook for the Washington deal a month ago when he opened negotiations for Joe Haynes, the White Sox pitcher. He landed Haynes in a swap for Catcher Joe Tipton, but Haynes never figured in the Indians' 1949 plans except as a come-on for Clark Griffith.

Veeck knew Griffith's fondness for Haynes, his son-in-law and husband of his favorite daughter. He knew that Griffith had attempted to make a deal with the White Sox to acquire Haynes, but had nothing to offer the Chicago club. So Veeck stepped in, got Haynes, and then listened to Griffith's offers.

Another factor urged Griffith to obtain Haynes. The Nats' president foresees him as a big winner in the vastness of Griffith Stadium, what with Haynes being a control pitcher and willing to get his sneaky curves over the plate. But Haynes was destined to come back to Washington. Not only is Mrs. Haynes a stockholder in the Nats and Washington is their home, but the Hayneses recently purchased a winter home in Orlando, Nats' training base. All these things Veeck knew.

THE NATS WEREN'T necessarily licked on the deal and it could rebound to their great benefit. Vernon had worn out his welcome in Washington with his two-year hitting slump and he was a target for the fans' boos. Griffith writhes at that kind of fan reaction as an outcry against the whole club, and it was unreluctantly that he put Vernon on the market.

Wynn's case was more puzzling. All of a sudden last year he lost his stuff after winning 17 in 1947. Even in spring training he couldn't get anybody out despite the fact he appeared to be in superb condition.

It was assumed that he wasn't bearing down in the spring, but there was no improvement after the season opened. The Nats wanted to gamble on a comeback by Wynn, but they couldn't resist the temptation to add such as Robinson.

If Haynes was the sentimental factor in the deal, Robinson was the chief consideration for the Nats. He is not only acceptable to Joe Kuhel, an old first baseman himself, but the guy hit 30 home runs in the last two years, and that kind of a hitter holds charm for the punchless Nats. He's not fast on the bases, but he is not slow, despite his leg operations.

Leonard Goes To Cubs in 4-Player Deal

Chicago, Dec. 14 (AP).—The Chicago Cubs today traded First Baseman Ed Waitkus and Pitcher Hank Borowy to the Philadelphia Phillies for Pitchers Dutch Leonard and Walt Dubiel.

It was a straight player deal with no cash involved.

Waitkus, 29, was sought by at least two other National League clubs. Brooklyn and the New York Giants tried to make a deal for him. He is a good fielder and consistent hitter who batted .296 last season.

Borowy, 32, acquired by the Cubs for $97,000 in the midst of the 1945 season, won 5 and lost 10 in 1948.

Leonard spent most of his career in the American League, where he was most successful with Washington. Coming to the Phils in December, 1946, he won 17 for the National Leaguers in the 1947 season. He won 12 and lost 17 last year when he was second in earned run average with 2.51. He is 38 years old.

Dubiel, a former New York Yankee farmhand, acquired by the Phils from Seattle of the Pacific Coast League last winter in the draft, won 8 and lost 10 in 1948.

Two veteran pitchers were shuffled in other deals announced today. Ken Trinkle, who had a 4-5 record for the New York Giants in 53 relief appearances, was sold to the Philadelphia Phils. The Chicago Cubs peddled Hank Wyse, who was at Shreveport, La., on the Texas League last year, to Los Angeles of the Pacific Coast.

The Detroit Tigers also announced the signing of Ted Lyons, former manager of the Chicago White Sox, as a coach under Manager Red Rolfe.

Lyons, succeeded by Jack Onslow as White Sox boss, becomes the second Tiger coach. The other is Dick Bartell.

2 Players, $100,000 Offered for Priddy

Chicago, Dec. 14 (AP).—Secretary Bill DeWitt of the St. Louis Browns said today the Detroit Tigers had offered $100,000 and two players for Brownie Infielder Gerald Priddy, but the offer was rejected.

Klieman Threatens to Quit Game But Griffith Says, 'He'll Play Here'

Roster All Set For 1949 Unless Lefty Bobs Up

By Bus Ham
Post Reporter

Clark Griffith had this to say last night about yesterday's player deals affecting the Nats:

He isn't disturbed about signing Pitcher Ed Klieman, acquired in a five-player deal with Cleveland. (Klieman threatens to quit baseball unless the Senators pay him the "right salary.")

He's just about ready to go to bat for the 1949 season with the players now on the Nats' roster unless he can pick up a left-handed pitcher.

New Home Worries Him

"I think I have lots of pitching left in my arm," Klieman told a Cleveland reporter. "But I also have a personal problem, one of maintaining two homes. Washington will have to offer the right salary or I'll quit baseball.

"I do not want to sound like a troublemaker but a year ago I purchased a new home in Euclid (a suburb of Cleveland). To me, it would be folly to maintain two homes, one here and one in Washington.

"Therefore, if I join the Senators it will be because they pay for my family support in Washington during the 1949 season. I hope we can get together."

Just So Much Talk

To all of that, Griff remarked: "What does he want us to do, pay him $100,000 a year and buy him a home? With all of that talk about Cleveland's fabulous money, the Indians don't pay anymore than we do, with the exceptions of Bob Feller and Lou Boudreau.

"I don't pay much attention to talk like Klieman's. He'll play ball for us."

The five-player deal between the Nats and Indians virtually closed the trading season for Griffith. The Nats gave up First Baseman Mickey Vernon and Pitcher Early Wynn for Klieman, Pitcher Joe Haynes, Griffith's son-in-law, and First Baseman Eddie Robinson.

"We're through trading," Griffith said, "unless we can deal for a lefthanded pitcher, and I don't know where we would get one."

Makes a Better Ball Club

Griffith likes the possibilities of Klieman, Haynes and Robinson strengthening the Nats next spring.

"Those two pitchers will help us," he said. "They know American League hitters and they've shown they can win. Wynn didn't do anything for us last year.

"Robinson should do us a lot more good than Vernon did. Mickey had his dauber down last season. The fans gave him quite a riding. Robinson batted in 83 runs. That's almost twice as many as Mickey drove in (46)."

Griffith isn't especially interested in re-acquiring Stan Spence, who went to the Boston Red Sox a year ago for Second Baseman Al Kozar. Reports out of Boston have indicated that the Bosox will dispose of Spence.

"We've got 10 outfielders now," Griffith said. "Stan is a nice boy but I don't know how I could use him."

Griffith is counting on Buddy Lewis, retired last year, returning to the Nats' outfield.

Walter Masterson, big fastball hurler, often mentioned in trade rumors, will not be disposed of—unless some club comes up with that lefthanded pitcher that Griff wants.

Eddie Robinson, Joe Haynes in Five-Player Swap

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

Chicago, Dec. 14.—The Nats strengthened their pitching staff and added hitting power at first base—they hope—in a sudden, predawn deal that fetched three players from Cleveland in a swap for the Griffith Stadium landmarks, Mickey Vernon and Early Wynn.

The telephone rang in the hotel room of Vice President Calvin Griffith at 4:35 a. m., with President Bill Veeck of the Indians the caller, and announcing "it's a deal."

To Washington, Veeck was giving up First Baseman Ed Robinson and Pitchers Joe Haynes and Ed Klieman, after days of apparently fruitless haggling.

Both Clubs Gamble

None of the five players involved can boast distinguished records for the last season, but both clubs are gambling that a change of scenery will produce better performances.

For Washington, however, all three players acquired held a special attraction. The Nats were eager to add the power of Robinson, 16 home run-man last season, even at the sacrifice of Vernon's superior fielding and base running. Robinson, like Vernon, a left hand hitter, batted .254 in 1948, Vernon .242.

Haynes was a special consideration for Washington Owner Clark Griffith, who for years has been eager to re-acquire his son-in-law. With the last-place White Sox last season he won only nine against 16 defeats, and was swapped to Cleveland two weeks ago for Catcher Joe Tipton.

Haynes underwent an operation for calcium deposits in his right shoulder at John Hopkins hospital three weeks ago. He is 31.

The 30-year-old Klieman, one-time sensation of the International League with Baltimore, is a right-hander who was used chiefly in relief roles by the Indians. He won three and lost two, but he rated behind only Gene Bearden and Satchel Paige in the earned-run averages. The Nats value him as a relief man.

Nats Give Up on Stars

Obviously, the Washington club was giving up on both Vernon and Wynn, their slumping stars of previous years and regarded as fixtures until last summer when they showed no indication of regaining their former skills.

The Nats got rid of Vernon only two years after he bolted into fame as the American League batting champion with a .352 average. He slumped shockingly in 1947, losing 88 points and last season 26 more.

Don't Overdo It, Mickey

Chester, Pa., Dec. 14 (AP).—"It is sure swell to be traded from a second division club to a pennant contender," declared Mickey Vernon today after figuring in the Washington-Cleveland deal involving five players.

"You can be sure I'll be in there every day trying my best, just as I did with the Senators."

Chandler Reserves Decision

Worried Leo Has One Rooter—Laraine Says He Did No Wrong

Chicago, Dec. 14 (AP).—Leo Durocher is a worried man today.

Although he won't know his fate until some time next month, the troubled manager of the New York Giants admitted his great concern to Commissioner A. B. Chandler in a 1¾-hour hearing on charges of "tampering" with Freddy Fitzsimmons while the coach was still under contract to the Boston Braves.

Durocher told the commissioner he was deeply worried over his latest entanglement and added that his wife was also very much concerned. He told Chandler he had brought his troubles to his wife, Movie Actress Laraine Day, and that his wife had advised him to tell the commissioner the truth, exactly as Leo told it to her.

"I don't believe you have done anything wrong," Miss Day told Leo. "If you've made a mistake, it was an honest, technical one. Tell your story to the commissioner. I'm certain he'll believe you."

Durocher, who emerged from the hearing looking grim but thoughtful, said he had "nothing to say" about his joust with the commissioner.

When asked if he had been ordered to silence by the commissioner, as was the case at the Florida hearing in the spring of 1947, when Leo was suspended for the entire baseball season, Durocher replied:

"It isn't that I can't talk. I just don't want to."

Fitzsimmons, who reported that the entire proceeding was "like a nightmare," said nothing, but managed to force a weak smile. It was believed that no suspensions would be meted out, although it was almost a certainty that all concerned—the Giants, Durocher and Fitzsimmons—would suffer fines.

Chandler ordered a verbatim reading by his secretary, Walter Mulbry, of the tampering law and reproached Durocher for not living up to it.

"What am I supposed to do when a man approaches me for a job? Turn away from him? Tell him to go away?" Leo asked. "Yes, that's right," the commissioner replied. "If I were a manager of a club and Fitzsimmons, or anybody else, approached me for a job, I would ask to see his release from the club he was attached to or I'd tell him to go away."

Fitzsimmons, nervously smoking cigarette after cigarette, and rubbing his sweating palms throughout the proceedings, testified that it was he who had approached Leo. He also produced a release from the Braves, which was used as evidence.

Leg Injury Puts Citation Out of Action

San Bruno, Calif., Dec. 14 (AP). The Calumet Farm's Citation injured his left foreleg in Saturday's $50,000 Tanforan Handicap and will be forced to skip the Santa Anita races, Trainer H. A. (Jimmy) Jones disclosed today.

The Calumet Comet will be taken out of training for two or three months, Jones said.

The trainer described the injury as slight. He said it could be described as a "hot spot" on the leg, but by no means permanent.

Citation is expected to return to racing in the spring.

In winning the Tanforan Handicap, Citation brought to $865,150 his lifetime earnings. He was expected to pass the all-time high money-winner, Stymie, with victory in the $100,000 Maturity.

Jones said Citation could be raced next week but he preferred not to take a chance with his valuable charge.

Jones statement said:

"Citation received a leg injury in his last race of Dec. 11, which, while more or less of a temporary nature will require for the sake of safety to this great horse a two or three months suspension in his training.

"He will be shipped back to Florida immediately for rest and recovery."

Lions Blank Hershey, 2-0

The Washington Lions continued their climb out of the American Hockey League's doldrums with their first shutout victory of the season, a 2-0 thriller over the Hershey Bears. The crowd of 1375 was one of the smallest of the season.

It was the Lions' second and third-string forward lines that blew the game wide open late in the third period to ruin a fine effort by Hershey's goalie, Gordie Henry. Norm McAtee soloed across half the rink with Herbie Cain hanging on his shoulder, cut in near the left faceoff circle and pushed the puck through.

A minute later, at 15:38, the Lions' third stringers struck. Gordon Duggan slapped a nice pass from Norm Burns into the net from about eight feet out.

The shutout was the first of Lew Crowdis' American Hockey League career.

Ishman Hot, Eagles Upset Penn State

A brilliant shooting performance by Roy Ishman that netted 29 points carried American University to its first victory in 10 years over Penn State, 59-55, last night before 1200 in American's gym.

Ishman bagged 14 field goals and a foul, missing three tosses from the 15-foot line. With Eddie Moffatt, brother of GW's Johnny, getting 11 and Fred Fling 8, the trio accounted for all but 11 of the Eagles' total.

American took the lead at 5-3 and never lost it. John Lawther's Nittany Lions threatened in the third period when Jack Bozinski and Joe Tocci each dropped two set shots to cut American's lead to 42-40.

But Lob Lamon answered the challenge with a foul shot and that man Ishman, who couldn't seem to miss, followed with a basket.

Joe Tocci led the losers with 15 points and Willard Parkhill had 12. The usual high scorers—State's Milt Simon and American's Bob LaMon—were held to 5 and 4 points, respectively.

Georgetown Next For Penn State

Georgetown, which made an impressive, though losing, collegiate start against NYU in Madison Square Garden, meets Penn State at the National Guard Armory tonight in one of its infrequent home appearances.

The visitors spilled the Hoyas here last year, 42-40, although Georgetown won at State College later, 49-43. Starting five for Georgetown will be Forwards Vince Leddy and Joe Culhane, Center John Mazziotta and Guards Tommy O'Keefe and Capt. Ray Corley. In the preliminary at 7:15, Georgetown Frosh plays Marine Corps Headquarters.

Bullets Wallop Jets, 88 to 75

Chicago, Dec. 14 (AP).—Hal Tidrick tossed in 24 points tonight to lead the Baltimore Bullets to an easy 88-75 Basketball Association of America victory over the Indianapolis Jets in Chicago Stadium.

Tidrick was given fine support on offense from Stan Stutz with 18 points, Fred Lewis with 17 and Connie Simmons with 16.

Ray Lumpp topped the Jets with 17 followed by Bruce Hale with 16.

Caps, Warriors Play Tonight

Joe Fulks and his Philadelphia Warriors present the obstacle tonight as the Washington Caps shoot for their tenth straight victory on the Uline Arena court and their eighteenth of the young Basketball Association of America season.

Try as they will, the league-leading Caps entertain little hope of bottling up the sensational shooting Fulks. In three years of BAA play against the Caps, Fulks has averaged 23.3 points per game.

Despite the presence of Fulks, the league's second highest scorer, and Ed Sadowski, fourth in the loop, the Warriors haven't been able to field a winner this year.

They've dropped 14 of their 19 games so far while the Caps have won 17 of their 19. Every Washington-Philadelphia contest has always been a thriller and tonight's 8:45 p. m. game is expected to follow script.

Bones McKinney, only member of the sensational Caps among the league's 10 high scorers, will have the help of Matt Zunic and Dick O'Keefe trying to stop Fulks while Kleggie Hermsen will try to put the handcuffs on Ed Sadowski.

Latest BAA scoring statistics show Fulks in second place with 410 points. Minneapolis' George Mikan is the leader with 592 points.

Bucky Talks San Diego Job

Chicago, Dec. 14 (AP)—Bucky Harris, deposed manager of the New York Yankees, today discussed the San Diego managing job in the Pacific Coast league with Bill Veeck, president of the Cleveland Indians. San Diego is a Cleveland farm club.

Harris is reported considering both San Diego and a job with Clark Griffith at Washington. Both he and Veeck refused comment.

Oklahoma A&M, CCNY Triumph

New York, Dec. 14 (AP).—Big Bob Harris sank 16 points tonight to pace Oklahoma A. & M.'s favored Aggies to a 46-38 victory over Long Island U. in the second game of a basketball doubleheader before 15,719 in Madison Square Garden. City College of New York drubbed Brooklyn College, 79-58, in the opener.

Interhigh Expansion to 10 Teams Likely

Proposal Will Be Made Thursday

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

Expansion of the Interhigh League to 10 teams and revival of the East-West division system will be proposed and probably passed Thursday at a meeting of the high school board of principals.

Director of High School Athletics Hardy Pearce, will propose that Chamberlain and Bell Vocational Schools become active league members beginning with the basketball season, January 7.

He also will suggest that the East-West system, discarded in 1946, take effect again with the 1949 football season.

Anacostia, Chamberlain, Coolidge, Eastern and McKinley Tech would make up the Eastern Division. In the western section would be Bell, Central, Roosevelt Western and Wilson. The division titlists would play off for the city-wide public high championship.

Because of the limited number of dates allotted the league by the National Guard Armory, Chamberlain and Bell will play their interhigh basketball games this season either at their own gymnasiums, or at those of their opponents.

Admission of the two schools has been hanging fire since last April when Chamberlain Principal Edward Reed tendered his school's application.

Chamberlain is expected to compete in all four major league sports, while Bell may forego football a year, because it has never fielded a grid team.

Chartered as a vocational high school six years ago, Chamberlain has competed in interscholastic athletics for three years. It has an enrollment of 300. It adopted the Interhigh League eligibility standards last September, and won three of its five football games against non-league opposition.

Last season, Chamberlain's basketball team amassed a 15-5 record, and beat Roosevelt and Eastern, losing to Interhigh Champion Central by nine points. Its baseball team won seven and lost two. Forrest Powars, former Colorado State three-letter athlete, is head coach of all major sports. He is assisted by Ken Fowler, an art teacher.

Chamberlain, Bell Move Up

Bell has been competing against the public high junior varsity basketball and baseball teams for the past two seasons. It has an enrollment of 244. Its one-man athletic department is Walter Welc, former George Washington University quarterback. He moved to Bell from Kramer Junior High last September.

Both Chamberlain and Bell have small gymnasiums and practice football fields.

Top Rider Now Has 25 In 14 Days

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Charles Town, W. Va., Dec. 14.—Apprentice Willie Downs, leading rider at the meeting here, turned in another sensational afternoon's work. The youngster rattled off four winners in a row before finishing second in the day's finale, his only other mount.

Downs won the eighth race yesterday and had a winning streak of five before he was stopped by Jockey Jimmy Baird aboard A. J. Cochran's Wary Flight.

The quiet boy opened the program with a $19 victory aboard J. L. Stern's Ariel Nymph, bringing the 4-year-old filly home in front of Dr. H. B. Langdon's Some Moose and L. E. Torreyson's Grade A.

The youngster was up on Mrs. L. B. Bedwell's Veiled Threat in the second and booted the 2-year-old colt into the wire before R. J. Randolph's Beautown and J. E. Hughes' four fans. Veiled Threat paid $5.20 and put the finishing touches on the all-Downs $76.60 daily double.

Downs' next appearance was in the fifth race. He climbed aboard Don Christmas' Laurelita and brought the filly through on the rail to score at $6 with A. Villa's Neat Package second and P. Andolino's Blue Nobleman third.

C. L. Kronfeld's Markless proved another Downs winner in the seventh race, the kicking kid sending the filly to the front where she stayed and won by a nose over Wayne Kendrick's Valley Poise. Third money went to Shangrila Stable's Green Garden. The winner paid $17.60.

In the eighth race, Downs' mount, Mrs. J. B. Hatfield's Glacial Run was shuffled back to last. Downs went to work on the gelding but Wary Flight, a $4.60 favorite, proved too good and Glacial Run fell two lengths short of catching the choice at the wire.

Cooper Boxes Tony Longo

Jimmy Cooper will be back in Turner's Arena next Monday night featured in another program of eight-rounders that pleased the customers so well last week.

Cooper, who flattened Tim Healy in three rounds last Monday, will fight Tony Longo of Baltimore. Longo, campaigning recently up north, was originally scheduled to oppose Cooper last week but had to withdraw because of a cut lip.

Garvin's Grill Girls Win

Out to retain their title as the District Recreation major league basketball champions, the Garvin's Grill girls yesterday eked out a 24-23 win over the Waves of Quarters K in the Central High gym. Helen Joellner and Janet Graham led their team with 9 points each.

son his decline was even more marked with a .242 average.

Wynn was the most baffling of the Nats' disappointments last season, after winning 17 games in 1947. He could amass only 8 wins against 19 defeats in 1948, and his fast ball was mysteriously missing. "He pitched only two good games for us last season," said Manager Joe Kuhel, defending the trade.

In Robinson, the Nats acquire a husky left-handed hitting first baseman who will be 28 years old tomorrow. Defensively he is one of the better first basemen in the league but he fails to measure up to the agile Vernon. The Indians shuffled him out of the lineup at frequent periods last season for failure to hit consistently.

Robbie Starred in Series

In the World Series against the Braves however, Robinson was the Indians' second-leading hitter, behind Outfielder Larry Doby.

The groundwork for the deal was made in Minneapolis at the minor league sessions last week when Calvin Griffith and Veeck sparred for days on possible trades. The Indians, desperate to retain their pennant against the threat of the Yankees and the Red Sox, made it known long ago that they were seeking Vernon.

The Indians attempted to obtain Walter Masterson instead of Wynn in the swap, but the Nats balked at that. The deal was apparently dead at 1 a. m. today when after resuming talks Veeck and Griffith retired in their obstinacy.

However, following discussions with Vice President Hank Greenberg of the Indians in the later hours of the night, Veeck suddenly accepted the Washington proposition with his 4:35 a. m. phone call.

In the Washington park, Robinson will have the convenient right-field fence to shoot at and Manager Kuhel expects important extra-base hit production from him. Before entering the Navy in 1941, Robinson was the No. 1 first baseman in the International League, with Baltimore. The Nats saw him perform with Norfolk Navy team in 1943 and have been coveting him ever since despite his failure to amass lofty batting marks.

A Texan, Robinson was slowed by a leg operation after his discharge from the Navy, and his career at Cleveland was marked by the tragic, fatal illness of his small daughter.

Haynes broke into the majors at the property of the Nats in 1939, via their Chattanooga and Charlotte farms, but was sold to the White Sox in 1940. He had his peak year with the Sox in 1947 with 14 wins against 6 defeats, despite the lack of a fast ball. He was slowed in 1945 by a line drive that resulted in a leg fracture.

The Washington Club was admittedly baffled by the 1948 failure of Wynn, after his 17 wins the previous season. Wynn was criticized for being over weight in 1947, and he reported 30 pounds lighter last season, only to experience his worst year with the club.

Undoubtedly a factor in the trading of Vernon was the displeasure of Griffith Stadium fans who, for the past two years have been miffed not only by his batting slump but by his lack of dash. The Nats had him marked down for trading purposes last June.

Headquarters Marines Win

The Headquarters Marine Corps basketball squad swamped the Quarters K Naval team last night, 69-35 at Henderson Hall to win their 11th out of 15 games played. John Gaughan was high scorer with 18 points in the Potomac River Naval Command league game.

Low Salaries Reduce Government Rolls to Deadwood, Hoover Says

Higher salaries for middle and top bracket Federal employes and officials, including the President and members of Congress, were indorsed yesterday by Herbert Hoover.

Testifying before the Senate Civil Service Committee, the only living former President bluntly said that the present low wage scales force out the best employes and "leave us with a mass of deadwood." He did not suggest specific pay raises other than to suggest the salary ceiling for career employes be lifted from $10,330 to $15,000.

Hoover also said he believed the American people would be glad "to see the Government give board and lodging to the President." He explained that the President had to spend part of his $75,000 salary to operate the White House. He advised the committee to give the President a pay raise, a larger expense account, or both.

Hearings Completed

Hearings on the pay bill were completed yesterday. Senator Flanders hopes his subcommittee can agree on a bill and make a report to the full committee by this weekend. His objective is approval by Congress before January 20 in order to give the President more "take-home" pay as he begins his second term.

Meantime, the AFL's Government Employes' Council announced its pay raise program—a flat $650 annual increase for all Federal workers. It took the action after Senator Olin Johnston (D., S. C.), the prospective chairman of the Senate Civil Service Committee, suggested increases in that general area.

The Administration has not revealed its general pay raise plans, if any, other than to support revision of the Classification Act. But there is talk on Capitol Hill of holding up the bill to increase the salaries of Federal executives unless a general pay raise for all employes is agreed on in advance.

The Hoover proposals for revisions won't be made public officially until early in January when the Commission on Government Reorganization makes its report to both the President and the Congress. However, John Stevenson, president of the Penn Mutual Life Insurance Co., and chairman of the Hoover personnel committee, testified his group had made these recommendations, which were revealed here two weeks ago:

That the President be given a salary of $150,000; the Vice President be raised from $20,000 to $25,000 (Stevenson said it was his personal view that the Speaker should be paid the same salary as the Vice President); that Supreme Court justices be increased from $25,000 to $35,000; members of Congress be paid $20,000; Cabinet members, $25,000; undersecretaries $20,000, and heads of agencies and assistant secretaries be paid $17,500.

Cited as Economy Step

Hoover and members based their arguments for higher Federal salaries on better administration and economy. He said the estimated $1,000,000 cost to raise executive salaries "doesn't amount to a tithe" as compared with the waste it would wipe out through better administration.

"There is no greater economy in Government," he said, "than attracting greater ability, greater skill, and greater permanence in its jobs."

The former President told of a recent case of a top-flight Agriculture scientist, who resigned to take a $40,000 job in industry. "This scientist," he said, "was in a blind alley and he was making only about $8,000 a year. He was forced to leave Government to make enough money to educate his six children, but a $12,000 salary would have kept him in Government where he is needed."

Hoover went on to say that his committee hoped to come up with a plan that would move key administrative people from one job to another to keep them from getting buried in dead-end jobs.

A member of the Hoover Commission, Arthur S. Flemming, president of Ohio Wesleyan University, described the Government's salary system as both "ridiculous and indefensible." He charged it was deliberately penalizing the men and women in Government who served their fellow man. Further, he charged that morale in Government is being wrecked by the system, which frequently pays the supervisor less than the supervised.

Prompt Action Advised

Prompt action on the legislation was advised by Robert Ramspeck, vice president of the Air Transport Association, who is a former member of Congress. Ramspeck said that business people were awakening to the need of better people in Government. In reality, he said, the Government is running a training schoool for private industry.

Ramspeck, who worked on the Hoover personnel report, testified that we don't have good management in Government today because the best people are hired by private industry. "The refuge of the poor administrator," he said, "was to hire more people."

He pointed out that the pay of an airline senior captain was about $16,000 a year, or 60 per cent more than the members of the Civil Aeronautics Board who must regulate the entire air transport industry.

The intolerable conditions in Government that the distinguished witnesses testified to are indirectly attributed to Senator Byrd (D., Va.). It was Byrd who led the fight in June that killed pay raises for Federal executives in an attack that smacked of demagoguery. And the Virginia Senator has a reputation for economy.

Tolerance Need Cited By Barkley And O'Boyle

Senator Declares Government Has No Desire to Harrass Honest Business

Washington's archbishop and the Nation's Vice President-elect last night pointed to the season and the times in a stirring plea for renewed goodwill among men.

Archbishop Patrick A. O'Boyle, speaking with Senator Alben W. Barkley at the pre-Christmas meeting of the Washington Board of Trade, charged the world to take its cue from the "Wise Men from the East" in dealing with one another.

"They dedicated their wealth, their intellects and their social position to (this) poverty-stricken baby and His mission to all mankind," he said.

The men of business and the laborers of America, he added, have been this Nation's "mainstay" to revive a "devastated and desolate world."

Recalls Inn Door Was Shut

Archbishop O'Boyle recalled that the "door of the inn was shut against the child Jesus, His mother Mary, and . . . Joseph."

"I am sure no one in good faith wishes to close his heart and mind to those who as neighbors have a right to our help, our understanding and our sympathy."

Senator Barkley touched upon a similar theme in his references to human relationships in the world of government and business.

He said the new administration owes it to the country "to look beyond the boundaries of mere political contests to render the greatest possible good to the country at large and to the world."

Warns of Conflicting Force

There is in the world "a totalitarian force," Barkley continued, "which is trying to break down economic systems and bring about chaos in order that it may feed upon the people as it has done everywhere it has gone."

"It is up to us to preserve our form of Government, our free enterprise, so that totalitarian form of government can find no place here."

To accomplish this end in the face of "grave domestic problems," our Government will find "more problems that we can solve in a nonpartisan way than we can in a partisan way," he said.

"Then we may be able to reach the conclusion that they can be settled without partisan rancor and without bitter controversy."

Hildreth Also on Program

The next Vice President wished continued prosperity and growth for the city's business community, and called for "a fuller understanding between it and the Government of every step that is taken to guarantee individual and corporate rights."

Also appearing on the program was Melvin Hildreth, chairman of the 1949 Inaugural Committee, who presented his group's greetings.

The Sulpician Seminary Choir of Catholic University sang Christmas carols from different nations on the theme, "Christmas Around the World." They also offered a program of "secular" songs, under the direction of Horton Roe, a student from Madison, Wis.

Report on D. C. Small Loans Being Drafted

Gray to Work Today On Rate Proposals To Commissioners

Assistant Corporation Counsel Chester H. Gray today will start writing his report to the Commissioners on the proposed small loan regulations aimed at saving local borrowers large sums of money.

Decision to press immediate adoption of new regulations of certain loan practices came late yesterday at a stormy public hearing in the District Building, attended by representatives of local finance firms and the corporation counsel's office.

Terming the proposed amendments to the District's "loan shark act" of such importance that they "must be adopted at the earliest possible moment,"

William R. Lichtenberg, attorney for the Washington Association of Finance Companies, said he would appeal directly to the Commissioners for another meeting to further iron out differences.

Crux of the dispute, generally the same as has been aired at the previous hearings, was the move to place regulations on conditional sales contract transactions.

Gray has been contending that if the substance of a transaction is a loan of money it should come under the District's loan regulations. Whereas Lichtenberg has insisted that "there's no restriction in the law on conditional sales and you can't make one."

The new regulations, Gray contended, will take the "fantastic profits" out of some loan businesses.

Martin F. O'Donoghue, chairman of the small loan committee of the District Bar Association, who will assist Gray in filing joint recommendations to the Commissioners, repeatedly lashed out yesterday at what he called "deliberate attempts to delay enactment of these regulations."

Foster Will Benefits 5 Institutions

Five Washington institutions are to benefit substantially under the will of the late Miss Estelle Foster.

Miss Foster, who died October 23, was a native Washingtonian, resided at 3208 19th st. nw., and was active in religious and charitable circles.

Bequests of $5000 each go to the Young Women's Christian Association, the Florence Crittenton Home, the Animal Rescue League and the Instructive Visiting Nurse Society.

The bulk of the remainder is placed in trust, its income going to a sister, Mrs. Daisy Foster Dodd, 719 Quackenbos st. nw.

Concert Managers Elect Hayes

New York, Dec. 14 (AP).—Patrick Hayes, Washington, D. C., was elected president of the National Association of Concert Managers today at the group's founding meeting.

Hayes formerly was manager of Washington's National Symphony Orchestra.

Other officers elected were:

Mrs. Edna W. Saunders, Houston, Tex., vice president; Julian Olney, White Plains, N. Y., secretary, and J. H. Thuman, Cincinnati, Ohio, treasurer.

Hayes said the group's purpose is "the promotion and development of the mutual protection of the interests of its members."

Broadmoor Sues to Evict 27 Tenants

Back Rent Is Sought; Defendants Refuse To Pay, Suit Alleges

Eviction suits were filed yesterday against 27 persons, including a Senator and a former Congressman, who now hold apartments in the embattled Broadmoor, 3601 Connecticut ave. nw.

The suits were brought in Municipal Court by the Broadmoor Cooperative Apartments, Inc., which has taken over the sprawling hostelry.

Among the tenants sued are Senator John J. Sparkman (D., Ala.); former Representative Robert Ramspeck of Georgia; Maj. Gen. L. D. Gasser, U.S.A., ret.; Attorney Samuel Blanken, and Alvin Kraft, loan company official.

The suits, filed by Attorneys Herman Miller and James C. Toomey, also ask back rent of between $95 and $150 from individual tenants. It is claimed that they refused to pay the rent to the cooperative and insist they are not liable to eviction.

The legality of the cooperative was established in District Court recently by a decision of Judge Edward A. Tamm.

Trial in the eviction actions was set for December 29.

ABC Drops Charges Against Restaurateur

The Alchoholic Beverage Control Board yesterday dismissed three charges of using a restaurant for unlawful purposes — gambling — against Vasilios E. Papagianes, proprietor of a restaurant at 1215 7th st. nw.

The decision to dismiss the charges followed a hearing held Monday by the ABC Board.

Need Urged For Nearby Va. Hospital

Arlington Meeting Agrees to Study Lack of Facilities For Special Cases

"Serious need" for a regional hospital to handle communicable disease and mental patients was voiced yesterday by representatives of Alexandria, Falls Church and Arlington and Fairfax counties.

Meeting at the Washington Golf and Country Club, Arlington, under sponsorship of the Arlington Chamber of Commerce, the group agreed to obtain facts and figures on their respective hospital neds and to report their findings at another meeting tentatively set for January 20.

Facilities Lacking

The District of Columbia, Dr. Ralph Beachley, Arlington health officer, said, refuses to add Virginia communicable disease cases to its present heavy load, and neither Alexandria nor Arlington Hospitals have the necessary facilities.

Dr. Beachley reported he had tried all yesterday morning to find a hospital bed for an Arlington tuberculosis victim. One finally was located, he said, in Suffolk, Va.

Mental cases present an equally difficult problem, Dr. Beachley declared. "We must commit them to jail," he stated, "until they can be sent to State mental institutions for treatment."

David C. Book, business manager of Alexandria's Chamber of Commerce, said a similar situation exists there.

Various Estimates

Estimates on the cost, size and location of the proposed regional hospital varied.

Charles R. Fenwick, chairman of the Arlington Chamber of Commerce health committee, said he felt the proposed hospital should have 40 beds. He said it might cost about $12,000 a bed.

Dr. Beachley, however, estimated that about 100 beds would be needed for communicable disease patients, and Dr. William P. Wagner, chief of the division of tuberculosis control for the Virginia State Department of Health, thought the $12,000-per-bed cost estimate was "high" if the new facilities could consist of a wing added to an existing hospital.

Yesulaitis to Conduct Final Air Force Concert

Chief Warrant Officer John F. Yesulaitis, assistant leader, will conduct the Air Force Band in its final concert of the 1948 season tonight at the Departmental Auditorium.

M/Sergt. Abrasha Robofsky, baritone, and S/Sergt. Lowell C. Smith, saxophonist, will appear as soloists. The program will include Moussorgsky's "Pictures At An Exhibition," Rachmaninoff's "Italian Polka," Wagner's "Entry of the Gods Into Valhalla," Haydn-Wood's "A Manx Overture" and Grafulla's "Washington Greys March."

Note Says 'Sorry'

FHA Roof Leap Kills Architect

ALLAN T. SQUIRE

A 44-year-old architect plunged eight floors to his death from the roof of the Federal Housing Administration Building, 1001 Vermont ave. nw., late yesterday afternoon.

He was identified as Allan Taft Squire, employed in the Rental Housing Section of FHA. He lived at the University Club, 1135 16th st. nw.

About 4 p.m., he left without telling anyone where he was going. Apparently he went directly up the stairs to the roof.

A few minutes later, a passerby, Anthony Hoff, 34, of 516 S. 20th st., Arlington, who was crossing K st. at Vermont ave., chanced to look up at the FHA Building and saw Squire falling.

Squire plunged almost directly above the Vermont ave. entrance to the building. He landed on his right side, spanning a 2-foot-high hedge bordering the walk to the entrance. He was pronounced dead by an Emergency Hospital staff doctor.

When fellow employes and police checked Squire's desk after the plunge, they found a large yellow paper tablet on which he had written a note, addressed to his mother, Mrs. Allan Butler Squire, who lives in Jamaica, N. Y.

The note read: "To Mother. Forgive me for this. God bless you always." It was signed "Allan." Police said Squire had had several recent disappointments when his plans for advancement fell through.

On two other sheets of the tablet, Squire had listed his assets and debts. FHA officials said he owed no more than the assets would cover.

A native of New Haven, Conn., Squire was graduated from the Yale School of Architecture in 1928. He joined FHA here in June, 1939, as an associate architect.

In 1942, he entered the Naval Reserve as a lieutenant and was later discharged with the rank of commander, his personnel record shows.

He received a citation from the Navy for work in planning the reconstruction of war-torn Guam, where he was stationed from December, 1945, to May, 1946.

Segregation Report Items Are Denied By Wender

Recreation Board Chairman Charges False Statements And Half Truths

The recent report on segregation here makes "untrue" and "half true" statements about the District Recreation Board, Harry S. Wender, board chairman, charged yesterday.

His declaration followed an assertion by James E. Schwab, vice chairman, that the National Committee on Segregation in the Nation's Capital has "taken it upon themselves to state opinions of members of the board without ever consulting them."

Wender cited as having "never occurred" a portion of the report that claims a Negro girl, attempting to play on swings at Park View Playground in 1947, was picked up bodily by the supervisor when she refused to obey an order to leave and carried out to the street.

"We are assured no such thing ever occurred," Wender said. "If it had, it should have come to the board's attention."

Milo F. Christiansen, superintendent of recreation, told the board that no member of the recreation staff had ever participated in or known about the segregation report. Wender then charged that "out of plain courtesy," the committee should have bronght its findings to the Recreation Board before publication.

"It's unfortunate that so many untrue and half true statements could be put into a report on which so much money and time was spent," he declared.

Christiansen said his staff is "making a study" of the report. The board decided to procure copies for each of its members and take up the subject again at its January meeting.

In other action, the board:

1. Adopted a recommendation to inform various groups that it has not completed restudy of its by-laws relating to the use of school facilities by nonresidential groups and that "there are no plans to change the operation of District playgrounds to a nonsegregated basis."

2. Held over action on a communication from the Board of Education that revealed that, because of overcrowded school conditions, the Birney School Annex, Nichols ave. between Howard and Sumner rds. se., cannot be razed to provide enlarged recreation facilities there.

Both boards had agreed to razing the annex "in view of pending elementary and junior high school construction" in the area.

3. Recommended that the District Commissioners, upon demolition of property from 1313 S st. nw. through 1325 S st., turn the land over to the Recreation Department.

This action, which followed reading of a report from the Bureau of Health Engineers recommending to the Commissioners demolition of the buildings, is aimed at assigning the old Dennison School property, which is adjacent, for playground purposes.

4. Approved preliminary general development plans for the Virginia Avenue and Fort Stanton Playgrounds; and tentatively approved the final general development plan for the Barry Farms playgrounds.

5. Recommended to the Commissioners purchase of additional land, at the site of the proposed Tyler School, 10th and G sts. se.

Contractor's Death Is Ruled Suicide

A certificate of suicide was issued by Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald yesterday in the death of Edgar D. Boling, 52, building contractor, 201 Bryant st. ne.

MacDonald said Boling shot himself in the mouth with a rifle at his home Monday afternoon. Boling's wife said he was worried over financial matters and had been depressed since losing a leg as the result of a fall from a roof two years ago.

Boy, 8, Selected As 'Pedestrian Of the Week'

Called "the most careful pedestrian attending Grant School," 8-year-old Wayne Curtis, 1712 Pennsylvania ave. nw., is Washington's "Pedestrian of the Week" this week.

Wayne was the unanimous choice of his school's safety patrol after observations of pedestrians Thursday and Friday at 21st and G and 22d and G sts. nw. The choice was approved by Police Traffic Inspector Arthur E. Miller and Pvt. Arthur S. Miskell, Third Precinct school patrol coordinator.

The last of the Pedestrian awards this week will be chosen from among early evening Christmas shoppers at an intersection and time not to be disclosed in advance.

Jewish Center Honors Mr. and Mrs. Meyer

Plaque Unveiled To 1939 Donors of Recreational Wing

The Jewish Community Center yesterday expressed to Eugene Meyer, chairman of the board of The Washington Post, and his wife, Mrs. Agnes E. Meyer, its "grateful appreciation" for their donation of the recreational wing of the building at 16th and Q sts. nw.

Until yesterday, when a bronze plaque was dedicated to Mr. and Mrs. Meyer in a simple ceremony at the center, donors of the structure had remained anonymous. The $135,000 wing itself was dedicated January 10, 1939.

Morris Cafritz, chairman of the unveiling committee, paid tribute to the honored guests for "their extraordinary qualities and their many philanthropies in helping build a better and happier America.

"Here are two outstanding citizens whose lives are devoted to helping the less fortunate and bettering the conditions of our country," he said.

Fred S. Kogod, president of the Jewish Community Center, said the ceremony marked the third phase in the organization's 23-year history. First was laying of the cornerstone by President Coolidge in 1925; second, opening of the original building in 1926.

"In addition to the war services rendered," he added, remarking that more than 1,000,000 servicemen of all faiths were accommodated at the center, "this new wing is still the focal point of thousands of youngsters who use it throughout the year."

"This tablet erected by the Board of Directors of the Jewish Community Center in honor of Eugene and Agnes E. Meyer in grateful appreciation of their generous benefaction in donating the recreational wing of this building. Dedicated January 10, 1939.

Civil suits filed by Fairfax County against 14 of its residents for failure to pay $2-a-month sewer service charges were continued until December 28 yesterday in Fairfax Trial Justice Court.

The suits, all of which are contested, were continued to give lawyers time to agree on one typical suit, which will be tried alone. It was agreed, however, that neither side would be bound to accept the decision in this one "typical" case.

Judge Harry L. Carrico awarded judgment to the county yesterday in 15 other cases in which the defendants did not appear. Each case involved about $30, which the county must pay the Federal Government for rent of the sewer in Sanitary District No. 1 The district includes most of the eastern part of the county.

The policemen said they overtook an Alexandria Yellow Cab after it had turned around on the grass plot dividing the two lanes. As they walked up to the driver, however, they said he hopped out of his cab, ran down the bank and swam to a motor boat anchored in the creek.

Police said the driver, Raymond A. Alexander of 817 N. Columbus st., Alexandria, was picked up as he came ashore by Alexandria Detectives Sergt. Francis Johnson and Thomas Woods, who happened by and took him to the State Police headquarters in Groveton, where he was charged with reckless driving and resisting arrest.

Discrimination Suit Over Parks May Be Shelved

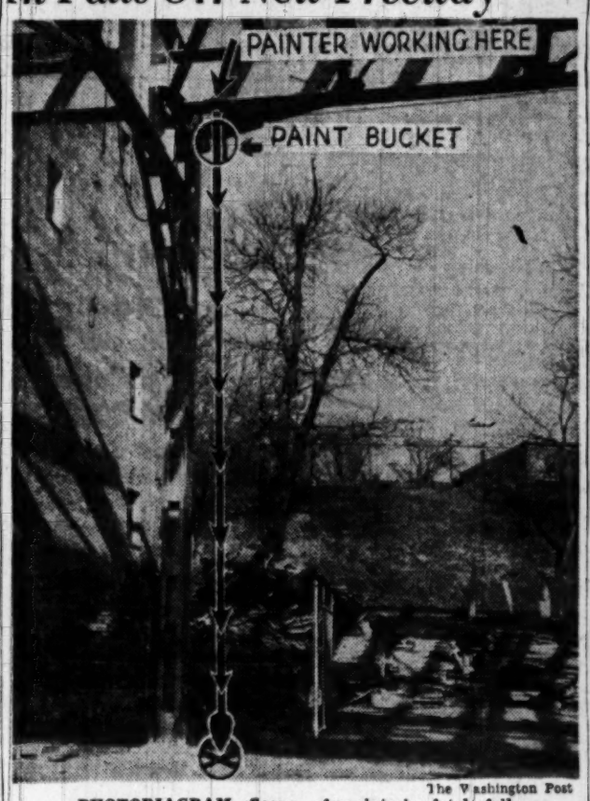
Richmond, Va., Dec. 14 (AP).—A Federal Court suit aimed at what the plaintiff charged was discrimination against Negroes in the Virginia State Park system seemed headed for a compromise today.

It was learned that the case, scheduled for hearing this week in United States District Court, had been continued by agreement of lawyers for both parties.

Basis for the continuance was a program mapped by the State Department of Conservation and Development for improvement of the Prince Edward Recreational Area into a park for Negroes, with facilities equal to those in other State parks for whites.

The suit was brought into court last summer in behalf of Maceo Conrad Martin, a Negro resident of Danville, against the Conversation Department and it commissioner.

Painter Killed, Another Hurt In Falls Off New Freeway



The Washington Post

PHOTODIAGRAM—Scene of painter's fatal fall

One painter was killed and another seriously injured in separate falls from the Whitehurst Freeway at 33d and K sts. nw. within a space of 35 minutes yesterday.

Fatally injured, when he fell 30 feet from a bosun's chair to the street at 9:30 a. m., was Jesse Collison, 54, who roomed at 200 E st. nw. He was pronounced dead at Emergnecy Hospital. Police said it was his first day on the job.

Seriously injured, when he fell the same distance at 10:05 a. m., was George Juenemann, 25, of 643 K st. sw., who was admitted to Emergency Hospital with a broken back. His condition was reported as fair last night.

Juenemann's scaffold was only 50 feet east of Collison's bosun chair. Immediately after the second accident, the remaining 12 painters on the job were let go for the day, because Foreman Walter P. Pera feared some might be jittery, it was learned.

There was no witnesses to Collison's accident. It was determined later, however, that his chair apparently had become unhooked from an overhead girder as he shifted position and had fallen with him. Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald issued a certificate of accidental death.

Juenemann, who had started work on the Freeway Monday, was standing on the scaffold, a board about 2½ feet wide, with another painter. He apparently slipped from the board as they attempted to move it into another position.

Harry R. Howser, bridge engineer for the District, said the accidents were not caused by faulty equipment and there was no evidence of carelessness on the part of the subcontractor, the David Salkind firm in Philadelphia, employer of the painters. He said that neither man had his safety belt hooked up.

Dwindling Oil Reserves Cited by Interior Aide

By Genevieve Reynolds

UNDERSECRETARY OF THE INTERIOR OSCAR L. CHAPMAN declared yesterday that the United States must have oil that can be obtained at a moment's notice. He issued his warning in an address on the "Uses and Misuses of Our National Resources" at the Voteless D. C. League of Women Voters' luncheon meeting held in Barker Hall.

Pointing out that this country now has become an importer of oil for the first time in history, he admonished, "We are using oil at a far greater rate than we are producing it. This is not a happy situation from the standpoint of our national defense."

THE SPEAKER told of experiments being conducted to make synthetic oil from shale and coal, but explained that the process is more expensive than drilling petroleum. He said that 78 billion barrels of oil could be found in shale in western Colorado and that a large plant is being built near Pittsburgh to make oil from coal.

Both coal and oil were listed as nonrenewable resources by the Undersecretary, who now is being mentioned as Secretary.

IN REFERRING to the development of synthetic materials and increased electric power, he said that he was talking about "preatomic energy benefits during this transition period."

Serious Water Shortage

According to Undersecretary Chapman the western section of this country has a serious water shortage and new sources must be tapped and planned for. Congress, he said, would be asked to pass a bill to build a plant in California to refine salt water for domestic use." Los Angeles must have more water immediately," he asserted. "Otherwise, the city's population will cease to grow."

HE WENT ON to explain that the process of converting salt water into fresh is known and had been done by ships at sea for emergency purposes, but the problem now is to make fresh water from salt at a low cost.

"Reclamation of arid areas created the shift of population problem in the West and makes it necessary to plan for new sources of water for the people, not only for irrigation and reclamation but for drinking purposes," he emphasized.

SUCCESSFUL CONSERVATION projects conducted by the Interior Department to date include proper use and allotment of public grazing lands, preservation of seals, increased power through such projects as TVA, Coulee Dam and the proposed Columbia River Basin, Undersecretary Chapman suggested.

At a session of the league's evening group last night, Assistant Secretary of the Interior Department William E. Warne urged a strict, aggressive conservation program on all fronts as a means of extending reserves of nonrenewable resources at high levels.

"SOIL EROSION CONTROL, forest management, reclamation of arid lands and similar positive programs will need to be increased materially in the next 25 years," asserted Assistant Secretary Warne. "Research for methods of using low-grade ores and substitution for higher-grade ores that are diminishing in supply must be increased and a program inaugurated to prospect such areas as Alaska for useful minerals and metals needed in our economy."

Hydroelectric Needs

He said that within 25 years, 40 million kilowatts of hydroelectric power capacity should be installed and that the Federal Government should take care of 30 million of the amount.

Estimating the cost at from 12 to 15 billion dollars, Warne insisted that the program would pay its own way.

IN THE FIELD of energy resources Assistant Secretary Warne cited the use of oil in electric generation while hydroelectric was unused as a flagrant example of short-sighted resources programming.

"ECA demands were not controlling in the resources picture in the United States," he explained, "but few understood the drain that a full employment economy would make on resource stores.

"UNITED STATES consumption in 1947 was 93 million tons of iron ore, 16 million tons of salt, 500 million tons of coal and 2 billion barrels of oil," he continued. And in the next 10 years, full employment will increase all of these—some by one third."

Preceding the two programs on "Conservation," League members at the afternoon session passed a resolution calling upon President Truman to include a statement on home rule for the District of Columbia in his State of the Union Message to Congress. The standing vote was taken at the suggestion of Mrs. John Hightower.

Mrs. John F. Thomas, league president, presided.

Mother Fears the Effects Upon Girl, 19, Of Her Elder Sister's Resentful Demands And Her Father's Jealous Possessiveness

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I have two daughters, Beth, 26, and Peg, 19; and the younger is caught in the middle of family tensions that I feel are unfair to her, and she fears she may have a nervous breakdown if things don't change.

Peg is and always has been popular; she is highly intelligent, a college graduate and soon to enter a profession; but she is looking ahead to marriage, also. For 18 months she's had her first steady beau, a nice lad, 22, whom she's known for years. He too is a college graduate, has a fine position and they think the world of each other.

However, when she speaks of "my wedding" or "after I'm married," her father plainly resents it, which worries Peg; and if she definitely decides to marry and gets engaged, he will be unpleasant about it. He claims I put marriage in her head, and has often said he would like to keep his daughters forever. I feel his attitude is selfish, for after all we married in our early twenties and certainly we won't live forever.

Elder Sister Has No Beaux

BETH is another source of contention. She hasn't had all the associations she should have had, due to serious illness in the past; and possibly we sheltered her too much, having in mind her handicap; but even so when she was younger I did far more for her than I ever have for Peg, in the way of giving parties, etc.

Although Peg takes Beth to the theater, out driving, etc., Beth feels injured if she can't go everywhere Peg goes; and if Peg has a date for a special affair, Beth storms about it and, again, if Peg buys a pair of shoes for herself, Beth talks of "hating" her, etc. Also, Beth feels it's my fault that she doesn't have a beau or go out as other girls do.

Peg has always been a devoted sister and upright daughter and I feel she is entitled to have normal pleasures and not be burdened constantly with care and concern for Beth. But what do you think? And what is your opinion of my husband's attitude? Should I side with him or try to champion Peg? Please advise us. N. C.

Dad's Gallantry Now Back-Firing

DEAR N. C.: In my opinion it's a godsend to Peg that you are able to keep your head—and think and see straight—in the midst of this family turmoil engendered primarily by Peg's popularity versus her handicapped sister's wallflower status.

I believe if your husband will sit down quietly with himself and search his feelings, he will find that his emotional resistance to the idea of Peg's marrying has its origin in pity for Beth, whose lack of appeal for the opposite sex doubtless bothers him almost as much as it disturbs her.

I daresay his long-time insistence that he wants to keep his daughters forever had the original gallant purpose, sentimental or studied, of (1) delicately preparing Beth for the spinster role he regretfully foresaw, and (2) compensating to her for lack of chivalrous tribute from other male sources.

Younger Sister Needs Champion

I SUGGEST that eventually he lost sight of the reason why he launched the possessive refrain; also, that his feelings later blindly accepted the statement as literal truth. One's "unconscious" operates that way. Witness the folk-saying that a man who repeats any extravagant claim often enough finally comes to believe it himself.

Thus it would follow that by now, when Peg is literally marriage-bent, he reacts involuntarily with vehement protest that embodies hidden aggressive pity for Beth, plus conditioned paternal possessiveness. And I believe, when he understands this, that he will reasonably endorse Peg's inalienable human right to fall in love and marry.

As a college graduate, she is socially ready for that further development; and neither parent should countenance Beth's spoiled-child assumption that Peg has no title to forms of happiness that Beth is unable, or afraid, to court independently for herself. So, to sum up your husband's attitude (as described) is wrong; and certainly Peg should not be burdened with constant care and concern for Beth, who seems to love nobody but herself. M. H.

are concerned, the gifts should be staggered in one way or another. Some may be gathered from beneath the tree early in the day. Whatever the system, not too many things should be presented to the youngsters at one time. Paul Porter to Lead Hennock Reception Ceremonies Today

Paul Porter, former chairman of the Federal Communications Commission, will act as master of ceremonies for a special program at a reception being given today by Frieda Hennock.

Miss Hennock, first woman ever appointed as an FCC commissioner, is entertaining in honor of the wives of her fellow commissioners, and for other women who work with the FCC.

Robert L. Friend, mentalist who appears on a local television station, and the Telephone Co.'s Glee Club, also are part of the entertainment planned.

The Commissioners and their wives, the wives of Cabinet members, wives of officials in other Government departments and women members of the press are among those to be present at the reception, which will be held from 5 to 7 p. m. at the Raleigh Hotel.

WE WERE AHEAD OF VOGUE

Long ago we decided that the beret was one inevitable form of basic headgear for men and women. Who made the best? The French! Were their berets entirely suitable for American life and ideas? No! So we import the bodies and a smart American expert trims them with a leather band and lines them with silk. Even the French may well envy our men and women when they don their Franco-American berets.

LIGHT as air is this pale gray nylon net gown which has an underslip of flesh-colored taffeta. The ruffles are edged in silver beads. The gown, from Jelleff's, was among those shown yesterday to members of the Men's Advertising Club to help guide them in their Christmas shopping

Women's Ad Club Fashion Show Kills Old Excuse, 'I Didn't Know'

By Sonia Stein

THOSE weren't exactly stocking stuffers shown yesterday as Christmas gift suggestions to members of the Men's Advertising Club!

The Women's Advertising Club, evidently suspecting that the members of the Men's Ad Club make a handsome living, arranged a fashion show of luxury items to flatter the wives and flatten the wallets.

One lavishly designed wild mink coat with wide bell sleeves even had a few extra ounces of fur arranged as an ascot scarf. Never too much of a good thing.

Two Hearts in Double Time

THE FASHION Group, Inc. which joined the two Ad Clubs for this luncheon meeting at the Statler, was in charge of the details of the style show. And every detail they presented seemed certain to make a woman's heart beat faster when she sees it and a man's heart beat faster when he sees her in it.

Hostess gowns and negligees naturally took the lead in such a show. One silk satin nightie of pale butter yellow had a matching peignoir of silk chiffon with scalloped satin yoke. For the more sophisticated wives, a black satin gown with peek-a-boo lace bodice was shown. Over this was a black chiffon negligee.

THERE WAS a Christmas red velvet peignoir with quilted Peter Pan collar and an eggnog satin gown lavishly edged in lace shown together.

Of the hostess gowns the most exciting ones were green. One was a pale chartreuse shade, peignoir style, with tailored collar and belt. Gold embroidered white material was used for the collar and to band the sleeves of this rayon crepe outfit.

The other green one was a dark "absinthe" satin with a wide gold kid belt.

Mrs. Tolson Chosen Fashion Group Director

Announcement of the naming of Mrs. Myrtle Tolson as regional director of Washington Fashion Group, Inc., was made yesterday at the luncheon. Mrs. Tolson is with the advertising department at Woodward and Lothrop.

The announcement was made by Miss Gertrude V. Denny Prisley, publicity and advetising director at Julius Garfinkel, who has been regional director of Fashion Group, Inc., for the past two years.

Honoring Oldest Pilot

Air Pioneers to Gather Friday for Annual Dinner Of Washington Aero Club

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

THIS FRIDAY evening at the Statler some 700 air-minded people will attend the Washington Aero Club's annual dinner. The country's oldest Aero Club, it was founded by a score of distinguished progressives back in the dim past—January 23, 1909. Among the original members were Alexander Graham Bell, Charles Bell, Truman Newberry, Thomas Nelson Page, Allerton Cushman, Robert Shaw Oliver and Frank Lahm. Mr. Lahm will be very much present.

MR. LAHM is the oldest living aviator in the country and actually possesses license certificate No. 2 (the late Orville Wright was No. 1). The dinner will climax a round of activities, including acceptance ceremonies at the Smithsonian Institution of the Wright brothers' original plane which recently was returned from England. Honored guests will be members of the Wake Early Club, all in all some 40 aviators who received licenses to pilot either planes or balloons prior to December 17, 1916.

FIVE AIR FORCE planes will trot around, picking up the Wake Earlys in their home towns. At the dinner, the Wright Brothers Trophy will be presented for the first time. It's presented by the Godfrey Lowell Cabot endowment for "significant public service of enduring value to aviation in the United States," and the recipient will be 89-year-old Dr. William Fred Durand, an engineer who has perfected devices on everything from propellers to wind tunnels, was a former Scientific Attache to our Paris Embassy and at present is a professor emiritus of Stanford University.

THE TROPHY is topped with a miniature of the shaft commemorating the Wright brothers' first flight at Kitty Hawk. The measurements were so infinitesimal that a jeweler was called in to carve it out of granite from a nearby North Carolina quarry. The Kitty Hawk Memorial, incidentally, was designed jointly by the late Robert Perry Rodgers, son of Admiral Jack Rodgers, and by Alfred Easton Poor, who recently redesigned the Mayflower's Lounge and Town and Country Room. Donor of the trophy is the father of Jack Cabot, our Consul General in Shanghai.

Spengler Unit No. 12 having the highest percentage of membership in the group of units with membership under 100 and United States Department of Agriculture Unit No. 36 leading the units with membership over 100. These units will receive an award of $5 each.

An excellent sauce for Brussels Sprouts is quickly made by melting a quarter cup of butter or margarine and allowing it to brown lightly over low heat; then add two tablespoons of cider vinegar and pour over a quart of the sprouts that have been cleaned.

About a Recipe for Hot Potato Salad

Do you have a recipe for hot potato salad—preferably a recipe for two or four people?
F. S. M.

HOT POTATO SALAD

4 large potatoes
4 slices bacon
2 teaspoons minced onion
½ cup vinegar
¼ cup water
¼ cup sugar
2 teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
½ teaspoon dry mustard
¼ cup chopped parsley

Cook potatoes with the jackets on. Drain, peel and slice. Mince bacon; fry until crisp; drain. Combine onion, vinegar, water, sugar, salt, pepper and mustard; heat. Add to potatoes. Add bacon and parsley, mixing carefully with fork so potato slices are not broken. Heat slowly. Serves 4.

How can I remove rust stains from the kitchen sink and from the tile floor in my bathroom?
B. G. R.

The stains can be removed by rubbing with household cleansing powder which has been moistened with kerosene or carbon tetrachloride. For stubborn stains, make a poultice of cleansing powder and kerosene and allow to remain on the stain overnight. Stains can also be taken out by soaking with weak laundry bleach. Moisten a cloth with the weak bleach solution and place over the spot, allowing to stand until cloth is dry. If the stain is not all removed, repeat.

Could you help me find a kind of straw called "Bast?" It is very smooth and comes in bright colors and children use it for weaving little mats.
N. E. L.

I have not been able to find a firm selling "Bast," but some of the firms listed under "Model Makers' Supplies" in the yellow pages of the telephone book sell raffia. This comes in colors and is used for braiding or weaving.

Could you advise me as to the caloric content of one English muffin the kind you obtain from the grocery store? B. F. S.

There are approximately 100 calories in one English muffin.

I wonder if you could tell me if it is possible to obtain a handle for a chicken fryer. I have tried several stores and am unable to find one. B. F. S.

Sometimes extra handles for this sort of kitchen equipment can be purchased directly from the manufacturer. If you have or can get the name and address of the manufacturer of your fryer, I would suggest you write them.

How can I clean a coffee and tea set in heavy silver plate on copper? Is there a polish on the market that will last many months that will not hurt the silver? E. W.

Use a good silver paste polish or a polishing cloth to clean the silver. I know of no silver polish which will prevent tarnish, but the application of a clear brushing lacquer to the piece which has just been polished will prevent tarnish as long as the lacquer remains unbroken. To apply, the surface must be entirely free from oil, so work with gloves on to prevent transferring the oil from the hands to the piece. The lacquer can be purchased at well-stocked paint stores.

One on the Aisle—

Filmland Plumbs The Crystal Ball

By Richard L. Coe

"NIGHT HAS A THOUSAND EYES," at the Palace, concerns one of those lucky people who can tell, if he puts his mind to it, what's going to happen a week from Thursday.

With Edward G. Robinson as the gentleman in question, the film got a choice send-off several months ago from the Society for Parapsychology and from J. B. Rhine, who wrote an oft-reprinted book, "The Reach of the Mind."

On the scholarly level, it seems to me that "Night Has a Thousand Eyes" is pure bunko, but as a what's-gonna-happen-next movie on a low level, it's a mildly engrossing tangle. Flashbacks and cliches abound, alas, which make the purely factual overtones absurd.

Shelving the erratic now-it's-1948-now-it's-1928 shuttlings of the film, let's say the story begins with Robinson as a vaudeville crystal-gazer whose dicta are pure malarkey. But, wait! Horrors! He begins to foretell things which actually do happen. This questionable gift not only gives him headaches, but also loses him his girl to his manager. (People connected with the theater, you learn from the movies, do have the darnedest time with their love lives.)

Years pass. Robinson, retired from two-a-day soothsaying, is living genteel poverty and comes across the daughter of his lost fiancee. She's in dire trouble, his inner eye tells him, about to lose her father in an air crash and become one of those lonely heiresses in which celluloidland abounds. He tells her she's be in danger of death when a flower will be trampled, a sudden hot gust of wind will topple a vase and when some voice will say, "There's no danger now." At this point, he says, the lass will lie under the stars at the feet of a lion promptly at 11 p. m.

Friendless, Rich Heroine

All this sort of thing unnerves such flighty folk as Hero John Lund, Heroine Gail Russell, Detective William Demarest and those regal gadflies that seem to swarm around a movie heiress whenever death removes the individual standing between her and untold riches. Why movie heiresses always seem to have no friends or relatives except ubiquitous lawyers is a film custom that never fails to bewilder me. In "Night Has a Thousand Eyes," this custom is raised to the rank of rite.

With the basic assumption of the picture—that if the right kind of mood cells are in your brain you can give startlingly accurate forecasts of future events—I have no quarrel. My only regret is that Paramount and its writers didn't handle the same eerie question with the skill the British put into "Dead of Night."

THIS LISNER Auditorium action sounds like a GW wow . . . Friday night—and for one performance only, one!—the university faculty will present "The Faculty Follies of 1948," with Dean Elmer Louis Kayser as George Washington and Miss Virginia Kirkbride, director of women's activities, as his Martha . . . The script is all-faculty, too, an original farce based on the university's history by three members of the English deparement, James Coberly, Murray Hartman and Vera Mowry . . . Seats for $1.20 are on sale at the Lisner box office as a benefit for the women's activities building fund . . . Since probably four out of five GW graduates have taken one of Dean Kayser's history courses in the last generation, I expect the dashing general will get quite a welcome Friday night.

"NIGHT HAS A THOUSAND EYES." Paramount release produced by Endre Bohem. Screen play by Barre Lyndon and Jonathan Latimer from the novel by Cornell Woolrich. Directed by John Farrow. Photographed by John F. Seitz. At the Palace.

ANOTHER CHRISTMAS benefit for underprivileged children is planned by Manager Charles J. Errico Saturday morning at 11 at the Carolina Theater . . . It's an all-cartoon show, with canned goods and children's clothing as admission barter . . . Precinct No. 5 will handle the distribution . . . Errico, a disabled vet new to his post, is all excited about his show.

THE SOVIET EMBASSY has issued invitations to a "new musical Soviet film in color" a week from tonight at the Interior Department Auditorium . . . This is "Symphony of Life," or "Song of Siberia" . . . The policy of a foreign government showing its films in the Interior hall is quite in keeping with similar events in the past sponsored by the British, Canadian and other embassies and legations.

THE MARINE BARRACKS (8th and 1 sts. se.) plays host tonight to the George Washington University Players in their recent Lisner comedy, "John Loves Mary" . . . A few weeks ago the same stage hosted the American Theater Wing Players in "Angel Street," which will be playing a ward show at the Quantico hospital tomorrow night.

TROUBLE AHEAD—Edward G. Robinson is looking into a future which bodes ill for John Lund and Gail Russell in "Night Has a Thousand Eyes," the new melodrama at the Palace

Riggs Bank, Union Trust Vote Extras

By S. Oliver Goodman

Riggs National Bank declared a special dividend of $2 a share on capital stock, payable December 15 to stock of record December 14. This brings total payments for the year to $14 a share, compared with $12 a share last year.

Union Trust Co. declared an increased extra dividend of 50 cents a share on capital stock, payable December 20 to stock of record December 15. This brings total distribution for the year to $1.50 a share. The extra is in addition to the regular semiannual dividend of 50 cents a share, which will be paid January 15 to stock of record December 31. Last year an extra dividend of 25 cents a share was paid.

In announcing the special dividend, Riggs President Robert V. Fleming stated the melon was voted "in view of the excellent condition of the bank and the earning position for the year 1948, which enabled the bank . . . to continue its established policy of adding substantially to the capital structure . . ." Amount of the increase in capital structure will not be definitely known until the end of this year.

Directors of both institutions authorized customary Yule bonuses for employes, based on length of service.

REFUNDING—The Treasury announced yesterday it will open subscription books today for an offer of one-year, 1¼ percent debt certificates in exchange for $6,126,729,000 in Treasury notes and debt certificates maturing January 1.

WHO'S WHO TODAY: John W. Waddill, senior traffic representative of Trans World Airlines in Washington, has been granted a leave of absence to become district traffic manager for Saudi Arabian Airlines in Cairo, Egypt . . . Georrge E. Moore, president of Moore-Day Motors Inc. at 4400 Connecticut ave., spoke yesterday at Harvard Business School in Massachusetts on "Problems Involved in Starting a New Business" . . . Merle Colby, formerly on the staff of Dr. John R. Steelman, assistant to President Truman, has joined Arthur Newmyer & Associates . . . William C. Jordan has been elected president and a director of Curtiss-Wright Corp., succeeding Guy W. Vaughan who was elevated to board chairman . . . Ben Wright has been named to the dual position of director of public relations for American Airlines and American Overseas Airlines.

REALTY BONDS OFF—The Amott-Baker realty bond index, which includes four Washington issues, dipped 0.3 per cent in November from the October level. The index recorded an average price of $792 per $1000 bond on November 30, compared with $795 on October 31 and $783 at hte beginning of the year.

LEAST OFFENDER: Consumer credit expansion is "the least of all offenders causing inflationary prices," a Virginia banker yesterday told the national credit conference of the American Bankers Association in Chicago. Thomas C. Boushall, Richmond, president of the Bank of Virginia, said installment credit is far below its prewar percentage of sales or of national income. "The wonder is that the people have so well restrained themselves in seeking credit for purchases," Boushall said. He added that current consumer credit outstanding in banks is now $3,417,000,000, only a 35 per cent increase since 1940 while deposits have surged 105 per cent and Government debt 400 per cent in the same period.

CIRCULATION: Money in circulation at the start of this month averaged $191.76 for each person, or slightly more than the $191 average a month ago, the Treasury Department notes. Total was $28,329,017,966 on December 1.

ODD LOTS: Southern Oxygen Co., Inc., Washington, declared regular dividend of 50 cents a common share, payable December 30 to stock of record December 20 . . . Du Pont Co. announced development of a new dry cleaning product to be known by trade-marked name of "Ovalclene" . . . Dun & Bradstreet reported that business failures in week ended December 9 totaled 122, compared with 87 in some 1947 week . . October sales of retail grocery and fresh-meat stores gained 6 per cent over the same 1947 month, Commerce Department estimates . . . Emil Schram, New York Stock Exchange president, yesterday called on Government and business to avoid a possibly disastrous "cold war."

Dumont Takes Over Former N. J. War Plant

New York, Dec. 14 (AP).—Allen B. Dumont Laboratories, Inc., reported today it had officially taken possession of the former Wright aeronautical plant in East Paterson, N. J., for use in making television sets.

Dumont officials said the new facilities, obtained from the War Assets Administration, would make possible a large scale increase in the company's television production. The plant will be used for assembly of sets, general offices and engineering laboratories. The firm will start moving machines and equipment into the plant immediately.

Business Outlook

U. S. Bond Peg Merely Delays Snyder's Day of Reckoning

By J. A. Livingston

FOR a month now, the Government bond market has been self-sustaining. The Federal Reserve System, instead of buying bonds to keep prices above par, has even been able to sell. As of December 8, long-term bond holdings of the 12 Federal Reserve Banks amounted to $11,110,000,000 as compared with $11,223,000,000 on November 10.

That's not much of a reduction, considering that in the last year the Reserve System has bought 10 billion dollars of long-term bonds. It's no assurance that the market can stand alone—without the peg by the Fed. But it does indicate that the long-term Government market is not one way—all sellers and no buyers.

Livingston

Perhaps the time has come for Secretary of the Treasury Snyder and Federal Reserve Board Chairman McCabe to reconsider the peg—to test out the underlying strength and weakness of the market. The longer it's delayed, the tougher becomes the ultimate problem.

Recent stability in the market suggests that depegging won't mean a collapse. Some investment analysts are coming around to the view that long-term money cannot expect to command a rate much higher than 2½ per cent. Therefore, they're not afraid of an unsupported market over the long run. Besides, the heavy selling in recent months has taken weak holders out of the market. Maybe it's worth trying to find out if bonds are in firm hands.

THE MERE existence of the peg causes doubt about the stability of the market. Investors, including banks and insurance companies, can't help wondering: What would happen to the market if the Fed dropped out? Moreover, a pegged market won't go up so long as the Fed holds 11 billion of bonds to sell. That sets a price ceiling—at the peg. Everyone is sure that if prices rise, the Fed will sell.

Postponement only puts off the inevitable and aggravates the job of putting President Truman's postwar financial house in order. The Treasury ought to be refunding its short-term bills, certificates and notes into long-term bonds. Instead, it's unfunding its long-term bonds into short-term bills, certificates and notes. Here's the story: (Billions of dollars.)

U. S. marketable issues	Oct. 1947	Oct. 1948	Ch'ge
Short term ..	$93.4	$93.6	+ .2
Long term ..	73.7	64.3	—9.4

Thus, a year ago, 44 per cent of the debt matured in five years or more. Today, only 41 per cent is in this long-term category. Nor is that the entire story. The increase in long-term bond holdings of the Federal Reserve Banks represents unfunding, too. Ultimately, those Reserve Bank bonds will have to be remarketed. So today only about 35 per cent of the marketable debt can be regarded as funded.

THE TREASURY can only fund its short term debt in a bona fide, unpegged market. Investors—insurance companies, trust funds, banks—won't feel confident in a 2½ per cent long-term interest rate so long as the only buyer is the Fed, so long as the price isn't "real." And the only way to get a real price is to see what happens when the Fed withdraws from the market.

Unfortunately, Secretary Snyder and Chairman McCabe must consider the effect of depegging on the economy: Will it result in a wave of selling of bonds? Will it cause unsettlement instead of resolving the future of the long-term interest rate? Will it precipitate a depression? In depegging—in testing the market—Snyder and McCabe have to assume a calculated risk, perhaps a bigger risk than they are willing to take.

But if such a risk is to be taken, it might best be taken in the next few months, when the Treasury is running a surplus, when it is collecting heavy taxes and thus pulling funds out of the money market. Such funds can be used to cushion against any sudden selling of long-term bonds in a depegged market—without adding to the credit base. That means between now and, say, March 15.

Trial by Jury Denied Wife Of Slain GI

Marburg, Germany, Dec. 14 (AP).—A young American mother, on trial for her life in the murder of her soldier husband, lost her fight for trial by jury in a United States military court today.

Mrs. Yarbo

Pale and nervous, 23-year-old Mrs. Wilma Ybarbo of Malden, Mass., was told she had "left the Constitution behind" when she came to occupied Germany.

Overruling her attorney's challenge of its constitutional authority, and their demand for trial by jury under the Constitution, the three-judge court declared she was now subject to the military law of the occupied zone.

For the first time, therefore, an American woman will be tried for a capital offense under occupation law.

Witnesses will begin the story Wednesday of what happened the night of September 21 when Sergt. John Ybarbo of Goliad, Tex., was shot just outside the Ybarbo bedroom where his 6-year-old son was sleeping.

Mrs. Ybarbo's only public statement was from her lawyers who said she "did only what any decent New England woman would have done." They are expected to plead self defense for her.

[According to the United Press she also is being tried under German law, under which she could be decapitated if convicted. The German charges were filed when prosecutors anticipated the challenge of the military government's right to try her.—Editor's Note.]

Hunter Held On Charge Of Wife-Murder

Port Angeles, Wash., Dec. 14 (U.P.)—Norris McAlmond, 35, big-game hunter and outdoor magazine writer, was held today on a charge of murdering his wife.

Mrs. Delia Fae McAlmond, 35, mother of four children, died of gunshot wounds November 1. At that time authorities said her death was accidental. However, "suspicious evidence" prompted Prosecutor-Coroner Dan E. Harper to order her body exhumed.

An autopsy was reported to have revealed she was struck by three shotgun blasts.

"It is impossible to be wounded three times accidentally by a double-barreled shotgun," Harper said.

McAlmond's attorney, Jospeh H. Johnston said, "We maintain only two shots were fired and death was purely accidental."

McAlmond previously had told officers he heard two shots and rushed into the living room of his home. He said he found his wife dying on the floor. A loaded shotgun, which had been on the table for several days, was propped against a chair.

Staued Boots Are Clew in Guam Slaying

Agat, Guam, Dec. 14 (U.P.)—A pair of stained paratrooper's boots is the principal clew in the brutal beating-murder of attractive 27-year-old Ruth Farnsworth authorities said tonight.

The boots and a torn slipper of Miss Farnsworth's were located by searchers in the jungle, near where the dying girl was found late yesterday and about 200 yards from the jade shop from which she was kidnaped Saturday.

Investigators said the stains on the boots appeared to be blood. The footwear has been sent to Washington to be examined by the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

The brown-haired former Wac was a civilian employe of the Navy and a part-time worker in the jade shop. She was saving her money for her pinned marriage to Marine Sergt. Sterling McGinnis next spring in San Francisco, Miss Farnsworth's home town. Sergeant McGinnis also is stationed on Guam.

A Navy spokesman said there was "every indication" that the victim of the brutal attack had been raped, but that an autopsy would be necessary to be certain.

Miss Farnsworth died in a hospital at 2:10 a. m. today, about 24 hours after she was found. She never recovered consciousness.

Heart Institute's Requests for Aid Total 36 Millions

The U. S. Public Health Service last night reported that requests for $36,000,000 in Federal aid have been received by the National Heart Institute since its organization four months ago.

The major requests, totaling some $30,000,000, came from 51 hospitals and medical schools seeking Federal funds for construction and implementation of laboratory research facilities, the report stated.

Also included were applications asking $3,000,000 for promising research investigations by scientific study sections, composed of leading scientists throughout the nation who serve as advisors to the National Heart Council, the Institute's advisory body.

Applications were also received from 37 medical schools for grants to improve and expand cardiovascular teaching programs, aggregating more than $1,350,000, and many requests for funds to finance "pilot" studies for community control projects.

On the Town

A YOUNG BOY who appears to be heading in the right direction—depending on how you look at these things—is the 4-year-old daughter of Nat Conway and Mrs. C. Nat's trio currently is working at the Neptune Room. The other night Mrs. Conway paused while strolling and beat some boogie on the piano. And who should step up and deliver some lyrics but daughter-age-4, who had been standing by waiting for just such an opportunity.

Edwards

Mon Black, who also toils in the Neptune Room, has written a ballad with the captivating title, "Am I Your Little Guy?" Latest dilarion is that she'll appear on Earl Tannen on his WGAY show. We're checking now to find out just when.

Charles Nottingham of the Sheraton lounge is thinking along panel lines these days. He wants to line his lounge with 10 large panels, framed in plexi-glass, each of which would depict an outstanding event in the history of our Capital. Nottingham says these events might include the burning of the White House by the British, dispelling of the "bonus army," Lincoln's assassination, the Knickerbocker Theater disaster and possibly the Truman victory parade, though it must be said in truth that Nottingham didn't list the latter occurrence.

Jack Edwards, who used to play at Duke (and it wasn't the single-wing), opens at the Metronome Room of the Wardman Park on Saturday evening. Jack has worked at the Metronome before and has been well received.

TED and Phyllis Rodriguez, the dance team, are being held over for a third week at the Blue Room of the Shoreham. Ted and Phyllis seem to have had it coming, for their welcome at the Blue Room has been excellent. Also at the Blue Room are Ventriloquist Peter Rich and Oscar.

Now in the Embassy Room of the Statler are Joseph Sudy and his orchestra. Sudy features "danceable rhythms, his voice, his violin," and a vocalist billed simply as Lenore.

Walter Scott and his Greenbrier Orchestra are now working in the Shoreham's Palladian Room. Scott appears to be a real "longhair" musician, having played as violin soloist with the Bournmouth Symphony and having appeared in Town Hall, New York.

The rumor bird has flitted past and whispered that Dona Mason, the song lady at the King Cole Room, will get a trial in the big leagues: The Blue Angel in New York, sometime this winter.

Soviet Claims Atomic Energy

London, Dec. 14 (U.P.)—Russia has added atomic energy to the list of "important discoveries" claimed for Soviet scientists, Radio Moscow reported tonight.

The broadcast quoted an article in the Communist Party publication Bolshevik Journal, crediting Russians with "unquestionable priority" in the development of nuclear physics and uranium fission—keys to the atom bomb.

"The Soviet scientists Ivanenko and Gapon made an outstanding contribution to the question of the composition of the atomic nucleus, arguing that it consists only of protons and neutrons. Further development of this conception has received wide and complete recognition by world science.

"The Soviet scientists Tamm, Ivanenko and Sokolov have announced a theory of special coupled nuclear forces, the problem of which is most essential to the whole of modern physics."

The article also mentioned "the theory of uranium fission under bombardment by neutrons advanced by the Soviet scientist Frenkel. Only the Soviet scientists Flerov and Petryak were able to provide complete proof of the spontaneous fission of the uranium nucleus into two roughly equal parts."

De Gaulle Urges End of Unions

Paris, Dec. 14 (NYHT.).—Gen. Charles de Gaulle urged the workers of France tonight to abandon their traditional labor unions and join with capital and management in industrial associations working as units for the reestablishment of France.

The general spoke at a meeting called for the purpose of rallying labor to his side and before a crowd of more than 20,000 persons.

"Certainly I would not be guilty of the mistake or injustice of ignoring the value and merit of the services which unionism has since its difficult origins rendered workers," he said. "Without it they would have been crushed.

"But the parties, as they took the state into their possession, laid hands on the unions and made of them instruments of their policy. Things can no longer go on as they are."

"You must take your part in French economic responsibilities," he said.

New Americanism Group Organized

The Prince Georges County Association Against Un-American Activities organized last night and immediately changed its name to the Prince Georges County Association for the Preservation of American Ideals.

The organizational meeting, held at the County Service Center in Hyattsville, was marked by protests from the representative of the county council of the Parent-Teachers Association.

C. F. Palmer of Bladensburg, the P-TA representative, provided fireworks when he announced the P-TA council would not affiliate, charging the bylaws of the new association were "railroaded through in an Un-American manner.

Palmer Refused Floor

He also objected that debate had been limited to members of an organization which had no members and that one person constituted a quorum for the organization. Palmer was refused the floor when he rose to read the changes in the proposed bylaws recommended by the county P-TA.

The new organization "to preserve the American ideals and to combat subversive activities" elected T. Raymond Burch, Democratic member to the Maryland House of Delegates from Prince Georges, as president. Burch is a member of Governor Lane's State Commission of Subversive Activities.

Representatives of 16 county organizations were present, out of 218 that had been asked. All of the 16 present except the county P-TA, voted to join the new group.

Burch said the association would not "witch hunt," but added one of its first functions should be to indorse legislative recommendations which will be made by the State Commission in January. He said these recommendations would be "very strong."

Other Officers Elected

Other officers elected were: Mrs. Rudolph Allen, Hyattsville, vice president; Walter B. Hurley, Hyattsville, secretary; Mrs. Yvonne Ramey, Berwyn, corresponding secretary, and James Holloman, Oxon Hill, treasurer.

Organizations which joined the association included the Women's Democratic Club of Hyattsville; Southern Maryland Lodge, No. 1425, B'nai B'rith; Women's Club of Riverdale; Prince Georges County Real Estate Board; Hyattsville Lions Club; Civic Federation of Seat Pleasant and Spaulding District; Camp Springs P-TA; Riverdale Heights Citizens Association; Southgate Lions Club; Bradbury Heights Citizens Association; Woodley Citizens Association; Prince Georges Court of the Catholic Daughters of America; Berwyn District Civic Association and Oxon Hill Citizens Association.

Scholar Recalls Russian 'Trouble' Of 16th Century

The English had the same trouble with the Russians in Queen Elizabeth's time that we have today, Leslie Hotson, Washington research scholar, said last night.

Addressing a meeting at the Folger Shakespeare Library last night, Hotson cited the experience of Sir Dudley Digges, an English ambassador to Russia in the sixteenth century. He was treated rudely until he made a show of firmness, Hotson recalled.

Sugarman said she shot him in a jealous rage after discussing his impending marriage to another

British Official Quits Under Fire In Graft Probe

London, Dec. 14 (AP).—John W. Belcher resigned tonight as parliamentary secretary to the Board of Trade, and denied again that he was involved in any government graft.

A special tribunal is investigating rumors that money was passed around in an effort to influence decisions by officials on such things as import licenses and in dropping a case against a football gambling pool.

Belcher conceded he had received gifts and favors from several persons, including Sidney Stanley, 47, Polish-born promoter and central figure in the investigation.

Hugh Dalton, former chancellor of the exchequer, testified before the tribunal today that Stanley had offered to get him a high-paid company directorship several months ago. Dalton said he turned it down because he felt Stanley was "a contact man of low repute." At the time Dalton was without a government post, but has since become chancellor for the Duchy of Lancaster, a sort of roving cabinet assignment.

Opel Denies Father Took U. S. Profits

Fritz Von Opel, son of Wilhelm Von Opel, erstwhile "Henry Ford of Germany," yesterday in District Court denied his father had ever called on him for any payments from the earnings of the Overseas Finance Corporation which Fritz headed.

The Government, which seized some five million dollars worth of American holdings of the corporation during the war under alien property laws, is contending that Fritz, a citizen of Lichtenstein, acted merely as a "cloak" and that the older Von Opel, now dead, was the real owner of the corporation.

Fritz Von Opel is suing Attorney General Tom Clark as successor to the Alien Property Custodian, seeking return of seized stock in the Spur Distributing Corp., a gasoline distributing enterprise; in the Harvard Brewery, and in several minor concerns.

Proclaims Neutrality

Von Opel contends that as a citizen of a neutral country, Lichtenstein, and head of a corporation of a neutral he is entitled to the return of the property.

The short, bespectacled, blond-grey-haired plaintiff yesterday described how his father through a "gift" of Opal stock worth $3,700,000, made it possible for him to buy the Overseas Corporation in the early 1930s.

Previously 80 per cent of the stock of the giant Opel Auto Corporation had been sold to General Motors.

Fritz Von Opel stayed on with the auto plant as a general manager but, he said, "I clashed in matters of opinion with members of the General Motors staff."

Thus it was he testified that he persuaded his father to make him an outright gift of 10 per cent of Opel stock which he later sold to General Motors for $3,700,000 and bought Overseas, which in turn bought the American properties.

Gift Is Termed Subterfuge

(It is the Government's assertion that the "gift" was a subterfuge to circumvent German laws against the flight of currency from the country during the times of economic instability.)

Among highlights of Von Opel's testimony yesterday was the assertion that, while an American internee during the war, he helped to break a plane bottleneck by devising a new type metal "fastener" used in fuselages; and that, in the late 1920s, he was the first to experiment with rockets and jet planes.

The trial will be resumed today before Chief Judge Bolitha J. Laws.

Citizen Unit To Find Rooms For Inaugural

A committee to work with the Washington Inaugural Committee on locating accommodations for out-of-town visitors last night was authorized by the Randle Highlands Citizens Association.

Meeting at the Randle Highlands School, 30th and R sts. se., the group authorized their president, George L. Gregg, to appoint committee members at a later date. Gregg was absent from the meeting because of the recent death of his wife.

The association indorsed Adelbert Lee, a past president of the group, for reappointment to the Board of Education when his term ends in June. Mrs. Raymond Cole, secretary, said the association will forward Lee's name to the Southeast Council for further recommendation.

The group also adopted a resolution recommending permanent Daylight Saving Time for the District. In other action, W. B. Steele, delegate to the Southeast Council, authorized to survey and report recommendations for solution of the rush-hour traffic "bottleneck" on Pennsylvania ave. se., between the Sousa Bridge and Minnesota ave. se.

Mrs. Taylor Reelected LeDroit Park President

Mrs. Ida S. Taylor of 421 T st. nw., superintendent of Gordon Convalescent and Rest Home, last night was reelected president of the LeDroit Park Civic Association.

The election was held at Mott School, 4th and W sts. nw.

Other officers reelected are: Jeffry Lowe, vice president; Mrs. Shelby Rhone, secretary, and Thomas Frazier, treasurer. Richard C. Hill was elected the association's first delegate to the Northwest Neighborhood Council.

New Kingman Park Officers Installed

New officers of the Kingman Park Civic Association were installed last night by Mrs. Rosina C. Tucker, first vice president of the Civic Federation Association.

The members adopted a resolution opposing any action by the Public Utilities Commission to advance the date for removing streetcar tracks on Benning rd. and indorsed the D. C. segregation report and the Strayer school report.

Following the meeting at Oklahoma ave. and E st. ne., the members held their annual Christmas party.

Barrett Commended For Speery Solution

The Cathedral Heights-Cleveland Park Citizens Association last night commended Police Superintendent Robert J. Barrett and the police force for the "speedy solution" of the murder of Charles J. Hines at the Ambassador Hotel.

The association's 27 members, meeting at St. Alban's Guild Hall on the grounds of the Washington Cathedral, directed their Treasurer-Secretary E. L. Florance to send the commendation to the Board of District Commissioners.

Socie's 'Messih' Impreive

By Paul ume

The Washington oral Society's performance of ndel's "Messiah" last night Constitution Hall was the bes e have yet heard from them.

The chorus was its most responsive, and the lo quartet excellent in their erstanding of traditions of the w and ability to carry these out. his year's chorus is somewhat er than last season's. The co ponding increase in tone aids mighty passages. Pitch and to quality of the ensemble were at times good. Their feeling for work showed clearly in the with which they carried on th ghout the evening. Placing the llelujah Chorus at its proper s nding part two, gave this ter the unusual pleasure of hea it for the first time in years at tending annual performances.

Louis Potter chose his s ts wisely. Barbara Stevenson nhanced the miracle she s wrought with the soprano ro n former years. To her alw ravashing soft singing she has n added a more even scale in f voice. The change makes her t model for any soprano to emulat

Lydia Summers sounded a shad less mellow vocally this year than last. Her voice is entirely sufficient to the demands of the alto lines without being urged even slightly beyond its best natural limit. Her style and musicianship are admirable.

Howard Jarratt appeared for the first time in Washington, and is a tenor to be remembered. His diction is clear and he handles easily recitatives and arias that tax more mature singers. He might give more attention to final consonants, and ought to change the pronunciation of the second half of the word "vessel." With his naturally lyric tenor voice, which should grow rounder than at present, he will grow into an asset to the oratorio and concert world.

Robert Nicholson was in his best form and made the "nations rage" with power and conviction. His soft work was equally impressive. For a happy change, the Messiah was a constant pleasure, save for those ticklish moments when the orchestra missed beats or lost the pitch.

4000 Homes Projected in County Plan

Plans for a 34-million-dollar low-cost housing project of 4000 homes in Montgomery County were revealed yesterday at a rezoning hearing held by the Montgomery County interim councilmen in Silver Spring.

Owners of a 576-acre tract on Viers Mill rd., 2 miles north of Wheaton, said the semidetached homes would cost $8500 each and could be purchased on $50 monthly payments.

A. S. Kay, representing Wheaton Estates, Inc., said the project was aimed at filling the housing needs of persons with income of about $50 a week.

"The need for such housing is tremendous," he said.

Denial of the petition, which requests reclassification from Residential A to B was recommended by technical experts of the Maryland National Capital Parks and Planning Commission.

The three-man park and planning commission itself, however, overruled the advice of its staff and recommended approval of 70 acres of the tract for the requested use.

Among the requests was one to rezone a 4-acre tract at Grubb rd. and Brookeville rd., Silver Spring, from residential A to C to permit erection of a one-million-dollar apartment house of 125 units.

Opposition to the plan was expressed by a spokesman for the County Civic Federation, Kensington View-College View Citizens Association and the Montgomery County League of Women Voters.

State to 'Protect' Citizens, Fight Md. Phone Rate Boost

Baltimore, Dec. 14 (AP).—The state, on the premise that it has an "obligation to protect all its citizens from unwarranted increases in telephone rates," said today it will take part in the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Company's rate case.

The utility, which serves all of Maryland, has petitioned the Public Service Commission for a new—and higher—schedule of rates. As a supplement to its petition, it asked the PSC yesterday for permission to put a temporary schedule of higher rates into effect while its case is under review.

The State, through Attorney General Hall Hammond, filed a petition with the PSC today notifying the commission of its intention to intervene.

The petition contended the permanent rate schedules approved by the commission in August, 1947, increased operating revenues of the utility by about $5,289,595 a year, thereby giving the company "substantial and adequate relief."

Bullitt Mum on Return From China Inspection

William C. Bullitt arrived last night from China where he investigated that nation's needs to meet the Communist military threat and the administration of the 400 million-dollar aid program already being carried out.

The former ambassador to Russia and France made the survey for the joint congressional ECA Watchdog Committee studying foreign relief programs. Senator Bridges (R., N. H.) is committee chairman.

Pending his report to the committee he declined to comment on the situation in China.

Bids and Proposals 6

WASHINGTON SUBURBAN SANITARY COMMISSION SERIES "UUU" SECOND LIEN INCINERATOR BONDS
(Payable from collection and disposal fees and charges, and secured by water receipts.)

SEALED BIDS will be received by the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission until 3 o'clock p. m., Eastern Standard Time, on Wednesday, DECEMBER 29, 1948, at the office of the Commission, 4017 Hamilton Street, Hyattsville, Maryland, at which time and place all bids will be publicly opened and read, for the following bonds of the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission, dated January 1, 1949:

$100,000 Series "UUU" Second Lien Incinerator Bonds, maturing annually, January 1, without option of prior payment, $3,000 1950 to 1953, $4,000 1954 to 1957, $5,000 1958 to 1961, $6,000 1962 to 1965, and $7,000 1966 to 1969, all inclusive.

Denomination $1,000; principal and semi-annual interest (J and J1) payable at the principal office of the Equitable Trust Company, Baltimore, Maryland, or at the principal office of Chemical Bank & Trust Company, in the Borough of Manhattan, City and State of New York, at holder's option; coupon bonds registerable as to principal alone. There will be no auction. Bonds will be delivered about January 12, 1949, at place of purchaser's choice.

The bonds will be issued under the provisions of Chapter 143 of the 1947 Maryland Laws and a resolution duly adopted by the Commission on December 10, 1948, for the purpose of providing funds for completing the construction of an incinerator in Montgomery County. The commission is required to fix and maintain a schedule of fees and charges for the reception and disposal of garbage, trash, rubbish, refuse and junk sufficient to provide funds for paying the cost of operation of the incinerator, for paying the principal of and the interest on the Series "HHH" Incinerator Bonds, dated July 1, 1945, presently outstanding in the amount of $177,000 (which bonds are secured by a prior lien on such fees and charges), and for paying the principal of and the interest on the bonds now offered. In the event the net proceeds of such fees and charges shall not be sufficient to pay such principal and interest, the Commission is required to pay the balance out of the general water receipts.

Bidders are requested to name the interest rate or rates not exceeding 4% per annum, in a multiple of ¼ or 1/10 of 1%, and each bidder must specify in his bid the amount and the maturities of the bonds of each rate. No bid may name more than three interest rates and all bonds maturing on the same date must bear interest at the same rate. No bid of less than par and accrued interest or for less than all of the bonds offered will be entertained. The bonds will be awarded to the bidder offering to purchase the bonds at the lowest interest cost to the Commission, such cost to be determined by deducting the total amount of the premium bid from the aggregate amount of interest upon all of the bonds until their respective maturities.

Each proposal must be enclosed in a sealed envelope marked "Proposal for Bonds" and be accompanied by a certified check upon an incorporated bank or trust company, payable unconditionally to the order of the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission, for $1,000. The right to reject any or all bids is reserved.

The approving opinion of Messrs. Mitchell and Pershing, New York City, will be furnished without cost to the purchasers of the bonds.

Circular on request and proposals must be submitted on information contained therein. WASHINGTON SUBURBAN SANITARY COMMISSION. By: J. DARBY BOWMAN, Secretary-Treasurer. Dec.15,16

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

The Only Cost Is Money; It's a Bargain

A Paris newspaper has figured out that each word spoken at the recently concluded U. N. meeting cost 53 cents in expenses.

That's pretty high. But it costs us even more when they stop talking and start shooting.

GOOD NEIGHBOR POLICY

Residents of the District wish their neighbors in the United States good luck in the project.

OVERHEARD

"I've never seen such a sleepy town. They'd probably ring a curfew bell at 9 o'clock except that it would wake everybody up."

VAGRANT THOUGHT

A really thrifty man would find a girl whose birthday falls on December 25, and marry her on that date. Then Christmas, birthdays and anniversaries could be acknowledged with a single present.

Wonder if any District Line wives have that situation to contend with?

DON'T BE A DAWDLER

A pox upon those shoppers who
Rush out to lunch when workers do.
They sip their cokes and idly prate
While time runs out for those who wait.

Samuel Guter

INFORMATION PLEASE

I've hunted every place for an explanation of the origin of "shaggy dog story," but nobody seems able to define or explain the expression. Can you?

LIFE IS LIKE THAT

The lady said that there could be
A reconciliation
I felt my pride turn wrong-side-out
And found humiliation.

G. A. Fisher
1442 Spring rd. nw.

PET PEEVE

People I could do without are women who wait patiently for a streetcar, make sure they're the first to board, and THEN open their purses and start rummaging for the fare.

REBUTTAL

The other day I had Traffic Director Keneipp on my WTOP "This Is Washington" program, and asked about the safety record of women drivers.

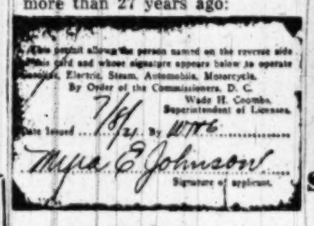
Mrs. Myra J. Marshall of 6800 Pineway st., College Heights, Md., responded by sending in this driver's license, made out in her maiden name more than 27 years ago:



Mrs. Marshall admits that, despite the license, she'd be a little dubious about driving steam cars, electrics or motorcycles.

But she has driven gas buggies during all those years, without mishap. There isn't even a red light, stop sign or speeding rap on her record. So she indignantly asks:

"What does Kenaipp mean —'on paper?' Women are better drivers, period."

STREET SCENE

George A. Nealon of 1310 N. Courthouse rd., Arlington, Va., is our reporter for this one:

The motorcycle was traveling along at a proper pace when it was struck by a carelessly driven auto.

The cyclist was spilled, and his machine damaged. But luckily he arose uninjured.

The fellow in the auto was at fault, but the cyclist wasn't too keen about making a fuss about the accident—until he remembered the law. All accidents must be reported.

So the police were called. When they arrived, they surveyed the scene, and shook their heads. "We'll have to cite you both," they announced.

So both drivers got tickets for "collision."

TOO BAD, ISN'T IT?

It's getting so a robber isn't safe on the streets any more.

Listen to Bill Gold's "This Is Washington," the District Line on the Air, Monday through Friday, over WTOP, from 10 a. m. to Arthur Godfrey time at 10:30.

NEW YORK—Senator Homer Ferguson of Michigan was reviewing the recent Republican campaign and listing the mistakes which should not be repeated. "From now on," was the first practical lesson enunciated by Ferguson, "when we hold meetings of Republican women, none should be photographed wearing orchids. Orchids are pretty and decorative," he added, "but they cost votes."

In the new hit, "Silver Whistle," Jose Ferrer brings a caged rooster onstage at each performance. The rooster is kept in a small enclosure backstage, between shows . . . One hour before each performance, a spotlight is thrown into the rooster's enclosure until the time comes for Ferrer to carry it onstage. The hour's spotlight is for the purpose of keeping the rooster silent onstage— for when a spotlight is first thrown on him, he thinks it's daybreak and immediately rises and crows.

Because of the accidental stabbing during Gladys Swarthout's "Carmen" at the Pittsburgh Opera, a doctor was in the wings at the Opera House when Robert Merrill did his third-act shaving scene in "Barber of Seville" . . . After 20 years with Time, Inc., David Halburd has resigned as of January 1 and will move to California . . . President Conant of Harvard University participated in a discussion of how to ease the job of an administrator. "The mark of a good administrator," said Dr. Conant, "is the frowns on his assistants' faces."

Chester Erskine, the movie producer, listened to some actors trying to discuss their work modestly. "You're not telling the truth," said Erskine. "George M. Forrestal's Applicant Quizzed

By Drew Pearson

Ever since election day, Secretary of Defense Forrestal has been frantically painting himself a true and loyal Democrat. But here is an off-the-record talk indicating the kind of men Forrestal puts in high position.

Pearson

The other day, Donald Carpenter, Forrestal's newly hand picked chairman of the Munitions Board, called in William Bourne of the State Department, and suggested that he take charge of the Munitions Board's press relations. After some inconsequential conversation, Carpenter looked quizzically at Bourne and asked:

"Now what about your politics?"

"It seems to me you could tell from my accent what my politics are," replied Bourne. "I am a Southern Democrat."

"Well," replied Carpenter, "we feel that it is necessary that we should know this. Mr. Forrestal said we want to be sure not to get one of these New Dealers in this job."

Big Business First

Bourne replied that he didn't think his political affiliations would prevent him from doing a good public relations job for the Munitions Board, and Carpenter went on to other things.

"What do you think of business?" he asked.

"No," replied the Munitions Board chairman, "what I mean is that in the Munitions Board it's our job to prepare for war. In making war we have to depend on big business. Only big business can turn out the materials we need in the volume we need. Mr. Forrestal says we don't want to get a New Dealer in this job who is opposed to big business.

Du Pont Helps

It isn't so hard to understand why Carpenter thinks that way when you examine his background. He is a member of the same duPont-Carpenter family which contributed a cool $186,780 to the 1940 campaign to defeat Roosevelt, which organized the Liberty League in 1936, and which in the last election poured still uncounted thousands into the battle against Truman.

But it is hard to understand why Forrestal hires a member of the duPont tribe to work with an Administration whose aims are diametrically and irrevocably the opposite. However, this may be one explanation:

It is significant that some time after Forrestal loaned this money to Bolivia, the Remington Arms Co., of which Donald Carpenter is now vice president, stepped in to profit by it. Remington got a contract for 7.65 mm. and 9 mm. cartridges. Carpenter had just joined the firm when this sale was made.

So Forrestal and Carpenter, once operators in indirectly fomenting war in Latin America, are now together in running American defense.

Merry-Go-Round

Margaret Truman's new checkbook, just delivered by the printers, gives her name but no address. She ordered it before the election, when she wasn't as sure as her father where they would be living for the next four years . . . California's airminded Congressman Carl Hinshaw keeps his shortwave radio tuned into the band used by aircraft. When the Washington control tower is slow responding to a pilot's call, Hinshaw will often get on the phone and scold the operator for keeping the pilot waiting . . . After the KKK raided an American Veterans Committee meeting in Atlanta, Klan representatives offered to bring 100 new members into the American Veterans Committee—provided the Atlanta AVC Chapter opposed Truman's civil rights program. AVC replied that its by-laws forbade membership not only to Communists, but to Fascists, including the KKK.
